A celebration of October life

By Mary Lee Klan

How is it possible that we are counting down to October 31st? It’s because our spirits have discovered that this month is especiallySending October love to you. We all know that October has a special place in our hearts. Perhaps you are feeling especially close to your family and friends during this month. Share your love and gratitude with them. October is a time for giving thanks. Let’s make the most of this special month and enjoy its beauty and warmth.

The Pontifical Mission Societies of the Diocese of Ogdensburg, Inc.
The Society for Propagation of the Faith

The theme for World Mission Sunday, October 25, is "I will build my church". The Church teaches us that we have a duty to help those in need and to share our faith with others. This year, the focus is on missionary work, particularly in countries where the Catholic Church is not well-represented. The theme "I will build my church" is a call to action for all Catholics to support missionary work and to share our faith with others.

Known in religion as Sister James Marie, I was chrismated Eileen Theresa Kelly in St. Mary’s Cathedral, Ogdensburg. I was pre-school age when my family moved to Watertown, so my education was received from the Sisters of St. Joseph at Holy Family School and Immaculate Heart Academy.

After graduation from high school, I entered the Sisters of St. Joseph and received the religious habit on April 25, 1954. The major I chose to study was religious education so I entered St. Mary’s School in Ticonderoga. I had no support to pay tuition fees but still enjoyed my teaching career.

Through the years, I have had the privilege and responsibility to serve on several committees and serve my community on the leadership teams of the school. Some light frivolous memories of the years as a religion teacher are swimming across the St. Mary’s High School years; I assume a new role as a religious teacher in junior senior high and I still enjoy my teaching career.

Bishop’s Fund supports Evangelization Office

Thanks to the Bishop’s Fund, the Diocesan Office of Evangelization exists to assist and enlighten the faithful to bring the message of salvation in Jesus Christ so they may come to a saving faith, through the love of God for humanity, and in the fullness of the Catholic faith.

To foster gospel values in our society, the Bishop’s Fund provides assistance with parishes, groups and in the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

To bring about in all their work the love of Jesus Christ and for the sake of his church, they may freely share it with others.

To invite all people who are using several different means for the spread of the Catholic faith to sometimes repay the many benefits which it’s surrounded.

Video catechism series aims to appeal to youth

MUSKEGON, Mich. — A new series of catechism videos is in the works with an emphasis on youth and focusing on morality, Bible knowledge, a plethora of Catholic art, and Christian musician.

“Christians, at least, this blend of theologies will seem irredeemably out of place and the much more prominent slaughter by which it’s surrounded. The film contains pervasively violent warfare with much gore, an off-screen nonmortal bedroom encounter, and relentless rough and crude language.

Celebrating the most consoling of feast days

Every once in a while, All Souls’ Day, November 2nd, falls on a Sunday. When it comes on a weekday, many Catholics fail to celebrate this most consoling of last days. As the years go on after the death of a loved one, and grief is now less, we tend to forget that those who have died are still “real,” still part of our lives through the Church’s belief in the “communion of saints.” Why do we call them “holy souls?”

The Catechism of the Catholic Church tells us that they are those “who die in God’s grace and friendship, but who have not yet been purified”. The pain of seeing how intensely God loves them is a pain that lasts until they are completely ready to enjoy God’s loving gaze. Do some souls go “straight to heaven”? Only God knows. The second reading from Romans begins with very awe-inspiring words: “Hope does not disappoint”.

He further tells us that the great virtues of faith, hope, and love are the basis of our world-view and foundation of reconciliation with God through His death on the cross, not just for some, but for all people, the just and the unjust. Most consoling of all is today’s Gospel. In effect, Jesus tells us that such one of us has been given to Him by His Father. He purchased us by shedding His blood, and He will never let us go.

Jesus’ words in this parable are the assurance that no torment shall touch them. Even there, they are in peace, knowing they will soon be in the full joy of可持续的。Unlike those who are with us, they have not died, but are waiting for the day of the resurrection of the just, and for eternal life. If they are in doubt, they were created to take us to a higher place. Since these teens came to a leadership weekend, it is natural that they were continually encouraged to take the initiative they heard from us. The teens voiced the fact that it is a struggle to go home and face peers and a society that is often indifferent or even hostile to our faith. They voiced the fact that diocesan events like this leadership weekend rejuvenate them and give them the courage to live out their faith.

The theme for the weekend was focused on the 1 Corinthians 13, including the song “Proof of Your Love” by For King and Country, that is based on that passage. Organized by diocesan youth director, Deacon Brian Dwyer, the weekend was a chance for teens to grow in their leadership skills and deepen their faith. The young people took part in several workshops each day and Sunday: on Saturday morning, the schedule also included a reconciliation service and Adoration of the Blessed Sacrament. The teens had time to spend with one another as they played a variety of games, met new friends, and re-newed their faith. Personally, spending time with youth and young adults from St. Stephen’s, Ingalls, celebrated that Franciscan heritage most recently by climbing Bald Mountain and praying together the “Canticle of Brother Sun.”

Be an Informed Voter

When a candidate is running in your area, it is extremely important not only to vote, but also to be informed about the candidates you are voting for. If you are a Catholic, it is important to check if candidates have been endorsed by the Catholic Church. It is also important to check if candidates have been endorsed by New York State Right to Life, as this organization endorses candidates who oppose abortion.

We should strive to vote for candidates who uphold Catholic values. For Catholic values, they are Catholic but they don't reproduce with all other issues.

It is important to vote for candidates who will protect the lives of all children and who will protect our freedom. What I am trying to say is that we should be common sense candidates and will reproduce with me on these issues seem to be reasonable candidates and will reproduce with me on these issues.

We shouldn't forget the Baltimore Catholics who say “Don’t vote for a public school teacher who oppose abortion, uphold gun control and will protect our freedom”. I think that we should be reasonable candidates and will reproduce with me on these issues.

Celebrating the most consoling of feast days

Church’s belief in the “communion of saints”?

Why do we call them “holy souls”?

The Catechism of the Catholic Church tells us that they are those “who die in God’s grace and friendship” but who are “still imperfectly purified”.

The pain of seeing how intensely God loves them is a pain that lasts until they are completely ready to enjoy God’s loving gaze.

Do some souls go “straight to heaven”? Only those who are with Christ “by His Father’s side”.

The second reading from Romans begins with very as- quirers words: “Hope does not disappoint.”

He further tells us that the great graces of faith, hope, and love are the basis of our world-view and foundation of reconciliation with God through Christ’s death on the cross, not just for some, but for all people, the just and the unjust.

Unlike those who are with Christ “by His Father’s side”, we must look on the death as “total destruction”, or “that our loved ones are lost”.

The loss is on our part.

The first reading from Psalm 30:1-2 mentions the theme of “our lives through the baptized”, “who have died”.

Do some souls go “straight to heaven”? Only those who are with Christ “by His Father’s side”. What powerful friends we have in our beloved dead.

All Souls’ Day is a day to remember, to renew our bond of love with our de- ceased loved ones, and to renew our habit of praying for all who have died.

In so doing, we can be sure that they will intercede for us, they are always present.

Those who are with Christ “by His Father’s side” we should be the brothers and sisters of all consoling of feast days.

The theme for the weekend was focused on the 1 Corinthians 13, including the song “Proof of Your Love” by For King and Country, and that is based on that passage.

The program followed an afternoon of games, met new friends, and re- connected with old friends.

Personally, spending time with the teens over the course of the weekend as a chaperone was incredibly inspiring, and I felt blessed to be a part of it.

Hearing their reflections and in-sights on faith, and witnessing the exuberant joy in all that they did was incredible.

Whether the teens were sharing in small group discussion, singing in Mass or Adoration, or singing and initating random games, it was an absolute joy to witness their love for Christ.

Since those teens came to a leadership weekend with a lot of con-flict that they would already be strong, they were continually impressed with the initiative they took. From creating a beach “around the room” skills to con- tributing to it, we were con- tinually reminded of the weekend…” and “Faith.”

Many of the teens voiced the fact that it is a struggle to go home and face peers and a society that is often ambivalent or disrespectful to faith, but many also voiced the fact that diocesan events like this leadership weekend rejuvenate them and give them the courage to live out their faith.

Time and time again, I heard partici-pants commenting that they felt at home, that this group felt like family – it was a beautiful reminder to me of just how dynamic our fam-i-ly of faith is.

Hearing their reflections and insights on faith, and witnessing the exuberant joy in all that they did was incredible.

Whether the teens were sharing in small group discussion, singing in Mass or Adoration, or singing and initiating random games, it was an absolute joy to witness their love for Christ.

Since those teens came to a leadership weekend with a lot of conflict that they would already be strong, they were continually impressed with the initiative they took. From creating a beach “around the room” skills to contributing to it, we were continually reminded of the weekend…” and “Faith.”

Many of the teens voiced the fact that it is a struggle to go home and face peers and a society that is often ambivalent or disrespectful to faith, but many also voiced the fact that diocesan events like this leadership weekend rejuvenate them and give them the courage to live out their faith.

Time and time again, I heard participants commenting that they felt at home, that this group felt like family – it was a beautiful reminder to me of just how dynamic our family of faith is.

The theme for the weekend was focused on the 1 Corinthians 13, including the song “Proof of Your Love” by For King and Country, and that is based on that passage.

The program followed an afternoon of games, met new friends, and re-connected with old friends.

Personally, spending time with the teens over the course of the weekend as a chaperone was incredibly inspiring, and I felt blessed to be a part of it.

Youth and young adults from St. Stephen’s, Croghan, celebrated that Franciscan heritage most recently by climbing Bald Mountain and praying together the “Canticle of Brother Sun.”

Sister James Marie Kelly: SSJ for 60 years

Known in religion as Sister Marie James, I was christened Eileen Theresa Kelly in St. Mary’s Cathedral, Ogdensburg. I was pre-school age when the parish was transferred to Watertown, so my education was received from the Sisters of St. Joseph at Holy Family School and Institute and the late Heart Academy.

After graduation from high school, I entered the Sisters of St. Joseph and received the religious habit on April 25, 1954. My major pursuit in college was secular studies, and I spent many years teaching math—high school, I entered the Late Heart Academy.

Sisters of St. Joseph at Holy Family School and Institute maintain great loyalty to Notre Dame football, and to my Irish heritage.

The Augustinian senior wins both the driver’s license riding as a passenger on my motorcycle on a major highway.

Through the years, I have had the privilege and responsibility to serve my community on the Leader Board and as a team member. Some light frivolous memories that I treasure are mud volleyball and the Holy Land, a workshop at a ‘Vinyard’ retreat at Niagara Falls, two trips to France, a powerful art experience in d’Avignon, and a vacation with my family in St. Augustine, DC.

Treasure my family, friends, and community. A sense of belonging to groups has enriched my life in so many ways. In addition to the religious community, I have maintained great loyalty to Notre Dame football, and to my Irish heritage.

In order to fulfill these goals, the Office of Evangelization publishes a blog with religious articles, to subject themselves as bewildered as Norman Ellison (Logan Lerman) to whom we primarily try to appeal. With the European phase of World War II reaching its final stages, and American troops rolling ever deeper into Germany, Norman finds that his current orders must be a mix up.

The first video in the “Morality” series was released in October 2014, and a second video released in January 2015. Young adult viewers usually have no problem related to faith. But sometimes they may require accompanying parents.

The film contains problematic content many adults would find troubling. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is R - restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Faithful to their moral principles, many young people share their faith with others.

GIVING
Amelia has been born to Grace and her parents. From the beginning, this lovely photo of Amelia represents God's Masterpiece. How could it be otherwise? You have made us in the image of God, male and female he created them, “in the divine image.” In fact, it is the very essence of our irreplaceable value, and of our incalculable dignity, that human beings embody the theme of the whole Bible. Each of us is a masterpiece of God’s creation. This is not an idle claim, but a solid scriptural truth. In fact, it is the foundation of our identity, of our irreplaceable value, and of our inestimable dignity. How could it be otherwise when we have been created in the image and likeness of the most high God, in the divine image of God? Questions of the most high God, in the image of God. Jesus will go to St. Mary’s school in Ticonderoga. A Perpetual Help Rosary and Benediction. I will Build My Church

The Pontifical Missions Societies of the Diocese of Ogdensburg, Inc.

The theme for World Mission Sunday Nov. 15 is "I will build my church." The story of the Church in Mongolia is the third focus of the Missions of Ogdensburg. A $300,000 grant from the Promotions for World Mission Sunday will help us to continue our effort to build the Church in Mongolia.

By Mary Anne Barmett, SSJ

Please support the Church in Mongolia. Your generosity on World Mission Sunday will reach the mission family in these areas. This year, our mission family in Mongolia is going through difficulties.

You cannot accept or reject Jesus. You cannot influence his plan or his timing. Jesus has a purpose for your life, and he will do his best to accomplish it.

If you have a relationship with Jesus, then you can learn about him. You can pray and read his words. You can take advantage of his gifts.

The Beatitudes:

"Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness." Young people are enthusiastic about change. They realize how good and positive life can be. They want to change the world. They want to be the first ones to make a difference.

"Blessed are the poor in spirit." Young people may and will meet others who bring negative attitudes into their relations. They need to be compassionate and understanding.

"Blessed are peacemakers." Young people will find a real purpose in life. They will not do as others do. They will do what they want to do. They will not be afraid of being rejected.

"Blessed are the persecuted." Why would anyone be persecuted? Because they have a relationship with Jesus. They are following his teachings. They are doing his will.

"Blessed are the peacemakers." Young people will find a real purpose in life. They will not do as others do. They will do what they want to do. They will not be afraid of being rejected.

October is Respect Life Month

The theme for the 2014 observance of Respect Life Month is ‘Each of us as a masterpiece of God’s creation.’

Pope Francis revealed how he ‘envisioned the whole world of the ministry of divine mercy. May his spiritual legacy not be forgotten, but drive us to reflect and act concretely for the good of the church, the family and society,’ he said in a greeting to pilgrims from Poland.
