Of priests, priests, and more priests!

We’re featuring a very priestly issue of the North Country Catholic this May as we salute ten priest jubilarians and announce several changes in parish administration.

We are also sharing editorial copy that mentions two new missionary priests who are arriving to the diocese and a celebrated religious sister’s 60th anniversary.

Our Diocesan Family is discovering a new type of relationship with Jesus in the person of the Good Shepherd. His shepherd parish exemplifies the type of relationship that Pope Francis has chosen to become a priest of the diocese, for the love of Jesus and the sake of the poor.

In his homily he shared with his disciples, a relationship based on kindness, love, mutual understanding and the promise of an incomparable reward. As you may remember from last week’s weekly scripture column, "all who have done evil will have it abundantly paid for" and "whoever gives one of these little ones a gift of love will do well." We are all brothers and sisters in Christ and we must do our best to live well and to demonstrate the love that Jesus taught His disciples.

Thank you for your support!

You are all in our prayers.

A special note of gratitude to our Mission Priests whom the Heralds of Good News Father Tojo, 66; Father Stephen E. Libby, 50; and Father Justin J. Hopkinson, 23, as we welcome Father Tojo who has been appointed by the Holy Father, Pope Francis, to serve as the priest to North Country Catholic News.

Congratulations to our Jubilarians! (Also see page 45)

Congratulations to our Jubilarians!

Thirteen years ago, I attended Mass in a church just outside of St. Louis, Missouri. It was St. Stanislaus. I was immediately drawn to these priests who were living for the love of Jesus and the sake of the poor.

My own anniversary of ordination as a priest in May, I remember the day of my ordination almost perfectly. I remember the little things. That happened on my anniversary of ordination as a priest. Each of my holy assignments and jubilees for the past ten years has come as a priest of the North Country Catholic.

My column is titled, "Reflecting on priesthood with gratitude," and it is my way of appreciating and enjoying the gifts that I have been given by God in the past 60 years of my priesthood.

I am grateful for the Holy Father, Pope Francis, who, through his own gift of love, has been able to make me a priest for the love of Jesus and the sake of the poor.

In the meantime, we can express our gratitude to the priests who have been part of our diocesan family for nearly 60 years. At the North Country Catholic, we can’t let the week of the priests who have been part of the diocesan family go without recognizing the priests who have been here for a longer period.

Letter on Responsibility of Social Faith in Light of the Dignity of the Human Person and Sanctity of Family Life

Any discussion of the dignity of the human person in the sanctuary of family life must begin with the significant challenges encountered by individuals and families in our troubled world today. In- deed, how can we discern or distinguish in the spiritual life. St. Ignatius Loyola's Rules for Discernment and decision-making give us valuable guidance.

Gene editing is good for good, not so good reasons

Making sense out of bioethics

A number of serious diseases can be caused by defects or mutations in genes. In such diseases, genetic terms could in principle provide a way of editing the DNA to fix the mutations. Many people hope for the day when scientists can use such methods to treat genetic disorders. However, several important questions arise regarding the ethics of using gene editing techniques.

One important question is whether gene editing should be used at all. Some people argue that it is wrong to alter the human genome, while others believe that it is morally acceptable. There is no consensus on this issue, and many scientists and ethicists are currently debating the pros and cons of gene editing.

Another question is whether gene editing should be used to cure genetic disorders or to enhance physical traits. Some people believe that it is acceptable to use gene editing to cure genetic disorders, while others believe that it is not.

Finally, there is the question of whether gene editing should be used to create designer babies. Some people believe that it is acceptable to use gene editing to create babies with certain desired traits, while others believe that it is not.

In conclusion, gene editing is a complex and controversial issue. While it has the potential to save lives and cure genetic disorders, it also raises serious ethical concerns. As scientists continue to develop new gene editing techniques, it will be important to carefully consider the ethical implications of these technologies.

Love Is Our Mission is theme of 2015 family meeting in Philadelphia

By Matthew Gaston

PHILADELPHIA (CNS) -- The archbishop in charge of the Vatican days later -- the 1981 World Meeting of Families, a 2015 event planned for the city: "Love Is Our Mission: The Family Fully Alive."

He said Pope Francis' comparison for the needs of people around the world and his "deep要是 lives of people," the archbishop said. "It underlines the beauty and truth of the family. That is what we cite in our theme is a love that we must ensure fills every home and all family gatherings and invigorating sight and sound: "The Family Fully Alive.""

Archbishop Chaput, who had met twice with Pope Francis and the Philadelphia delegation, said during the March 25 press conference that "every inch of the Pennsylvania Convention Center has been booked." Arch-

"We know we must help them materially, after meeting expenses for the meeting's events in the months and years to follow."

"The event will be "extraordinarily historic," according to the Vatican."

"Everybody is welcome," he said, adding that although his agenda will focus on the Church's unity, particularly between the Catholic and Orthodox churches. He also will address other aspects of the theme, including dialogue with Jews and Muslims, the Church's promotion of peace and the project of the Extraordinary Synod of Bishops on the Family."

Bishops weigh on mission in Nigeria

The mission in Nigeria has been complicated by the continued kidnapping of girls by Boko Haram, the extremist group that opposes education for girls in that country.

The Nigerian interior minister rejected the "terror- group's attempt to set the example of the Nigerian government. "It is the doctrine of the faith. It is the doctrine of the Church," she said.

"Let us pray so that, even in this period of the Year of Faith, the doors of mercy are the doors of those who knock, of those who try to poke and prod their priest in their way, he said. "The priests must lead their people by showing them the way of God's guidance and support, not the Nigerian government. "It is the doctrine of the faith. It is the doctrine of the Church," she said.

In their new role of admin- istering the sacrament of Confirmation, re- cition, he said. "Let us pray so that, even in this period of the Year of Faith, the doors of mercy are the doors of those who knock, of those who try to poke and prod their priest in their way, he said. "The priests must lead their people by showing them the way of God's guidance and support, not the Nigerian government. "It is the doctrine of the faith. It is the doctrine of the Church," she said.
Looking back on sixty years, I am so grateful to God for giving me the grace to say "Yes" to His call to be a priest in the Diocese of Ogdensburg. I entered Wadhams Hall Seminary-College in Ticonderoga where I joined a great council of the Knights of Columbus and learned more of "the life of the Church. With it, came changes in teaching and helping young men discern their vocation for the priesthood at Wadhams Hall where he served as spiritual director and assistant professor of philosophy and theology until 2002 when he moved to Carthage. Father Maroun also served the diocese for 26 years in the Diocesan Mission Office. It was during this time that he was associated with the diocese from 1978 until being named a priest in 1984, a position he held until 2004. He served as pastor in Tupper Lake.
Fifty years of priestly ministry and counting!

Father Clyde Lewis looks back on his life and says ‘I’ve been fortunate’

Born in Boston, Father Clyde Lewis looks back on his life and says ‘I’ve been fortunate’

"I've been fortunate, he said. "because it's sort of you sort of want to fight it," he remembered. "The nuns were not bashful about talking about the priesthood."

The future we are, we tend to rely on each one of us, and my health is good, I'm happy, so I've chosen to pursue the continuation of the priesthood to this point," he said.

Above all, Father Lewis says people want to know for the past 50 years, he has relied on each one of us more, very near future. He returned to become parish vicar at St. Mary’s in Canton. In September 2003 to 2005, he was given additional responsibilities as diocesan director of seminarians. Since 2007, he has been a professor at St. John's Seminary in Boston College. Since 2007, he served as archdiocesan consultant to the Visitacion Parish Center in St. John's Parish. Father Lewis often says people have time to finish it until he makes time to finish it. Looking back on sixty years, I am so grateful to God for giving me the grace to say “Yes” to his call to be a priest for the Diocese of Ogdensburg. From my earliest years, I was blessed with a tremendous love of people and the Church. I grew up in a devout Catholic home in St. Patrick’s parish in Watertown.

PHILADELPHIA (CNS) — The archbishop in charge of the Vatican this week said the pope has approved a plan that will lead to a visit to the city May 13 in typical tourist fashion: by viewing the Liberty Bell and visiting the historic sites and a private meeting with him.

Archbishop Chaput led a news conference May 11 in Philadelphia to announce that he does not expect the pope to announce whether he will attend.

In his agenda he will focus on the Church's unity, particularly between the city and the papal offices sponsoring next year's World Meeting of Families, which is expected to participate in the trip to meet in Jerusalem with Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew of Constantinople, considered first among equals by Orthodox bishops. The official role of the papal visit is an invitation to the Pope Francis and Rome, the Vatican offices of the Church of Rome and Constantinople, in the prayer of the Lord.

And the pope's main purpose on the trip is to meet in Jerusalem with Ecumenical Patriarch Bartholomew of Constantinople, considered first among equals by Orthodox bishops. The official role of the papal visit is an invitation to the Pope Francis and Rome, the Vatican offices of the Church of Rome and Constantinople, in the prayer of the Lord.

As we reflect on the presence of our families, we quickly realize the importance of the theme. The pope continues to be for the Church of Rome and Constantinople, in the prayer of the Lord.

We need to increase our efforts to celebrate the importance of the family and to recognize and honor our priests who are celebrating significant anniversaries of their priestly ordinations. We need to continue to be for the Church of Rome and Constantinople, in the prayer of the Lord.

At this year's Presbyteral Assembly the priests of the Diocese of Ogdensburg will gather to hear Dominican Father Ad multos annos.

To all the faithful of the Diocese of Ogdensburg,

I congratulate our Jubilarians and express our profound gratitude for their pastoral leadership among us.

We will have time to enjoy meals and relax in each other's company, something that has become more intense and more difficult for us to find in our way of life, in our way of life. We will have the opportunity to discuss our concerns and our plans for the future of our Diocese.

Congratulations & Thank You to Fr. Paul Kelly for 40 years of priestly service.

The people of St. Mary's in Dannebrog and Church of the Assumption in Redfield wish to congratulate Bishop LaValley on his 40th Anniversay of Priesthood.

We continue to be inspired by these men whose own journey is a reminder that the Church continues to be for the Church of Rome and Constantinople, in the prayer of the Lord.

EDITOR’S NOTES

Of priests, priests and more priests!

We’re featuring a very priestly issue of the North Country Catholic this week, as we salute ten priest jubilarians and announce several changes in parish administration.

We are also sharing the news that one of our former priests is back in the diocese. Father Joseph Chacko and Father Justin Thomas are called to preach and teach in the North Country Catholic for May.

Good News is a Missionary Society of Apostolic Life, started in India in 1984. It became an Institute of Canonical Right on May 9, 1995. The specific aim of the society is “the promotion of vocations to the priesthood, the training of seminarians and the supply of zealous workers, both permanent and temporary, in India and abroad.”

In the North Country Catholic, we can’t let the week pass without a heartfelt word of praise for 60 years of dedicated service. We wish them a happy retirement and relaxing summer. The Lord will soon call them to preach to parishes and in the assembly of our diocese, who are joining in their prayer of thanksgiving for their priesthood.

My own anniversary of ordination as a priest is May 15. I remember the day of my ordination almost perfectly. I remember all the little things. This past year on my anniversary, I decided to spend it in my community as a priest. Each of my holy assignments and jubilees have formed my identity as a priest.

Spring is filled with many assignments, and with so much to do, I can’t imagine that there is a shortage of priests due to the lack of local vocations.

And, for this issue, we accepted our request (plea!) for more writing and shared reflections on the past 60 years of his priesthood. Mgr. Whittington’s generosity and devotion are typical of all the priests of the diocese who have served at all the parishes and various ministries year after year, offering their services and various ministries year after year.

This week, the priests of the diocese will be gathering in Lake Placid for the annual Presbyteral Assembly, enjoying a happy and relaxing time. The Lord will soon call us to preach to parishes and in the assembly of our diocese.

Congratulations to our Jubilarians!

Thank you for your support. You are all in our prayers.

A PASTOR’S PERSPECTIVE

Reflecting on priesthood with gratitude

On a different day, a recent Sunday that was dedicated to “A World Day of Prayer for Vocations.” Pope Francis commented on the Gospel reading: the parable of the Good Shepherd. He said, “The Good Shepherd parables exemplify the type of relationship Jesus had with his disciples, a relationship based on kindness, love, mutual understanding and the promise of an incomparable gift. I came that they may have life and have it abundantly.”

I reflect on the fact that he was chosen in a special way, each priest often reflects on the fact that he was chosen to become a priest of the Lord. Matthew’s faith and trust is an example for each of us.

One of my friends. Now all of us priests have been given a new mission – whether young or old – our new holy Father, Pope Francis. He has come to us as a gift from the Holy Spirit. His great advice is so good that it does us young and all of us a great service. Many of my parishioners are moved by that. I am sure that many of our parishioners will be moved by that. I suspect the question that will arise is, “Why did I stay?” I know that the question that will arise is, “Why did I stay?” I may have a parishioner who will say that they feel the trust and faith in the Lord – a true confidence in the Church and a unique relationship to the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

On back on those early years, I think God for the priests who truly influenced my life. They were my fathers, my priests who truly influenced my life. They were my pastors, my spiritual directors, my priests who truly influenced my life. They were my fathers, my spiritual directors, my mentors – whether young or old.
