Missionary spirit: giving witness

VATICAN CITY (CNS) - Missionary spirit is manifested by preaching love, humanity and faith through one's witness and not through proselytism, Pope Francis said.

"Faith in Jesus Christ is shared first through "witness then with words," the pope said Dec. 2 at his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square.

The pope dedicated his audience to reflecting on his trip to Africa Nov. 25-30 when he visited Kenya, Uganda and the Central African Republic.

He said that his first stop, Kenya, was a country "that represented the global challenge of our time" in presenting a "model of development" that cares for creation in a "balanced, inclusive and sustainable" way.

However, he said, there also is a noticeable situation of "wealth and misery" existing side by side.

"This is a scandal, not only in Africa but also here, everywhere," the pope said. "Coexistence between wealth and misery is a scandal, a shame for humanity."

Religious Retirement Appeal

The annual Religious Retirement collection "Share in the Care" will take place in all parishes of the diocese this weekend.

In anticipation of the appeal, Atonement Sister Ellen Donahue has prepared a report illustrating the importance of the collection.

Currently there are more than 33,000 Religious over age 70 living in the United States. By 2024, retired Religious (most of whom worked for small stipends through their lives) will outnumber wage-earning Religious by four to one.

FAREWELL TO DEAR FRIENDS

Bishop Terry R. LaValley presided at a celebration of thanksgiving and farewell for the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart Nov. 29 at St. Mary's Cathedral, honoring all the members of the religious congregation for their years of service in the Diocese of Ogdensburg. With the departure of Sisters Mary Teresa LaBrake and Joan McElwain for Philadelphia this month, over 140 years of Grey Nun ministry and 94 years of Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart ministry will come to an end. Bishop LaValley thanked the sisters for their service to the people of the diocese as educators, health care and social workers and pastoral ministers. Several Grey Nuns returned to Ogdensburg for the event including, Sister Rita Frances Brady, left; and Sister Mary Looby, who most recently served in the Malone area. See pages 3 and 16 for more coverage.

EDITOR'S NOTE

Showing our thanks for our Sisters

When Catholics in the city of Ogdensburg, make their donations to the annual Religious Retirement collection this weekend, I'm willing to bet that most will have one particular Religious order in mind.

The timing of the appeal coincides with the heartbreaking departure of the last two Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart, a religious order which has served our community for generations.

Sister Mary Teresa LaBrake and Sister Julia McElwain are joining Sister Rita Frances Brady and other dear friends of ours at the Holy Redeemer D'Youville assisted living facility in Philadelphia.

Earlier this fall, I talked with Sister Julia Lanigan, president of the Grey Nuns, who told me that the Holy Redeemer facility is designed for those who have been living independently but are on the verge of needing assistance as well as the sisters who can help them.

Fifty sisters, four at a time, have moved there since September.

And they are all settled, the Grey Nuns will look for office space to relocate the general offices from their longtime home in Yardley, Penn.

The motherhouse was sold in 2012 and leased back for five years to allow time for relocation.

Sister Julia said the difficult decisions had to be made because of the decrease in number of sisters and aging demographic.

There are now 110 Grey Nuns with a median age of 79.

“We need to make plans now for the future,” Sister Julia said.

“Don't have years and years left with sisters who can manage big properties, serve as landlords and oversee large numbers of properties.

“The decision to leave Ogdensburg was a hard one,” she said, “but so many factors have to go into a decision. It's so hard to leave a place that's near and dear to our hearts for so many years.”

And, for us, it's hard to say goodbye to these women who are near and dear to our hearts.

At least we know that we have a concrete way to show our appreciation to the Grey Nuns and every other religious order with Sisters and Brothers who have lived their lives in service to Catholics in the North Country.

When we are asked to Share in the Care this coming weekend, we need to remember that we will be caring for people we actually know and love.

A PASTOR’S PERSPECTIVE

Sacrament of Penance in Year of Mercy

“Neither do I condemn you, go and sin no more.”

I am certain that you know the story of Jesus and the woman who had sinfulness, of our failings, in no way cancels our holiness. Through our Baptism, God continues to be our Savior and continues to be part of our lives, part of all that we are.

Christ continues to say to us, “Neither do I condemn you, go and sin no more.”

As a priest, I have been charged to confess and teaching. He wants us to realize the importance of the message of God's Mercy for our Catholic Church. So we can see what Pope Francis is joining Jesus in teaching, “Neither do I condemn you, go and sin no more.”

Today, I would like to speak with you about God’s mercy as brought to us in the Sacrament of Penance. I think this is important in the time of Advent as many of you prepare for your Christmas Confession.

As a priest, I have been chosen to minister the Mercy of God in this Sacrament of Penance. I find the questions and concerns about the Sacrament of Penance that I receive so interesting. However, I go to confession myself so I think I know the challenges of this sacrament – and also the experience of receiving the glorious grace of God that comes through this wonderful sacrament. I know the power of being a forgiven sinner.

My prayer today is that each person who approaches me in confession will experience the peace and love of God through the Sacrament of Penance.

Now, I would like to share with you some things about the reception of this important sacrament. The preparation before receiving this Sacrament of Penance is truly an important part of this experience. Our time of prayer before approaching the priest is a moment to realize again our own personal holiness, our own goodness.

We are baptized people – we are a blessed people in the Lord. The recognition of our sinfulness, of our failings, in no way cancels our holiness. Through our Baptism, God continues to be our Savior and continues to be part of all that we are.

Accepting God’s forgiveness, God’s Mercy, God’s love, God’s place in my life. I come celebrating that God’s love and Mercy.

So, how do I approach this Sacrament of Penance – this time of Confession? Each confession is my time to celebrate God’s forgiveness, God’s Mercy, God’s love, God’s place in my life.

I come celebrating that the Lord finds me so loving and penitential that Christ wants to be part of my life – that Jesus willed to die for me on the cross. This Sacrament enlivens my life and dedication to live a good life. I need to know and experience God’s forgiving love and Mercy.

So, why remember my sins and failings? I need a time of real conversion, of serious changes. So, I must make a plan. In preparing for confession, I must make a plan to bring new life into my own life – God’s love and Mercy.

Each time I approach the priest in the Sacrament of Penance, I must be ready to eliminate some things in my life; I must be ready to add some things to my life. In this way, I will continue to celebrate God's love for me.

As a confessor, when someone comes to confess their sins and failings I want to respond to them, “So, what are you going to do about this.” I am hoping that this is my way of saying to this person that they must have a plan for their conversion in the Lord.

Advent is so special. This Advent is even more special as we begin Pope Francis’ Jubilee Year of God's Mercy. This Year's Advent Confession is a very special celebration showing our readiness for a conversion in our lives because of God's Mercy, our readiness to change what must be changed in the Spirit of God's Mercy.

Through this celebration of the Sacrament of Penance each of us will immerse ourselves in the holiness that is ours. This means that we must live as Holy Ones blessed by God's forgiveness and Mercy. This is the challenge that we must be ready to accept each time we approach this Sacrament of God's love and Mercy.
Bishop LaValley’s homily for the Mass of Thanksgiving & Farewell for The Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart, First Sunday of Advent, Nov. 29

It’s no secret that we live in a fast-moving society that has little patience with delay. What would we do without fast food and instant communication? Most people seem to be always in a hurry, including me. Watch me squirm in the checkout line as the person ahead of me takes forever, fumbling deep in his pockets to find that one nickel. It is constant activity, going somewhere, needing to get things done, and done quickly, that’s important.

Given this reality, how do we approach the season of Advent that proposes four weeks of waiting in preparation for Christmas? These days we are all being bombarded with messages telling us to hurry because there are only so many shopping days left to Christmas. After all, every year we only have 364 days of shopping and we’ve just got to open the doors of the stores on Thanksgiving Day. We can’t wait for Black Friday.

How do you convince people, who are under great pressure from the powerful and persuasive modern media, of the redemptive value of waiting?

Advent is one of those times when it can seem that what we hear and experience within these sacred walls makes Church a totally different place from where we live our daily lives. If we think about it, Advent brings home to us the fact that most of us have divided loyalties—one foot in the world, so to speak, and one foot in the realm of the Spirit. Are we supposed to go through life trying to balance this tension, with sometimes the values of the world winning out, and occasionally the values of our faith?

I don’t think so. The Church is in the world. The truth of the Gospel is meant to shed light on the meaning of our experience. The values of the Gospel are meant to provide a guideline for our daily living in the world. Our faith should not make us schizophrenic, divided persons, but should be a source of inner unity that brings together what we experience and what we believe.

And that is a lesson about which we are reminded on this special occasion when we reflect upon how the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart have taught us for generations how to live in this world with our eyes and hearts fixed on the world to come.

With their focus ever on the Christ, they helped educate and form our young, cared for our orphans, the sick and the elderly, the bereaved. They’ve established Hospice centers and founded and run hospitals and nursing homes; they’ve headed and taught in our Catholic schools, taught in our prisons, cared for us in our emergency rooms and clinics, and served our parishioners in a broad array of faith-filled ministries.

Yes, through the years these nuns have helped us connect what we believe with how we live in the real world.

In her inspiring book, Paths of Compassion, Sister Patricia Geary, GNSH tells us that the Grey Nuns have counted among their community 34 graduates of St. Mary’s Academy here in Ogdensburg—that’s in addition to those who entered other religious congregations.

Just recently, Sr. Catherine Mary Cummings, RSM, a 60 year Jubilarian this year, wrote in the North Country Catholic of her vocation being “developed by the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart who were my teachers for 12 years at Bishop Conroy School and St. Mary’s Academy.”

In addition to the hundreds of Grey Nuns who served here in the St. Lawrence Valley, we have all those who served in the Champlain Valley, including those over at Champlain Valley Hospital before it merged with Physician’s Hospital.

How do you say “thank you” to a community of holy women who, for generations, has so faithfully served our loved ones? How do you say “thank you” to women whose faith have inspired countless others to grow in holiness?

How does one thank these women whose faith sees them sacrifice material things, forsaking time with family and loved ones, married life and children of their own for the sake of the Kingdom?

How do you say “thank you” to a community of holy women who, for generations, has so faithfully served our loved ones?

Perhaps during this Advent time of preparation and waiting, we might be inclined to ask, why can’t the Grey Nuns just wait, why leave us now? Hold your horses! What’s the hurry?

I know that, under Sr. Julia’s leadership, these nuns, through much prayer and discernment, have been preparing well for this day. I know from my own pastoral experiences that times come when moves, when change becomes necessary and hearts become so heavy. But these can become hope-filled occasions to look ahead to the possibilities yet to be born.

I’m reminded of an image I’ve mentioned on other occasions that we might find helpful today. We must always, always keep our eyes focused on what lies in front of us as we seek to follow Jesus.

For instance, when we are driving a vehicle, we keep our eyes ahead of us. Yes, from time to time, we check out the rear view mirror to see where we’ve been, but our attention should be on what we see through the windshield in front of us. There’s a reason why the windshield is bigger than the rearview mirror. We want to look at all the possibilities that lay in the future horizons ahead.

Charitable gift annuities

By Scott Lalone
Diocesan development director

A Charitable Gift Annuity is a legal arrangement which you irrevocably transfer cash or securities to our segregated Gift Annuity fund in exchange for our promise to pay you a fixed amount each year for the rest of your life. The amount you receive is determined by the amount of your gift and your age at your nearest birthday at the time of your gift. The older you are when you make the gift, the higher the rate of return.

Once your annuity is established your income remains constant. It is not affected by adverse economic conditions.

You receive an immediate income tax deduction which may be taken on your income tax return the year of the gift or in the following 5 years. A portion of your payments are tax-free.

As the world leaders continue to meet in Paris for the COP21 Meeting to come to agreement on reducing carbon emission, we join in prayer with people around the world. We pray that they may make decisions for the good of our common home and with the compassionate heart of our creator in response to the “cries of the poor and the cries of the earth.” Laudato Si

For a prayer based on Laudato Si, Google: pray4cop21.USCCB and Global Catholic Climate Movement web pages have updates on the Meeting.

Did you know that the U.S. ecological footprint is 6.8 global hectares According to a BBC interview with Global Footprint Network President Mathis Wackernagel, a known climatologist, if everyone consumed as much as each person in the U.S. it would take almost 4 planets to sustain itself. The earth including forests and oceans cannot absorb all the carbon dioxide we are emitting. Currently we would need an extra half planet to absorb what we use. Two thirds of the average American footprint is made up of carbon emissions.

In the darkest time of year we prepare for celebration of Christmas with lights to symbolize that Christ is the Light of the World who came to dwell with us.

As much as we delight in the Christmas lights, we also notice that our energy bill usually rises.

Can we think creatively of ways to offset this increase of energy used? (i.e. purchasing LED lights, reducing heat loss, turning off lights and appliances when not needed) In lowering the demand for more energy, we lower our ecological or carbon footprint.

These actions bring the Light of Christ not only to our neighborhood, but also to our neighbors around the world that are most affected by the increased carbon emissions.

Bring on the Christmas lights and turn down the ones not needed!

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ:

At our Masses next weekend, our parishes will be conducting the annual Retirement Fund for Religious collection. During this Year of Consecrated Life, Pope Francis calls on the faithful to recognize the special witness that consecrated women and men offer our Church and our world. Through the generations, our Diocese has been blessed by the consecrated religious who have so faithfully ministered to the folks of the North Country. Our generous response to next week’s collection serves as an expression of our gratitude to these women and men who have educated our young, cared for our sick, provided pastoral care to our parishioners, and worked for justice for the oppressed.

Today, many of these sisters, brothers and religious order priests who have served us so faithfully are elderly and are in need of our assistance. While some continue in volunteer ministry, others are frail and need special personal care. Most worked for years for small stipends, leaving their religious communities without adequate savings to meet growing retirement and eldercare needs. Today a majority of the religious communities struggle to provide necessary medications, nursing care and basic services for their senior members.

Last year, we distributed the results of our Collection to the fourteen congregations who were serving in the Diocese of Ogdensburg and eighteen other congregations who have served us in the past. In addition to our continued prayers, next week let us offer our beloved consecrated Religious a generous contribution to this important annual Appeal. Thanking you for whatever donation you are able to make this Year of Consecrated Life, I am

Faithfully yours in Christ,

Most Reverend Terry R. LaValley
Bishop of Ogdensburg

Caring for Creation

... protect all creation and make justice and peace flourish.

Ubi et Orbi message of Pope Francis
There are more than 33,000 religious past age 70 living in the United States.

By 2024, retired religious are projected to outnumber wage-earning religious by four to one.

For most of their lives, elder religious worked for small stipends.

The Diocese of Ogdensburg distributed $113,206 among the religious congregations who served in our Diocese.

Let us become agents of this mercy, channels through which God can water the earth, ...

A little mercy makes the world less cold and more just.

...protect all creation and make justice and peace flourish.

Advent's focus is waiting for Christmas but also includes lots of feasts

By Carol Zimmermann
Catholic News Service

WASHINGTON (CNS) -- Although the four weeks of Advent focus on waiting for Christmas, the church does not just sit around and wait for the main event.

It celebrates plenty of major feasts with lots of customs, traditions and even special foods during the month of December.

Early in the Advent season, Dec. 6, the church celebrates the feast of St. Nicholas, a fourth-century bishop from the region of modern-day Turkey, well known for his generosity. The day has customs similar to Christmas but with variations: Instead of gifts placed in stockings or under the tree, they are placed in children's shoes left outside their bedroom door the previous night.

The day is celebrated differently around the world and particularly emphasized in Eastern Europe, but in the United States, it is primarily focused on the shoe custom with an added emphasis on doing good things for others.

The St. Nicholas Center in Holland, Michigan, sponsors a traveling St. Nicholas exhibit and also has lots of information on its website, www.stnicholascenter.org, on history of the feast day, ways to celebrate and the distinction between Santa Claus and St. Nicholas.

Two days after the feast of St. Nicholas, the church celebrates the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, the patroness of the United States. The feast is a holy day of obligation celebrating the belief that Mary was without sin from the moment she was conceived.

The day itself does not have anything to do with Advent but was chosen as the date nine months from the date of Mary's birth, Sept. 8.

The other Marian feast in December is the feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe Dec. 12, which commemorates Mary's appearance to St. Juan Diego in 1531 at Tepayac, a hill northwest of modern-day Mexico City. The Mexican celebration of the tradition also has been adopted by many people from Central and South America and is described as one of the most popular religious feasts for Latinos in the U.S.

Many parishes throughout the country celebrate the feast day with re-enactments of Mary appearing to Juan Diego. They also pray the rosary and present roses to statues of Mary, while mariachi bands sing Marian songs.

The very next day is the feast of St. Lucy, particularly observed in Scandinavian countries and Italy. Her feast day -- near the winter solstice -- and her name, which means light, has made celebrating the young girl martyred in the year 304 a festival of lights.

In festivals in Norway and Sweden, the oldest girl in the family traditionally wears a white dress, a red sash as a sign of martyrdom, and a wreath crown with lighted white candles. Other girls also dress as Lucy and walk in procession singing traditional songs and carrying rolls and cookies that are later shared.

Other major church and cultural celebrations in December take place over a number of days such as the Latin American tradition of "posadas": the re-enactment of the pilgrimage to Bethlehem by Mary and Joseph in search of a room that takes place Dec. 16-24. The "posadas" traditions vary but usually involve groups going from home to home singing traditional Advent and Christmas carols and being turned down until they find one house that gives them shelter and a place to join in prayer and celebration.

The last major feasts of the Christmas season are the feast of the Epiphany, often called the feast of the Three Kings, followed a week later by the feast of the baptism of the Lord.

In most countries, including the U.S., Epiphany will be celebrated Jan. 3 in 2016. In many countries, children leave treats for the wise men and their camels and in turn, when the children are sleeping, gifts or candy is left for them.
A day to rejoice as Year of Mercy begins

Today is called Gaudete Sunday, from the Latin word, "rejoice". For those of you with Advent wreaths, be sure to light the rose-colored candle as a sign of today’s joyful spirit.

We may well wonder what we see in the world around us to bring us any joy.

On Dec. 8th, the Holy Father officially opened the Holy Door at St. Peter's as we began a very special Year of Mercy.

From the beginning of his Pontificate, Pope Francis has summed up his mission as one of seeing the mercy of the Father in the face of His Son, Jesus, of helping all experience the careess of Jesus touch as he forgives our sins and restores us to joy in His ever-present care. His burning desire is for us to practice the corporal and spiritual works of mercy toward our brothers and sisters, especially the poor, the sick, and the abandoned.

In the first reading, the prophet Zephaniah proclaims, “Shout for joy, O daughter Zion...the Lord is in your midst...be not discouraged!”

Even though his prophet had been very critical of the sins of the people and had foretold a harsh judgment, he now speaks of God's divine mercy.

As for Israel long ago, so too for us, God refuses to give up on our sinfulness. He even begs us to pull ourselves out of gloom and despair.

In the second reading, St. Paul urges the Philippians - and us - "Rejoice in the Lord always. I shall say it again: Rejoice!...The Lord is near—by prayer and petition, with thanksgiving, make your requests known to God". In this Year of Mercy, we must redouble our efforts to pray, to beg God for forgiveness and mercy, and to act with love and service toward all.

We listen to what John the Baptist tells the crowds in today's Gospel. He has advice for each group, from the soldiers to the rich, to the religious leaders, to the ordinary people.

Our joy is based on God's mercy and the fire of the Holy Spirit we have received in Baptism. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow. What He has done in the past, He will do again. So indeed we have cause to rejoice!

VATICAN LETTER

Starting a gentle revolution

By Carol Glatz
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- When Pope Francis planned the Year of Mercy and the opening of the Holy Door, he did not mean to give the starting signal for a frenzied wave of pilgrims to Rome.

More than call to sign up for an Eternal City package tour, the pope is inviting people to strike out on a yearlong spiritual journey to recognize a loving God who's already knocking on their door.

He says he wants the Year of Mercy to usher in a "revolution of tenderness."

Once people realize "I'm wretched, but God loves me the way I am," then "I, too, have to love others the same way," the pope said in an interview published just a few days before the Dec. 8 start of the jubilee year. Discovering God's generous love kick-starts a virtuous circle, which "leads us to acting in a way that's more tolerant, patient, tender" and just, he said.

Speaking with "Credere," an Italian weekly magazine run by the Pauline Fathers, the pope gave an in-depth look at why he sees such an urgent need to highlight God's mercy.

"The world needs to discover that God is father, that there is mercy, that cruelty is not the path, that condemnation is not the path," he said. "Because the church herself sometimes follows a hard line, she falls into the temptation of following a hard line, into the temptation of underlining only moral norms, but so many people remain on the outside," he said.

The pope said the thought of all those people - sinners, the doubtful, the wounded and disenfranchised - conjured up that iconic image of seeing the church "as a field hospital after the battle."

Pope wants the Year of Mercy to 'tenderly transform the world'

The wounded are to be treated, helped to heal, not subjected to cholesterol tests," he said, meaning a too narrow scrutiny of minutiae delays staving off the broader disease of conflict and indifference. He once illustrated the same concept by painting a visual image of pastors who prefer to coif and comb the wool of the tiny flock in the pews rather than seek the sheep that are outside in danger or lost.

"I believe this is the time for mercy. We are all sinners, we all carry burdens within us. I felt Jesus wants to open the door of his heart," he said in the magazine interview.

The opening of the holy doors in Rome and around the world will be a symbol of how Jesus is opening the door of his heart.

In fact, dioceses have been asked to designate and open their own "Door of Mercy" in a cathedral, an important church or sanctuary. The pope also will send out from Rome "missionaries of mercy" -- priests mandated to the world's peripheries to show patience and compassion in their ministry.

To help people at home feel "just like being there" in Rome, the Vatican television center will start broadcasting major pontifical events during the Holy Year in latest generation "Ultra HD 4K" resolution as well as HD, 3D and standard definition.

With the appropriate displays or TVs, people will be able to watch events with increased depth and detail, and, for the opening of the Holy Door in St. Peter's Basilica Dec. 8, 19 cameras were to be deployed to capture every angle, including a unique papal point of view.

The Vatican also planned to set up 4K screens in a prison in Milan, a hospital in Rome and possibly in the Holy Land so people who are physically confined could feel part of the opening ceremony.

From the very start of his pontificate, Pope Francis has been showing what the way of mercy means. The pope's very first Angelus address and homily in 2013 centered on mercy, as he explained God always waits for that day of awakening and conversion, then forgives everything. The real problem is people -- not God -- who give up on forgiveness, he said.

But mercy changes everything, he said; it "makes the world a little less cold and more just."

The pope's own religious vocation is rooted in that concrete experience of mercy, when he -- as a 17-year-old student -- walked out of a confession "different, changed." It was the feast of St. Matthew, and like St. Matthew, he was overcome, feeling "God looked at me with mercy" and said, "Follow me."

Realizing God knows he's a sinner, but embraces him anyway lies at the heart of Pope Francis' ministry and his motto: "By showing mercy, by choosing," based on "The Call of St. Matthew."

He said in the magazine interview that one Friday of every month during the Year of Mercy "I will make a different gesture" that shows God's mercy. He had asked the world's young people to rediscover the corporal and spiritual works of mercy, like feeding the hungry and counsel the doubtful, and choose one to practice each month as they prepare for World Youth Day in July.
THE GOOD DINOSAUR

By Joseph McAleen
Catholic News Service

"The Good Dinosaur (Disney), the latest 3-D comedy-adventure from the animation wizards at Pixar, can be thought of as a warm and fuzzy cousin to the "Jurassic" films.

Having conquered the mysterious world of the tween mind in "Inside Out," Pixar now turns back the clock 65 million years to explore the (purely imaginary) interaction between dinosaurs and man.

A warm and fuzzy take on the human-dino dynamic of the "Jurassic" films, "The Good Dinosaur makes wholesome and hilarious entertainment for the entire family.

Director and co-writer Peter Sohn gleefully reworks history in proposing that the asteroid which may have caused the extinction of the dinosaurs never happened. Instead, they evolved in an anthropomorphic fashion, talking and acting just like humans.

In this topsy-turvy world, plant-eating dinosaurs farm the land, while carnivores - such as the mighty Tyrannosaurus rex - are cattle ranchers. The real threat is not from fellow dinos or primitive man, but nature itself.

A young Apatosaurus (voice of Raymond Ochoa) is separated from his family, and must find his way home, with only a feral Neanderthal boy (voice of Jack Bright) as his companion.

A few intense moments may upset the very youngest viewers, but all ages will be inspired as our plucky hero rises to his challenges.

The film is preceded by "Sanjay's Super Team," directed by Sanjay Patel, about an Indian lad who comes to respect his father's devotion to Hinduism.

Parents will appreciate the short's affirmation of faith but may want to combat any potential confusion with an age-appropriate primer on the difference between even wisdom-graced speculation about the divine and revealed truth.

The film contains a few scenes of peril.

50th anniversary of Ad Gentes

Pope Francis invites us to reflect on Ad Gentes, the Church’s Decree on the Missionary Work of the Church. The 50th anniversary of Ad Gentes is December 7, 2015. Pope Francis reminds us: “As Ad Gentes says: ‘The laity should cooperate in the Church’s work of evangelization; as witnesses and at the same time as living instruments, they share in her saving mission.’” (Ad Gentes, #41)

In his World Mission Sunday message, Pope Francis highlighted the connection between Consecrated Life and Ad Gentes or the missionary call to go forth and proclaim the good news to all nations. “World Mission Sunday 2015 took place in the context of the Year of Consecrated Life. There is a clear connection between consecrated life and mission. As we follow Jesus closely, this leads to emergence of consecrated life so as to gain it. Since Christ’s existence had a missionary character, we are called to follow him closely and possess this missionary quality.

As we prepare for Christmas, children immediately come to mind. As we want the best for our own children, we still know that so many children in our world are facing the challenges of extraordinary poverty suffering and violence. These are the “most vulnerable,” as Pope Francis says. Children in our mission family need us through our support of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith / Missionary Childhood Association as Christmas approaches through both prayer and sacrifice.

There are 1,150 mission territories around the globe. One-third of the world. Most of these territories are located in Africa, Asia, Latin America and the Pacific Islands. The total amount of funds donated to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith in recent years is $100,000,000.00. Over one-third of this comes from the United States. Europe contributes about one-third and the rest of the world contributes about one-third. These funds build churches, chapels, seminaries, convents and schools. Funds are used for training future native priests, and religious men and women and catechists. Also, funding is often used for transportation to remote areas for missionaries.

Modern technology and media have drawn the whole world together. But there is still need for us to go out to the nations. Mission, while making good use of technological advances in communications, is still a person-to-person ministry. Catholics want Christ’s mercy to reach through his Church to the farthest corners of the world.

So on the 50th Anniversary of the signing of Ad Gentes, we are reminded that the light of Christ shines from the Church’s mission efforts to fight evil and to bring people together through communion with God and each other. The Church in mission is the sign of our future good things to come.

Please remember “The Society for the Propagation of the Faith” when writing or changing your Will.

Grey Nuns have shared faith in the North Country since the 1860's

Ministry of presence, prayer, service

By Father Joseph Morgan
Rector, St. Mary's Cathedral

Did you know that the Grey Nuns have been with us in Ogdensburg since before we were even a Diocese? That is a long time! How blessed our local Church has been because of them.

Beginning in the 1860's, the Grey Nuns of Ottawa came to Ogdensburg to teach in our Catholic schools. They and their spiritual sisters, under the watchful eye of St. Marguerite d'Youville from Heaven, have been present among us ever since. In 1921, the independent American branch of the Grey Nuns of Ottawa was founded, known as the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart (GNSH). They have a rich and varied history of ministry here.

The Sisters taught in our schools here in Ogdensburg, at St. Mary's School in Potsdam, and St. Mary's School in Canton; cared for our sick (at Ogdensburg City Hospital 1886-1961 and then at A. Barton Hepburn Hospital from 1902 until today, with representation on the Board of Directors; also at St. John's Hospital, Ogdensburg 1898-1955 and at Champlain Valley Hospital in Plattsburgh from 1910-1963); provided a home for orphans (1886-1961); and cared for our elders at St. Joseph's Home, beginning in 1961 and had representation on the St. Joseph's Home Board.

In addition, the GNSH Community has assisted with diocesan administration and served in parishes as Pastoral Associates. Wherever there has been a need, the charisms of St. Marguerite d'Youville's spiritual daughters have found a way to meet it.

Yet, for all the good they have done for others in so many ways, their true gift to us has been their witness to Christ, and a call for all of us to live in the Sacred Heart of Jesus. These dedicated and faith-filled women have touched the lives of countless people here in the North Country, leading us to embrace the Gospel and care for others during our pilgrimage to the Father's House.

They have shown us how to live the spiritual and corporal works of mercy, serving Christ who comes to us in each person.

How grateful we are, beyond words, for the many members of this religious congregation who have been with us throughout the years!

Over the years so many of our own sisters and daughters have discerned the call of God to live a vocation as Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart. Ogdensburg and other North Country family names like Taylor, Martin, LaBrake, Sholette, Tavernier, Lalonde, Looby, Murray, Brennan, Hannan, McElwain, Boyer, Main, Doe, Fitzgerald, Brady, O'Donoghue, Allard, Gleason, Healey, Farrell, O'Marah, Elie, Brown and may others joined with GNSH's from other areas to serve our people with generous hearts.

How grateful we are, beyond words, for the many members of this religious congregation who have been with us throughout the years!

I'm sure you have your “favorites”: Sisters who have touched you or your family members with their friendship and devoted care.

Their convents, scattered throughout the Ogdensburg over the years, have been a vivid reminder that God calls each of us to a particular vocation and that, together, we form a vibrant body of believers.

Their homes of prayer in our neighborhoods were themselves a sign that we are made for holiness, and that each family has a place in the very heart of God.

We are all the richer when the many vocations abound! The Sisters have been such an integral part of our lives that it is a deep sadness for us to know that they will no longer be living here in the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

As the last three GNSH members among us (Sister Rita Frances Brady, Sister Mary Teresa Labrake, and Sister Joan McElwain) leave us this Fall, it is a time to remember the many blessings that are ours because of their faithful service to the Church and that of so many of their Sisters, generation after generation.

In our gratitude and as a sign of our love for them, may we keep them always in our prayers. May they, who have shared the Good News with us by their lives, be doubly blessed in return.

The ties that spiritually unite us can never be broken by distance, even all the way to Pennsylvania!

Thank you, dear Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart. God bless you, and please remember that you always have a home in the North Country!

Bishop

If we spend too much time looking at the past, focused on the rearview window, of how things used to be, we end up in the ditch, or worse. So, while we fondly remember and learn from the blessings of yesterday, we anticipate with much hope and joy what the Lord has in store for us and for the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart in the years to come.

I’m reminded of a prayer by St. Francis de Sales: “Do not look forward in fear to the changes in life; rather, look to them with full hope that as they arise, God, whose very own you are, will lead you safely through all things; and when you cannot stand it, God will carry you in His arms. Do not fear what may happen tomorrow; the same understanding Father who cares for you today will take care of you then and every day.

He will either shield you from suffering or will give you unfailling strength to bear it. Be at peace, and put aside all anxious thoughts and imaginations.”

And this is where we get to the nub of what Advent is really all about. Advent is an invitation to listen to the Gospel’s challenge to reorient the direction of our lives—to make a new beginning as we begin a new Church year.

With gratitude and much love in our hearts for the Grey Nuns, we say thank you and promise our prayers, particularly at the altar, as we know that the Lord has much good in store for you, who love Him.

St. Marguerite D’Youville pray for us all!
