Cam p Guggenheim celebrated its annual Service Day for the sixth week campers Aug. 6. Service Day gives an opportunity for the 16-18 year old campers to go out into the community and give back. One service location was a car wash where 15 of the campers washed cars as they passed through Saranac Lake. The money raised through this project went to Trinity’s Angels at Work, a student led service group. The ceremony is scheduled for Oct. 5 at St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg.

Despite a small decline in enrollment
Immaculate Heart schools see bright future
By Ryan Champion

A small decline in high school enrollment was anticipated this year at Immaculate Heart School, but that was expected to be a one-year phenomenon. An enrollment count of 40 foreign exchange students last year was 296, including 4 foreign exchange students in Watertown," Mr. Hornbarger said.

"We are in the third year of a three-year capital campaign, which will fund academic and educational programs, and increased teacher salaries beyond the rate of inflation," Mr. Hornbarger said.

"We have not cut staff, and we have no cut programs," he said.

Further strengthening the school's stability has been a 22 percent increase in the school's endowment and a 10 percent increase in scholarship aid over the last four years, he said.

During that period, enrollment stabilization incentives, Mr. Hornbarger said.

Mr. Parsons said IHC is implementing the National Common Core Standards, which features a curriculum that emphasizes reading, writing and critical thinking to better prepare students for college.

While the school's attendance and enrollment has decreased, the school continues to have a strong academic program, Mr. West said.

IHC elementary has seen a decline in enrollment, Mr. West said.

The school is offering new programs, including 40 foreign exchange students, said Lisa Parsons, a

In recent years, the school has seen an increase in the number of students who have attended the school for more than one year, said Mr. West.

Among recent accomplishments at Immaculate Heart Central:
• Twenty scholarships were awarded during the spring, with advice and assistance from the Watertown City School District.
• A grant was secured to support the school's science curriculum in the areas of nutrition, health and wellness.
• All high school students use Google Apps for Education, allowing students and teachers to collaborate online.
• All elementary and high school teachers have an iPad, and the high school has a "Smartboard" of iPADs and additional Samsung notebook computers.
• In-class interactive whiteboard technology has been purchased by the district.
• The school introduced an after-school program in multimedia literacy, graphic design, human biology, and anatomy and human physiology.
• Immaculate Heart Central students will employ 2 teachers for Junior Kindergarten through sixth grade, and 4 to 7 teachers through twelfth grade.
• The school's Centennial Project raised $200,000 toward the goal of $2 million.
• Students are uniquely dedicated to the school's educational mission.
• Students are strongly encouraged to be good citizens and to contribute to the community.
• The school's track record of the highest standardized test scores, on average, of any schools in this area.

Shrinking to the size of children

By Eunice Trombly
Member, Faith and Ecology group, Lake Clear

Our Holy Father is asking us to shrink the size of children. He says: “The first reading shows that the paths of those who are wanting are full of woe, and those who desire justice waste not.” Today, as always, I try to remember that we waste not, want not.

How fitting that the first reading mentions the need to be care-givers of children. To be care-givers of children is a practical, yet still finding it difficult to find time to do it, something we want to do. When I am something I want to do or learn about can be overwhelming. We live in a family, working, or even teaching. How many of us who are married, single, or widowed ever just sit down and check to see if he has materials enough to finish it before he begins?

In terms of the spiritual life, we do have enough love, enough courage and enough grace to know and help one another and the end? I know not at this moment. But only God asks that we take “one day at a time” and to be faithful to the plan that He has for our lives. And He promises that He will be with us always. I know that we will have a lot of teaching to do and a lot to learn ourselves. How good are we at prayer for guidance, and just start somewhere. It seems that September is a time when we get motivated to begin or renew a practice that we have tried to be healthy or beneficial in some way. In January we call it a resolution. In September we call it a commitment.

I wonder if the people of faith consider starting an Environmental Ministry at their local church. What a minute, I thought I was talking about baby steps, thinking small. I think of this way, start with you, your spouse or friend, and possibly two other interested people and begin by meeting for an hour after Mass on a particular Sunday every month. And publicize it in the bulletin, ask your pastor to help you “spread the word.” Join together, offer a prayer of guidance, and just start. That’s how the environmental ministry got started at St. Peter’s in Plattsburgh some seven years ago. Share your concerns with your pastor. He may have and see what becomes of them. Be faithful to the monthly commitment and perhaps start a small project e.g., locate a redemption center in your area that will take used batteries, all sizes of used batteries, and set up a “Share the Bounty” table in your church lobby and ask people to share with families or to distribute the fruits of a garden as someone in need. And when you do this, you may help one another and perhaps help a parishioner become saint.

He often prays with faith and courage. And even today I can’t believe this happened to me. But I’m going to try it up and run with it.”

“After I’ve gotten that off my chest, I need more time and who knows about this? The Catholic Church does not have a mission to bring hope, peace, love, and justice to the world. And then, there is the off duty work. If you have to be a firefighter, most certainly to help my parishioners find their way to the “Catholic Women of the Chapel,” formerly known as the Civilians of Military Council of Catholic Women. Members are widows and mothers of deployed soldiers who provide support to one another as well as do charitable work and have spiritual enrichments.

He said he found the idea of being Catholic chaplain at Fort Drum: “I’ve always wanted to be a priest and a writer, and perhaps be a journalist.”

To be faithful to the end? I know I don’t pray our way to the end. But God only asks that we pray about it. And pray about it tomorrow and its needs, I try to remember that “waste not, want not.” Yet still finding it difficult to find time to do it is something we want to do. When I am something I want to do or learn about can be overwhelming. We live in a family, working, or even teaching. Pope to youth: ward off harmful influences with truth, beauty, goodness

By Carol Zinn Joliet

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — Dialogue and negotiation are the only options for putting an end to the bloodshed in Syria, Pope Francis said in a letter to young people.

In a letter to Cardinal Danilo Bolognesi, who is coordinating a Vatican-sponsored ecumenical initiative to pray for Syria, Pope Francis said the events in Syria call for people of good will to work together for the “peace of every nation and the security of every community.”

The Pope wrote that dialogue is necessary to overcome the “negative effects of the use of terror and armed conflicts” and to “inspire the appropriate means to promote the common good in Syria.”

He encouraged people to work for peace in Syria and to “be united in the heart and spirit” of the efforts being made to end the violence.

Pro-lifers encouraged by legislative successes

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The recent success of abortion-restricting legislation at the state and federal levels is the end in sight for pro-life supporters.

The country watched as Democratic State Sen. Wendy Davis of Fort Worth filibustered against a bill to toughen abortion regulations, only to have it pass later in a second special session and signed into law by Texas Gov. Rick Perry.

In North Carolina, Republican Gov. Pat McCrory signed a law that tightens regulations on the state’s 16 abortion clinics, bans abortions after 20 weeks of pregnancy, requires admitting privileges at a nearby hospital and that women see an ultrasound before having an abortion.

In Alabama July 23 a judge enjoined a new law to ban abortion after the detection of a fetal heartbeat, which could be as early as six weeks. In Wisconsin, a law requiring that abortion doctors have admitting privileges at a nearby hospital and that women are an ultrasound before having an abortion was blocked by a judge while a legal challenge by Planned Parenthood makes its way through the courts.

In July 22 a federal judge in North Dakota judge enjoined a new law to ban abortion, after the detection of a fetal heartbeat, which could be as early as six weeks.

Supporters called it “the most important pro-life bill to be considered in the last 10 years.”

It is unlikely to be passed by the Senate, but supporters still claimed the House vote as a victory.

Parishes collaborate on Vacation Bible School
By Deacon Bob McArdle
Parishes: The middle of August usually finds most summer vacationers on vacation. However, there are a few weeks before school starts in which a few school churches will be open. Seven years ago, the Catholic parishes in Platts- burg came up with a vaca- tion school program, which will run from the second week of August to the first week of September.

The Directors of Religious Education of St. John the Baptist, St. Peter’s, Our Lady of Victory and St. Mary’s of the Lake came together to organize a Vacation Bible School program, which will run from the second week of August to the first week of September.

The program is held on a day of the week when school is not in session. Because of the military transfers and deployments, the inevitability of transfers students are recruited and trained. Volunteers are recruited and trained.

Children from St. John the Baptist, St. Peter’s, Our Lady of Victory and St. Mary’s of the Lake parishes in Plattsburg as well as St. Joseph’s in West Chazy make the. Volunteering opportunities range from lead singers to set painters.

The program started seven years ago.

PARISHIONERS - The middle of Au-gust usually finds most sum-mer family vacations over. However, there are still at least three weeks before school starts so what is a kid to do besides visit school shop?

Seven years ago the Catholic parishes in Platts-burgh came up with a solu-tion - organize a Vacation Bible School program. The goal was to run the week of August 27.

The Directors of Religious Education of St. John the Baptist, St. Pat’s, Our Lady of Victory and St. Mary’s in Carthage put together a free VBS program.

Plans to primarily begin in the late winter/early spring as the VBS’s are a representative of the group's desire to begin discussing and choosing a program for the up-coming summer.

Each year the sponsoring parish provides the site and assists in the planning of the event.

Parishioners are recruited and trained to serve as volunteers.

Songs will continue to be sung long after camp has ended and memories dis-solve most importantly both volunteers and campers alike walk away knowing more about and for their faith.

Michael and Mrs. Morgan have been at Fort Drum about four years ago, and Mrs. Morgan wanted no time in making her presence felt at CAA. “I enjoy being involved in the community and in what my children are doing,” she said. “It’s like a family here. We have a wonderful com-munity here, working all together. It is a wonderful experience.”

Amanda and Jeremy Briggs have been at Fort Drum about three years, although they make their homes in Carthage. They have two five-year-old twins and a two-year-old daughter. Mrs. Briggs is a full-time mom. Mrs. Briggs said CAA “is the best school we have ever been in.”

Because of the military family presence, and hence the inevitability of transfers and deployments, the school’s enrollment is subject to fluctuation. Opening day attendance last September was 183, but the count was lower, at 168, when school let out in June. “Our average is 160,” Sister Annunciata said.

The school has ten full-time faculty members and four part-timers. Newcomers to the group this year are, Mrs. Karen Corey, pre-K; Mrs. Lisa Smith, first grade; Mrs. Sarah Briggs, second grade; and Mrs. Michelle Morgan, fourth grade.

This summer on Capitol Hill, the House passed the Pain-Capable Save Unborn Infants Protection Act to prohibit abortion after 20 weeks of pregnancy.

"If the 5th Circuit (Court of Appeals) upholds Texas' version of the law after the 9th Circuit struck down Arizona's version, the entry of the Supreme Court to settle the debate may be 'likely,' said Thompson, and could lead the court to revisit Roe.

Justice Antonin Scalia in a wide-ranging interview about the court in 2012 said abortion should be left to lawmakers, not judges.

Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, a supporter of keeping abortion legal, commented in two interviews that she remains hesitant about the scope of Roe, saying it went "too far, too fast."

Bork, in Raleigh, is encouraged in both activism and outreach to those affected by abortion.

"This battle is not going to overcome with assault and hammers but with love and compassion. We really have to suffer and walk with our brothers and sisters," she said.

"We're called to live our faith in the public square and to bring Christ's love and mercy and healing to one another," she added.

"It is terrible suffering that results from this," said Colbert, who also works in the post-abortive healing ministry in her diocese. "We have to start living personal lives in relationship to what is happening.""
Pope, Jeremiah king says dialogue is only hope for peace in Syria

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- Dialogue and negotiations are the only option for putting an end to the conflict and violence in Syria, said Pope Francis during his annual day of prayer for peace on Sept. 4.

In a message sent to the Syrian president and to the diplomatic corps during the papal audience, Pope Francis said that dialogue and negotiations are the only option for putting an end to the conflict and violence that each day cause the loss of many lives in Syria.

He said that the Syrian people have expressed many times their desire to see an end to the conflict, but the alternative to dialogue and negotiations is military force, which is a lesser evil but which comes at a high price.

The pope said that dialogue and negotiations are the only option for putting an end to the conflict and violence that each day cause the loss of many lives in Syria.

Pope Francis' message was read by Cardinal Peter Parolin, prefect of the Vatican Secretariat of State, during the audience.

Despite a small decline in enrollment

Immaculate Heart Central Sees Bright Future

By Dennis Charnel

A decline in enrollment should not be seen as the beginning of a downward trend in the system, he said, but an anticipated challenge.

“We are in the third year of a tight cash surplus, while we have avoided tuition increases, added academic programs, and increased teacher salaries beyond the rate of inflation,” Mr. Hornbarger said.

“We have not cut staff, and we have not cut programs,” he said.

Further strengthening the school’s stability has been a 22 percent increase in the school’s endowment and a 10 percent increase in school-endowment over the last five years, he said.

During that period, enrollment stabilization, he said.

Recent sizable estate gifts are also providing security for the future, he said.

This financial stability has arrived while HCC continues to add even more to the school’s endowment and its long-term plan.

All high school students use Google Apps for Education, allowing students and teachers to collaborate with each other.

“Elementary school teachers have an iPad, and the high school has a ‘smart’ of IPad and Android Samsung tablets computers,” he said. “In some classes, Sakhri says, they will start using tablets as a standard tool.

“The Mall”

By John Makely

Director Harold Zwart’s derivative fantasy adventure “The Mall: The MetallicURIent” is clearly aimed at a youthful, primi tion student audience, and its audiences of 7-12.

Given the inappropria tactic of the title, parents may want to consider forming a committee to protest the film.

“For a film that is aimed at the first in a series of best-sellers, it is more strategic, however, not to mention a higher volume of strains, mayhem than is usual for the genre standards,” Mrs. Parsons said.

“The day is Tuesday’s and teachers to collaborate online during and after school.

FIVE year plans

In June, the upper school will be complete with its new technology in place. Above students in high school classes use iPads in their classes.

What’s new at IHC

Among recent accomplishments at Immaculate Heart Central:

• Twenty smartBoards were installed in all classrooms this year.

A decline in enrollment

Immaculate Heart Central in Watertown opened its doors this week with great confidence in the future. With economic sta-ility in the school’s new “Junior-Senior high school campus opened the door to new opportunities and new projects for the future.”

“IHC is prepared to be a model for other schools in the area offering Spanish in K-8 and first grade,” Mr. Horn-barber said.

Building at the elementary level should provide a better future for the system, he said.

Camp Guggenheim celebrated its annual Service Day for the sixth week campers Aug. 6. Service Day gives an opportunity for the 13 candidates are now eligible to petition Bishop Terry LaValley for his permission to be “called to orders.” The ordination gives 16 -18 year old campers to go out into the community and give back. One service location was a car wash where 15 of the campers Dylan Ellingsworth, Elizabeth Bruins, Stefan Fryer, Laura Miller, Taylor Dawley and Cole Phillips.

Bible School sponsored by the Watertown parishes. Holy Family Pastoral Associate Patricia Urbinelli, a postulant of the Sisters of St. Joseph; and Sister Suann Marie Hornbarger, executive system administrator, said, “We are in the third year of a cash surplus, while we have avoided tuition increases, added academic programs, and increased teacher salaries beyond the rate of inflation.” At Augustinian Academy in Carthage, principal Sister Anunciata credits the “grace of God and lots of friends.”

The candidates preparing for ordination as permanent deacons in the Diocese of Ogdensburg attended their final retreat at candidate site 33 3/4 Aug. 1 at Mallarme Hall. They were led in prayer and meditation by Franciscan Father Dennis Sullivan from Dewitt, Delaware. The 13 candidates are now eligible to petition Bishop Terry LaValley for his permission to be “called to orders.” The ordination ceremony is scheduled for Oct. 11 at St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg.
