Belief seen in respect, service

NAIROBI, KENYA (CNS) - Respect, unity and service are the foundations of a strong family, a solid democracy and a healthy response to the gift of faith - any faith, Pope Francis told the people of Kenya.

Meeting ecumenical and interreligious leaders, celebrating a large outdoor Mass and greeting priests, religious and seminarians in Nairobi Nov. 26, Pope Francis insisted faith means serving one's fellow human beings.

The pope's day began early on the rainy morning with an intimate meeting with 40 representatives of Kenya's Christian, Muslim, Jewish, Sikh and Buddhist communities, as well as with a Masai elder and other leaders of communities that have maintained their traditional African beliefs.

During the meeting in the Vatican nunciature, Pope Francis remembered the terrorist attacks on Kenya's Westgate Mall in 2013, Garissa University College in April and Mandera in July, and urged a common recognition that "the God who we seek to serve is a God of peace."

Tooting our horn... just a bit!

Let’s get through the clichés right at the start. Yes, I know I’m preaching to the choir. Yes, I realize I’m tooting my own horn. But, the stories that fill this week’s North Country Catholic show why our diocesan paper should be welcomed into every Catholic home in the diocese.

We’ll start with Bishop LaValley’s award winning column as he invites us to join him in observing the Jubilee Year of Mercy which starts next week. EVERY Catholic should know about the “many grace-filled opportunities to celebrate God’s mercy (which) will be made available to all the faithful in the North Country, both in our local parishes and at special diocesan celebrations,” the bishop said. “Pope Francis reminds us that the credibility of our Church is at stake.”

You can be sure that these opportunities will receive extensive coverage in the NCC.

This week’s paper is also filled with stories and photos of extraordinary people who comprise our family of faith – consecrated religious, Knights of Columbus and Catholic kids.

We’re also featuring a delightful addition to our “Living Stones... Foundations of Our Faith” series written by the granddaughter of Lottie Foisy of Fort Covington.

It is important for us to be aware of the sacrifices and faith-filled devotion of our ancestors who built up our church with little more than “blood, sweat and tears.” It’s especially gratifying when you can see that they are men and women you’d love to join for a cup of coffee! During the coming year, we will continue to keep you informed about all the grace-filled events of this Year of Mercy, those led by the Holy Father and those happening in our back yard. We will join in the preparations for the INSPIRE gathering next September and keep up with all the efforts towards realizing our Christ-led, Christ-fed, hope-filled diocesan vision.

All of this is a long and winding way to say that a subscription to the NCC might be a perfect gift for those Catholics on your list who care deeply about the church in the North Country. (See page 9) We will indeed be bringing the message of Christmas into homes, week after week, all year long!

Advent message: We are baptized people

Advent – I baptized a baby on the First Sunday of Advent and it turned out to be a perfect time for a Baptism. Each year as Advent begins, we celebrate again our time of preparation to bring Jesus more completely into our lives at Christmas. Advent opens our hearts again to the coming of Jesus to our world – just as this baby was born into his family.

So, let’s talk about Baptism, the time that our Catholic Church brings Jesus into our lives sacramentally. This sacrament brings a unique change into each of our lives as we become members of Christ’s Church, even as infants. When understood properly, our destiny is changed. The Sacrament of Baptism marks each of us as a disciple of Jesus. Adults who are baptized become disciples of Jesus, disciples with a mission.

Their mission as a disciples of Jesus is to make this world a better place by living out their Baptism.

The message of Advent – as we enter Advent again – is to recognize who we are. We are baptized people. This is God’s message to us: live like a baptized person. The way we live should indicate to others we are baptized people.

The first step is to realize that in Baptism, we become adopted children of God. This child indeed is born again. It is a good way to look at our Sacrament of Baptism... So just as being born into this human world, we are born again in Baptism to God’s family. This makes each individual new and unique; we now have a unique relationship with God.

Consider this – the apostles asked Jesus to teach them how to pray. Without hesitation Jesus teaches them what we call the Lord’s Prayer. Jesus taught them the Our Father.

For those people at that time this was a rather different way of thinking of God. They would never think that God would be like that close to them – close like a Father. So Jesus teaches all of us in this way that God wants a close, intimate relationship with his people, that, in Baptism, God becomes our Father and we become adopted children of God. Our Father is a Father who cares for us, a Father who longs to guide us, a Father who wants to be part of our lives even from the time of infancy.

Advent is a time each year to bring new life into our plans toward holiness. Jesus teaches us that Baptism is our call to holiness. Baptism is the start of our journey to sainthood. Life is filled with questions of how to live a good life, of how to live a holy life. The best guide for this is Jesus. In Baptism our relationship with Jesus becomes close as adopted children of God and brothers and sisters of Jesus. We can and should then become a friend of Jesus, who wants to be our friend. Jesus is our incarnate Savior who walked this earth and lived among us, died for us and rose again to new life. We have someone who knows us so well; he is truly our guide to holiness.

The very ritual of Baptism demonstrates to us our call to follow Jesus to holiness. St. Paul makes this clear when he reminds us that in Baptism we die with Christ and with Jesus we rise again to new life. So in Baptism we begin that resurrected life with Jesus and we do this best by living our Baptism. Baptism, like all of our sacraments, is a celebration. Our sacramental celebrations are moments of new life and peace. There is a deep joy that fills our hearts with love and we experience with happiness that the love that God is with us – always.

Catherine Doherty wrote this about celebration: “Celebration is the song of praise coming from the heart of a human being and going to the heart of God.”
Jubilee of Mercy

"Jesus Christ is the face of the Father's mercy." With these words, Pope Francis announced to the world there is to be an Extraordinary Jubilee Year of Mercy. In the Old Testament, the Book of Leviticus tells us that the Jubilee is a time of forgiveness of sins and universal pardon. This sacred time occurred every 50 years when slaves and prisoners would be freed, all debts forgiven and the mercies of God would be especially manifest.

This "Year of the Lord" has been celebrated in the Church down through the ages every 50 or, in recent centuries, every 25 years; the last was in the year 2000. This upcoming Jubilee Year, occurring outside of that chronological framework, is considered "Extraordinary."

Beginning on our diocesan patronal Feast Day, the Solemnity of the Immaculate Conception, December 8, 2015, the Diocese of Ogdensburg will joyfully join Catholics throughout the world in focusing our prayerful attention these next several months on the boundless mercy of our God. The Jubilee Year concludes with the celebration of the Solemnity of the Lord on Nov. 20, 2016.

Many grace-filled opportunities to celebrate God’s mercy will be made available to all the faithful in the North Country, both in our local parishes and at special diocesan celebrations.

These will be occasions when we come together as a family of faith to celebrate our God's unconditional love and limitless mercy and then, as the Holy Father urges, "we can go out to every man and woman, bringing the goodness and tenderness of God" to others. In this way, we can be living sources of water from which others can drink, introducing them to the healing presence of Jesus Christ, building up our parish families with Living Stones. Pope Francis reminds us that the credibility of our Church is at stake.

As a local Church, we will mark the beginning of the Jubilee Year with the Opening of the Cathedral Holy Door of Mercy at the 11am Mass on Sunday, December 13th, the Third Sunday of Advent. This will be followed by several Diocesan and parish celebrations in the days, weeks, and months ahead, including Holy Hours of Adoration, Special Days of Prayer, the Sacrament of Penance, Prayer Rallies, Pilgrimages (to Italy, St. Anne’s Shrine in Isle la Motte, Vermont; and specified Diocesan sites), the Corpus Christi Eucharistic Procession, the Vocation Summit—INSPIRE: Call to Love—in Lake Placid, and much more. Please be sure to check our diocesan website, your parish bulletins and the North Country Catholic for the calendar of events.

During this time of spiritual renewal, as individuals and as families, we can reawaken our consciences and enter more deeply into the heart of the Gospel. In a particular way, it is an occasion for us to learn about mercy and experience forgiveness in our families.

I encourage our moms and dads to spend time with their children, teaching and reflecting upon the Corporal and Spiritual Works of Mercy with them. This can be a wonderful opportunity to strengthen faith formation in our families.

St. Paul wrote the Romans: “Where sin increased, grace abounded all the more.” (5:20) I am reminded of the Holy Father’s response when asked to describe himself. He said, simply, “I am a sinner.”

Jubilee Year of Mercy begins Dec. 8, patronal feast day of the diocese

Aren’t we all in the same boat? Because each of us is a sinner, we all need the patience and compassion of God. God’s mercy is a force that overcomes everything. It has that kind of power. Mercy is always greater than any sin.

My sisters and brothers, this can be a graced moment in time for you and me for reflection on our attitudes about God’s mercy when it comes to our own participation in the Sacrament of Reconciliation. As St. John Paul II wrote: Sin is an integral part of the truth about the human person. (Reconciliation et Paenitentia, 13). “If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.” (1Jn. 1:8-9) But this sin is countered by the truth of divine love. That’s what we celebrate, that’s what we embrace!

This is a time, too, when we can examine the words and deeds we use that might reveal inner tension when it comes to the actual practice of mercy. Do they speak of a rigid, revengeful, and judgmental temperament rather than the tender, understanding and inclusive attitude that reflects Jesus’ own approach to listening and teaching?

We turn to our Patroness, the Virgin Mary, the Immaculate Conception and the Mother of Mercies, joining our prayers with that of the Holy Father. “Let us live this Jubilee intensely, begging the Father to forgive our sins and to bathe us in His merciful indulgence,” never forgetting that God’s mercy endures forever!

Dear Friends,

Why not join me and other pilgrims on a journey of a lifetime—a pilgrimage to Italy during the Extraordinary Jubilee Year of Mercy? A highlight of our travels will be four days in Rome where we will enter St. Peter’s Basilica through the Holy Doors and also visit the other three major basilicas. We hope to have an audience with Pope Francis and tours of the Sistine Chapel, the Coliseum, the Vatican Museum, as well as visit many other spectacular places holding sacred and cultural treasures. Our pilgrimage will, also, see us at such awesome locations as Venice, Florence, Siena, Orvieto and Assisi.

A Holy Year offers unique opportunities for spiritual growth. This Holy Year Pilgrimage to Italy promises to be a time for prayer, an increase in faith, and a whole lot of enjoyment for all the pilgrims. The frosting on the cake: gaining the plenary indulgence associated with such a pilgrimage during a Holy Year.

I hope you’ll join us for what promises to be an exciting and spiritually enriching time together.

Faithfully yours in Christ,

Bishop Terry R. LaValley

AuSable K of C donation honors Sr. Yvonne Therese

AUSABLE FORK - The Knights of Columbus Council #2301 paid tribute to St. Joseph Sister Yvonne Therese Cusson with a check for $1,500 to the Missionary Childhood Association.

Sister Yvonne spent 15 years in AuSable Forks teaching in Holy Name School and in Holy Name Center upon the closing of the school. During that time, she educated the youth about the needs of the developing countries and how they could help the children through prayer and sacrificial donations.

Since AuSable Forks is located in apple country, Sister Yvonne sold apples in the Fall to send money to the Missionary Childhood Association.

Through the prayers and sacrificial donations encouraged by Sister Yvonne, the support reached clinics caring for the sick and dying children, orphanages providing a place of safety and shelter, schools offering education from kindergarten through high school. All of this took place in 1,150 mission dioceses in Africa, Asia, the Americas, Oceania and Europe where the poorest of the poor receive an education and health care, while experiencing the loving heart of Jesus through the service of priests, religious and lay faithful.

Sister Yvonne Therese is now residing at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse in Watertown as she continues her support of the missions in her physical suffering.

"Her ready smile reflects the Heart of Jesus even as her voice is being replaced with a writing tablet," said St. Joseph Sister Mary Ellen Brett, diocesan mission director. "We know that the children who have received her generosity of spirit in days past are, in faraway places, praying for her as she embraces life's sufferings.

"Sister Yvonne Therese is showing us the connectedness of all God's people," Sister Mary Ellen said "We are all grateful!"

The faith-filled life of Lottie Foisy

By Kathleen Lauzon
Contributing writer

FORT COVINGTON - "My Year as President of St Mary's Rosary Society" January 3, 1952.
This one-year journal kept by my grandmother, Lottie Foisy, gives quite a picture of life in St. Mary's of the Fort Parish.

Did our Lord visit the dives in his time on earth, or did he favor the kings and queens? We do know he was in favor of a little wine.

From the journal of Lottie Foisy

That year, 90 Rosary Society members and nine priests attended their annual banquet! It was held at the "International Hotel" (better known as the "Half-Way House", the "hot spot of Dundee").

To quote her journal: "Did our Lord visit the dives in his time on earth, or did he favor the kings and queens? We do know he was in favor of a little wine."

Grandma was very down to earth and had a very personal relationship with both Our Lord and His Holy Mother. So many times she wrote: "Queen of the most Holy rosary guide my heart and mind". Again: "Queen of the Holy Rosary protect us from this cold and sleet".

Lottie Philomena was born in Fort Covington on Feb. 4, 1902 to Cecelia and Augustus Haines. On Feb. 15, 1926 she married Hector Foisy (a cousin of St. Brother Andre). During the time of The Great Depression, they welcomed five children as gifts from God.

She worked outside of her home all her life at the Daley Moccasin Factory and later at Tru Stitch in Malone (certainly not easy work). She died in December 1963.

Her obituary from the Fort Covington Sun read in part:

"She was a grand person, a very attractive woman, possessing an equally attractive personality and disposition, a joy to her family, her friends and all who knew her."

Grandma loved flowers and always had a beautiful garden. Her last sacrifice on earth was her request to have no flowers at her wake and funeral. All for the glory of God and His Mother.

She was always ready to help anyone in Fort Covington in need.

In Jack Boyle's book: Sunset on the Tracks, he comments that his mother, Mae Boyle "loved visiting Lottie"... and "often asked her opinions on various matters affecting her family life."

In Grandma's journal she talks about going to the Convent to help mend clothes for the poor. "This week 70 articles of clothing need to be mended."

Indeed in the book, Sisters of the North Country, Sister Sally Witt, SSJ talks about their mission at St Mary's in Fort Covington. Mother Everista, Sister Rosalia and Sister Leo "used one room to gather clothing for those who would need it."

Clothing the naked was only one of the works of mercy Grandma (and many others) did out of love. Her heart and soul belonged to serving God, His church and His people.

She wrote this prayer for her family: "I thank God He kept me well till my children all grew up. I prayed very hard for that. So now I just pray that His will be done." Such faith and trust.

There is another similar prayer written by her found in her journal: "Our Lady of the Holy Rosary pray for our children. Ask your Son to bless their marriages. Any vocation they may choose means sacrifice. May they have faith, courage and health."

For Grandma, being a wife and a mother was truly a vocation.

We are proud to say that now five generations of our family have received the sacrament of holy Matrimony on the same exact spot in St Mary's Church. Lottie has left an incredible legacy for us.

Perhaps one of her greatest material gifts to us is the seven-piece baptismal ensemble she hand made in time for her first child's baptism in March, 1927. Four generations have been baptized wearing this beloved outfit; it is a family treasure which she specifically bequeathed to the "family who uses it the most". And so the tradition continues.

Grandma's house has changed ownership many times. But her church is still our church. We have a rich inheritance here at St Mary's. Our roots are deep. Her devotion continues to be felt and practiced. We have so much to be grateful for. May Our Blessed Mother help us instill this love and dedication in many generations to come.

An invitation

The North Country Catholic continues a series of stories about outstanding parishioners in the diocese from years gone by.

The series is inspired by Bishop LaValley's call for "Living Stones" in our parishes, people whose service outside their church reflects what happens inside the sacred walls. The subjects are men and women who in effect were "stones" within their parishes.

We hope to make this fully representative of our parishes, but we can't do it without your help. Are you aware of somebody who was very active at promoting the faith in your parish years ago and who equally set a good example by his or her service to the community? Perhaps it was somebody in your family, possibly a parent or grandparent.

You are invited to research and write about your nominee. If writing is not your thing, tell us about your nominee, providing whatever material you may have, and we will take care of the rest. Good photos of the nominee are welcomed, of course.

Submissions may be emailed to mkilian@rcdony.org or mailed to The North Country Catholic, Post Office Box 326, Ogdensburg, NY 13669.
Praising God for all Catholic schools, especially St. Mary’s in Canton

I just wanted to pass along what happened to us last Week. My husband has been fighting an infection in his arm for a few weeks. Following is what happened to us that I posted on my Facebook page.

The neatest things just happened. Brian and I got a knock on the door, and one of the 5th grade students from St Mary’s Catholic School was standing there with one of the teachers. They had a quart jar of homemade soup. The note that accompanied it said: Dear friends, we present you with a fine jar of St. Mary’s Prayer Soup. We hope that it will lift your spirits and bring you good health. We enlisted the aid of St Mary’s School families to bring in their choices of ingredients to make our creation. Then we peeled, chopped and diced them to prepare our hearty soup. We hope that it is just the ticket to cheer you! The students wrote prayers to send your way. Know that we will be keeping you in our prayers. It listed all the ingredients in the soup. The prayer on Brian’s note said for the one who receives this soup, may you be blessed by these words. “May the Lord keep your heart warm when the heater has gone out and keep this child of God happy.”

Our hearts are BURSTING with emotions. We are so blessed to have a church and school family surrounding us with the love of God. Praising God for Catholic Schools and especially for St Marys Catholic School in Canton NY.

Pope Francis in Africa

Arriving in Kenya, pope says
tolerance, respect are keys to peace

NAIROBI, KENYA (CNS) -- With security concerns looming over his visit, Pope Francis arrived in Kenya Nov. 25 urging tolerance and respect among people of different religions and different ethnic groups.

Pope Francis was greeted at Nairobi's Jomo Kenyatta International Airport by a small group of dancers, women ululating and members of the diplomatic corps.

In his speech, the pope referred to as a slum. It features tiny dwellings made of cinder block, tin or reclaimed boards.

The homes are jumbled together with dirt roads and paths running between them. Residents were thrilled not only that the pope would take time to visit them, but that the government fixed several of the roads, installed some street lights and un-blocked some water pipes in preparation for the pope's visit.

Exact figures vary, but between 55 percent and 65 percent of Nairobi's population lives in the slums. Many have no drinking water, electricity, sewage system or regular garbage collection.

Irish Mercy Sister Mary Killeen, who has ministered in Kenya for three decades, told Pope Francis that fires - especially from kerosene lamps and stoves - and floods are a danger. Evictions are frequent since the people do not own the land on which their shacks are built.

Ugandans give pope exuberant welcome as he urges unity

KAMPALA, UGANDA (CNS) - Witnessing to what is true, good and beautiful -- even if that witness is motivated by different faiths -- brings people together and strengthens a nation, Pope Francis said.

Arriving in Uganda from Kenya Nov. 27, Pope Francis was greeted by a number of dance troupes playing drums as well as traditional horns and stringed instruments. Many of the dancers wore rattles on their calves, and some of the men wore the skins of the spotted hyena around their waists.

While the pope fulfilled the protocol duty of reviewing the military troops, he could not pass by the dance troupes without thanking them, especially the children.

Pope Francis went from the airport to the State House in Entebbe, where he immediately drew people's attention to the Ugandan Martyrs - 23 Anglicans and 22 Catholics - executed by King Mwanga II of Buganda between November 1885 and January 1887.

"They remind us of the importance that faith, moral rectitude and commitment to the common good have played and continue to play in the cultural economic and political life of this country," the pope told President Yoweri Museveni, other government officials and members of the diplomatic corps.

Pope draws attention to Africa as a whole, not just its problems

On the third evening of his three-nation trip to Africa, Pope Francis said he wanted to draw attention to Africa as a whole, and not just to the continent's problems. He praised Uganda particularly for welcoming refugees and allowing them to work.

"Our world, caught up in wars, violence and various forms of injustice, is witnessing an unprecedented movement of peoples," he said. "How we deal with them is a test of our humanity, our respect for human dignity and above all our solidarity with our brothers and sisters in need."

As he did earlier in Kenya, the pope also urged African leaders to dedicate themselves to ensuring education and employment for their young people, the majority of the continent's population.

Choice is clear, pope says: Either protect or destroy the environment

By Cindy Wooden
Catholic News Service

NAIROBI, KENYA (CNS) - The international community is facing a stark and serious choice, "either to improve or to destroy the environment," Pope Francis said, referring to the Paris Climate Conference.

"It would be said, and I dare say even catastrophic, were special interests to prevail over the common good," the pope said Nov. 26 during a visit to the headquarters in Nairobi of the U.N. Environment Program and U.N. Habitat, an agency concerned with urban planning.

Under the auspices of the United Nations, the Paris conference Nov. 30-Dec. 11 has the aim of achieving a legally binding and universal agreement on measures to stem climate change and protect the environment.

Pope Francis spoke at length about the importance of the conference during his visit to the U.N. offices, and his top aides had a meeting the evening before with Kenya's environment minister and other officials to discuss their hopes and strategies for the Paris meeting.

On his way into the meeting with U.N. officials and diplomats accredited to the two U.N. agencies, Pope Francis planted a tree.

While his speech contained ample quotes from his June encyclical on the environment, the pope also referred several times to the significance of planting trees and borrowed several lines from a speech he made in Bolivia in July to a variety of grassroots movements advocating for justice for the poor.

In fact, just as in the encyclical, "Laudato si'," the pope insisted in Nairobi that there is a close connection between environmental destruction and unjust economic and political policies that penalize the poor.

Pope Francis called for 'the adoption of a culture of care - care for oneself, care for others, care for the environment - in the place of a culture of waste, a throwaway culture where people use and discard themselves, others and the environment.'

"We are faced with a great political and economic obligation to rethink and correct the dysfunctions and distortions of the current model of development," he said, especially because of their emphasis on exploiting natural resources, but not sharing the benefits with local communities.

Planting a tree, he said, is an "invitation to continue the battle against phenomena like deforestation and desertification," as well as an "incentive to keep trusting, hoping and above all working in practice to reverse all those situations of injustice and deterioration which we currently experience."

The Paris conference, the pope said, "represents an important stage in the process of developing a new energy system which depends on a minimal use of fossil fuels, aims at energy efficiency and makes use of energy sources with little or no carbon content."

Pope Francis told those gathered at Nairobi's U.N. office that he hopes the Paris conference will result in a "global and transformational agreement based on the principles of solidarity, justice, equality and participation; an agreement which targets three complex and interdependent goals: lessening the impact of climate change, fighting poverty and ensuring respect for human dignity."

To achieve a comprehensive and fair agreement, Pope Francis said, real dialogue is necessary among politicians, scientists, business leaders and representatives of civil society, including the poorest sectors of those societies.

Pope Francis insisted that human beings are capable of changing course, choosing what is good and making a fresh start. The key, he said, will be to put the economy and politics at the service of people, who are called to live in harmony with the rest of creation.

"Far from an idealistic utopia, this is a realistic prospect which makes the human person and human dignity the point of departure and the goal of everything," he said.

A new respect for human dignity and for the environment are part of the same attitude of giving value to all that God made, he said.

Pope Francis called for "the adoption of a culture of care - care for oneself, care for others, care for the environment - in the place of a culture of waste, a throwaway culture where people use and discard themselves, others and the environment."

The idea of a "throwaway culture" is not simply a strong figure of speech, he said, pointing to "new forms of slavery, human trafficking, forced labor, prostitution and trafficking in organs."

"Many lives, many stories, many dreams have been shipwrecked in our day," the pope said. "We cannot remain indifferent in the face of this. We have no right."
SCRIPTURE REFLECTIONS

Let's not waste these precious days

Advent is a joyous time for hope and renewal. Despite the fear and uncertainty which distracts us from the joy of waiting for a small child to come again with His love.

So let's not waste these precious days. The prophet Baruch in the first reading challenges us: “Up, Jerusalem! Stand upon the heights—look to the east and see your children gathered from the East and from the West at the word of the Holy One...”

As those in exile prepare to return to Jerusalem, Baruch urges them to (figuratively) level the desert road for a speedy journey.

“For God has commanded that every lofty mountain be made low, and that the age-old depths and gorges be filled to level ground, that Israel may advance secure in the glory of God”.

The theme is repeated in John the Baptist’s preaching of the need for repentance. He uses the words of Isaiah: “Prepare the way of the Lord, make straight his paths. Every valley shall be filled and every mountain and hill shall be made low”.

How can we apply this ancient message to our lives? We have our work cut out for us!

We need to reflect on every obstacle there is in our lives that would prevent us from growing daily in Jesus’ saving grace.

The grace we await on Christmas is very much bound up with the saving work of the Cross and the Resurrection.

Jesus was born into a life of sacrifice and suffering for sin. In order that His life not be in vain, we must respond in loving gratitude by cleansing our souls through fasting, almsgiving, and the sacrament of Reconciliation.

Look to your parish bulletin and your diocesan Catholic paper for times and places.

Pay special attention to the words of St. Paul in his advice to the Philippians: “I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work in you will continue to complete it until the day of Christ Jesus.”

He also prays that their love will increase “ever more and more in knowledge...to discern what is of value”.

We must not let the forces of evil that threaten our world spoil the coming days of our Christmas.

Parents and sex education

While some parents might be happy to avoid the awkward conversations that arise around human sexuality by allowing the school system to provide their children’s sex education, it is nonetheless important for parents to recognize that they are the most significant teachers and models for their own children as they mature sexually.

Instilling a healthy attitude about sexuality in young people involves a variety of considerations, including conveying a proper sense of constraints and boundaries. These boundaries arise organically through the virtue of chastity, by which a person acquires the ability to renounce self, to make sacrifices and to wait generously in consideration of loving fidelity toward a future spouse, out of self-respect, and out of fidelity to God. This critical process of developing sexual self-mastery is an area where parents are particularly well suited to help their children.

Parents, for their part, are the ones responsible for teaching their children about generosity, and how to impart valuable and important personal and spiritual qualities to future generations.

As husband and wife seek to live out these truths of their human sexuality, they impart valuable and important lessons to their children about generosity, unselfish living, and chastity, where that chastity is seen as the spiritual energy capable of defending love from the perils of selfishness and aggressiveness.

Parents are in the unique position of being able to model for their children a healthy example of sexual integration, generosity, and self-mastery within marriage. Under these circumstances, parents also convey to their children the beautiful message that human sexuality reaches far beyond the biological, and touches on the most intimate core of the human person, particularly as experienced in his or her capacity for personal and radical gift to another in marriage, faithful even unto death.

THE HUNGER GAMES: MOCKINGJAY, PART 2

By John Muiderer
Catholic News Service

With “The Hunger Games: Mockingjay, Part 2” (Lionsgate), one of the most successful cinema franchises of recent times reaches a surprisingly glum finale. Given that the series is founded on the idea of a dystopian society where young people are sacrificed in the gladiatorial tourneys of the title, perhaps the sober tone of this fourth and final chapter in the screen saga is only appropriate.

Still, while a restrained mood may be fitting, there’s no denying that the film’s grimly realistic, though largely bloodless, portrayal of combat makes the last stretches of its heroine’s long odyssey something of a slog. The wide audience for whom this briefly hor­ribly real world, “Vanity Fair” magazine who young people are sacrificed and final chapter in the

For the magazine’s December cover story,Orth visited several countries and interviewed dozens of people with strong devotional ties to the Mary— including from those who claim to have seen her, those who believe her intercession has healed them and those seeking her spiritual guidance and intercession.

In the magazine’s Washington office Nov. 24, Orth, widow of Tim Russert, moderator of NBC’s “Meet the Press,” said what made the biggest impression on her while interviewing people for the article was Mary’s universal appeal across diverse cultures.

“It was a huge journey all over the world,” she said, noting that what particularly stands out after a year of visiting Marian devotional sites in Bosnia-Herzegovina, France, Mexico, Egypt and Rwanda is that Mary is the “hope and solace of so many people including Muslims.”

The Muslim appreciation of Mary, as a “holy woman of God,” she told Catholic News Service, “is a bridge that ought to be explored,” especially in this time of strife caused by religious extremism.

Orth, a practicing Catholic, who certainly knew about Mary before this assignment, said she learned a great deal from talking with scholarly experts and reading mystics who wrote about the life of Mary but whose observations didn’t make it into the article.

She came away with a “more personal relationship” with Mary than an intellectual one, saying she understood Mary more as a person after talking with so many who are devoted to her.

Orth pointed out that very little is known about Mary from the Bible, but as her story reveals, the lack of details about Mary has not stopped people from reaching out to her in prayer and devotion as a way to better understand and approach God. “The number of people who use her as their guide and their way to a higher meaning, that was impressive across the board,”

Looking ahead to Christmas

From the Director’s Desk
Sister Mary Ellen Brett, SSJ, Diocesan Mission Director

As we prepare to celebrate Christmas, offering joy and love especially to the children in our lives, we know that so many children in the world live a different reality. These vulnerable little ones too often experience dire poverty and immense suffering, endure violence or forced labor, face human trafficking and other challenges beyond their age and innocence.

But there’s hope in Africa, in the small nation of Swaziland – and it can be part of it as Christmas comes! Religious Sisters at St. Philip’s Home in Manzini are making a difference for the increasing number of children who are orphans from the HIV/AIDS epidemic there. Left with no parents, these children are forced to be head of their households, caring for their brothers and sisters. Jobless, unable to attend school, they see no hope on the horizon – until they come to St. Philip’s and find a “home”!

Through your prayers and generous help to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith / Missionary Childhood Association, the children are fed and clothed, receive medical care and an education. Most importantly, they find listening hearts, loving care – and hope, hope from the Good News of Jesus’ birth, and from the reality of His love alive in the work and witness of the Sisters caring for them. Sisters who are helping them get ready for Christmas right now.

“Children are a gift,” Pope Francis tells us. Your gifts to the children in mission countries this Christmas are your prayers and your generous help. A gift of $125 will provide care for one child at St. Philip’s. Perhaps you can offer that amount or something towards it, maybe $50 or $25. Whatever you provide will be most appreciated, and make you a special angel of mercy and love to these children half a world away.

Know that those you help in the Missions remember you in prayer. I too promise prayers, throughout Advent and especially at Christmas for the “gift” that you are to one another and to the world.

please remember “The Society for the Propagation of the Faith” when writing or changing your Will.

D.L. CALARCO
Funeral Home, Inc.
135 Keyes Avenue
Watertown • 782-4910
As I look back on these past 75 years, I must confess that they were not easy, but most rewarding.

I come from a family of eight, second to the youngest. My father was listed in the book of “Early Immigrants” as the First Banana Wholesaler in Toronto, Canada. My mother was at home, as she had much to do. She always went to Daily Mass and we said the family rosary.

I entered the Community wanting to work with the children of St. Patrick’s Home. After two years of novitiate training at the Motherhouse, I was assigned to St. Patrick’s Home. Another Sister and I had the care of 50-60 boys between the ages of 2 and 15.

After nine years, I was sent to open a kindergarten class in Port Henry. The following year, I went back to St. Patrick’s Home to care for the boys. At the time, I was also teaching a large first grade at Holy Family School in Watertown. In those days, we had no car, so we walked to school.

In later years, I was asked to be principal, superior, and full time teacher at St. Mary’s School in Ticon-deroga and later at St. Mary’s School in Massena.

Again, I was asked to return to the Children’s Home. I had been at the Children’s Home, for 19 years altogether. We had a boy who became a Jesuit priest, a Brother Franciscan, who is in Albany and two Sisters of St. Joseph.

Now in my “recycling years”, I keep in touch via email with many of our former Children’s Home residents. One of our girls who worked for Delta Air gave me a trip to Hawaii. I spent time with her, at her home in Medford, Oregon. We spent time with one of our former boys, who took us to his cottage on the Pacific Ocean. The children from St. Patrick’s Home have given me trips to Florida, Indiana, and So. Dakota. I saw a Passion Play, Jackson Hole, and Yellowstone Park. I also saw my first rodeo.

For my 60th Jubilee, the residents, now adults of various ages, gave me a party to which over 100 people came, from the east and west coasts, as well as the South. It was a joy to see them, and hear about their families. The Watertown Daily Times gave us great coverage of the event.

At this point in my retirement, I have more time to pray, and to help with the other infirmary Sisters.

Since I was blessed with artistic talent, I am able to help decorate the infirmary each month. I have put many a puzzle together, mounting some on infirmary walls.
