Ecumenical service to be held Jan. 12

“Let us allow our hearts to be touched, let us allow our selves to be warmed by the tenderness of God, we need his care,” the pope said Dec. 25, standing on the cen tral balcony of St. Peter’s Bas ica and addressing an estimated 70,000 people in the square below.

“God is peace,” the pope said. “Let us ask him to help us to be peacemakers each day, in our life, in our fam ilies, in our cities and nations, in the whole world. “Let us allow ourselves to be moved by God’s good ness,” Pope Francis said.

“May is everyone will feel God’s closeness, live in his presence, love him and adore him,” Pope Francis said before delivering his Christ mas blessing “urbi et orbi” for the city and the world.

FIRST CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

MESSAGE OF THANKS: For support of Retired Religious collection.... p. 12
A New Year begins with memories of the past. This past year, my close friend, Father Oscar died.

I have known Father Oscar since seminary days. He was ordained for the Diocese of Harrisburg the same year that I was ordained for the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

Over the years, we have kept in touch with frequent visits and those visits were always a joy. Father Oscar always brought a lot of laughter and a lot of joy; he was always a joy and a blessing.

Father Oscar became a priest to me something special is his wisdom – made clear in his homilies and writings. He even gave an extensive interview to the Roman press as a personal friend of Pope Francis – as priest and bishop, he was always a special friend – one who is always there for you.

His wisdom – his actions – his words – all that he does: the way he meets the crowds at St. Peter's Square and the way that he meets the crowds at St. Peter's Square during his audiences, his visits to other places, rather few so far but always full of compassion and com-passionate care.

Here is a quote from Pope Francis from the “Holy Year of Mercy” which he has just begun.

“Lord of the years that stretch before, white and pure as the stars above, we continue to discover his wisdom and faith to follow with joy and faith as he meets the crowds at St. Peter’s Square and the way that he meets the crowds at St. Peter’s Square during his audiences, his visits to other places, rather few so far but always full of compassion and com-passionate care.

This past week, I have no ticed that the media has cele-brated the past year with various programs – and Pope Francis has had his share of attention. This year is the 25th year of the Pontifical Missions Office, the 50th year of the Pontifical Missions Office, and the 25th year of the Pontifical Missions Office, and the 25th year of the Pontifical Missions Office.

In my home office, I see every day my friend who has been a favorite of mine. I couldn’t believe that he fore-gave him his blessing to Pope Francis and he asked to me. Father Oscar was a great friend, a great friend, a great friend.

d命运 is the Mother of God?

As we begin this New Year by honoring Mary, the Mother of God, it is important that we do not lose sight of other days marked off for the special honoring of Mary throughout the month.

There is something special, however, about today’s Feast of Mary, Mother of God. Today has the liturgical rank of a Solemnity. Today, therefore, is not a casual “run of the rosary” celebration but a major remembering of the Mother of God.

As in every calendar year, this year begins with the anticipation of Bishop LaValley’s ordination as the Bishop of Ogdensburg. The monument was placed in its new location by private donors including the estate of Roger and Kay Sul- livan whose daughter do- nated part of the proceeds for the project.

Donations also came from the Knights of Columbus and other parishioners like Don Sabin who worked closely with the monument com- mittee.

"It's something we've wanted to do for a long time," said Tom Arsenault of the Parish. "We felt it was time to put our money where our mouth was and do something for the pro-life cause."

The monument is on dis- play at the corner of a village park created by the parish on the grounds of the Knights of Columbus during an Oct. 13 ceremony.

Prospects for the new year in Vatican news

By Frank Vann
Cardinal Thomas Sheen

NEW YORK: After a year that included the historic resignation of Pope Benedict XVI and a series of celebrated innovations by Pope Francis, it is hard to imagine 2014 at the Vatican could be any more eventful. Of course, the biggest stories are likely to be those that come by surprise, but in the meantime, there are developments bound to loom large in Vatican news over the coming year:

• New Cardinals: Pope Francis is scheduled to create new cardinals Feb. 22. By that time, no more than 150 members of the College of Cardinals will be under the age of 80 and thus eligible for a possible convening prior to a new papal election. Under rules established by Pope Paul VI, the college should not have more than 120 members, though subsequent popes have occasionally exceeded that number. So Pope Francis can be expected to add another 14 members to the college.

The election of the first Latin American pope has raised expectations of greater geographical diversity among cardinal electors, so the new slate might offer relatively heavy representation from statistically underrepresented regions, especially Latin America.

• Vatican reform: The eight-member Council of Cardinals that Pope Francis formed to advise him on governance of the universal church and related matters will meet at the Vatican for two weeks in October to deliberate a draft of an apostolic constitution reorganizing the curia before the Vatican Council. Blessed John opened the council with regard to reforms ushered in by the Second Vatican Council. Blessed John Paul II, scheduled for April 27, is almost certain to draw crowds larger than the most recent papal visit to the Holy Land but has not been announced. The council could thus serve as an occasion for Pope Francis to respond to his own role as Bishop of Rome and successor of the prince of apostles, the first pope, St. Peter, whom he will soon assume.

The council has not announced a timeline for its work, but Pope Francis has established a record of acting fast: In December 2013, he approved an idea for an international commission of cardinals for the sexual abuse of children just one day after the council proposed it. So few will be surprised if the council this week gives him a draft of an apostolic constitution organizing the curia before the end of 2014.

• Canonization of two popes: The double canonization ceremony of Blessed John XXIII and Blessed John Paul II, scheduled for April 27, is almost certain to draw crowds larger than those the Vatican has hosted since the 1978 election of Pope John Paul I. The canonization of Blessed John Paul II, which is expected by mid-May, was accelerated by the pope at the end of his pontificate. By mid-2015, it is likely that the canonization of John XXIII will be proceeding.

The council may be expected to discuss the “pastoral challenges of the family in the context of evangelization.”

Pope Francis has indicated topics of discussion at the synod will include church law governing marriage annulments and the eligibility of divorced and remarried Catholics for sacraments. But the council has yet to announce dates or an itinerary for its planned papal visit to the Holy Land but has not denied recent reports that it will take place late May and last three days, with stops in Israel, Jordan and the Palestinian territories. Pope Francis has said he will preach His Gospel of Peace, Passion, and to join the million through the ages who have made the Middle East the cradle of universal salvation. The Son of God is the one Judge and Adviser of Truth and the one Source of Light. But we are all called to be “epiphaniacs,” providing glimpses of that Truth, showing the way in our own small spots of time to a circumference to a larger plan and destiny.

Pitying Child, may we be all wise men and courageous women, obedient children who will follow whenever you lead us.

That means being faithful to prayer, diligent in instigating the enthusiasm and guidance of Pope Francis in our ongoing work with those seeking the Light. This is the way for us to be light bearers, helping banish the darkness and confusion in the world in which we live.

The Feast of the Epiphany

Isaiah 60:1-6

Epiphany 3a, Lk 2:1-16

Matthew 2:1-12

The Spirit of the Lord is manifested in the resurrection of Jesus as the Open Door, as the New Way, as the means of entry into a new and glorious spiritual life. The open door is the Church, the way of salvation, the way of life for all who believe. The open door is the way of faith, the way of trust, the way of hope. The open door is the way of love, the way of charity, the way of compassion. The open door is the way of mercy, the way of kindness, the way of forgiveness. The open door is the way of peace, the way of justice, the way of righteousness. The open door is the way of holiness, the way of purity, the way of sanctity. Five key principles for living a sustainable lifestyle:

1. Reduce, Reuse, Recycle:
   - Reduce your consumption of resources.
   - Reuse items that you no longer need.
   - Recycle items that can be recycled.

2. Conservation:
   - Conserve water by fixing leaky faucets and turn off the water when you are not using it.
   - Conserve energy by turning off lights when you are not using them.
   - Conserve natural resources by planting trees and using public transportation.

3. Energy Efficiency:
   - Choose energy-efficient appliances and light bulbs.
   - Install energy-efficient windows and doors.
   - Use energy-efficient products in your home.

4. Transportation:
   - Use public transportation or carpooling.
   - Walk or bike to work or school.
   - Use your car only for long distances.

5. Waste Reduction:
   - Reduce waste by composting food scraps.
   - Reduce waste by recycling.
   - Reduce waste by choosing products with less packaging.

Epiphany - banishing darkness in the world

Prospects for the new year in Vatican news

The Feast of the Epiphany (January 6) provides an opportunity for the church to celebrate the coming of Jesus Christ to the world. This feast commemorates the visit of the Magi to Bethlehem, bringing gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. The story of the Magi is a classical example of how God chooses to reveal himself to the world through unexpected and often humble means.

In Vatican news, there are prospects for several significant events in 2014. One of the anticipated events is the canonization of Pope John Paul II, who will be declared a saint on April 27. This is an occasion for Catholics to reflect on the legacy of Pope John Paul II and the impact of his pontificate on the church.

Another event is the anticipated visit of Pope Francis to the Holy Land in May. This visit is expected to draw large crowds and is a testament to the importance of the Holy Land in the context of Catholicism. The visit will also provide an opportunity for the church to reaffirm its commitment to peace and justice in the Middle East.

In addition, the synod of bishops, which is scheduled to meet in October, is expected to address the pastoral challenges of the family. This is an important topic for the church, as it seeks to provide guidance and support to couples and families in the context of contemporary social and cultural changes.

Overall, the prospects for the new year in Vatican news are promising, with significant events that have the potential to shape the future of the church and its mission to proclaim the Gospel of Jesus Christ to the world.
Year

The Catholic Church has always condemned abortion as a grave evil. In 1995 Pope John Paul II declared that the Church “proclaims that abortion means, always constitutes a grave moral disorder, since it is an attack on the dignity of so many innocent human beings.”

The monument is placed in its new location by private donations including the estate of Roger and Kay Sullivan, who donated a major portion of the proceeds for the project.

Donations also came from other parishioners like Don Sablin who worked closely with the monument committee. “It’s something we’ve worked hard to create. It’s been a lot of compliments already on the building and the little park on the corner,” he said.
