Of marriage and family

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — God’s plan for fruitful, everlasting unions between a man and woman has been lost in a world filled with skepticism, distrust and hostility, Pope Francis said.

A culture that does not value “the stable and life-giving covenant between a man and woman is certainly a loss for everyone. We must bring honor back to marriage and the family,” he said April 22 during his general audience in St. Peter’s Square.

But much also must be done to return respect and dignity to women, who are often exploited, objectified and understandably skeptical of the possibility of harmony between men and women, he said.

The pope continued his catechesis about the family with the second of two talks on the complementary nature of men and women. The Book of Genesis shows how God created the heavens and earth, and then a special creature made in his likeness to care and watch over the earth. Even though man was “the culmination” of God’s creation, still “something was missing,” the pope said.

In the Garden of Eden, Adam “is free, is master, but he is alone and God sees that this ‘is not good.” It’s like a lack of communion, a communion is lacking, a lack of fullness,” he said.

A trinity of Trinity principals

Trinity Catholic School in Massena honored three past principals for their dedicated service at its first annual gala, “April in Paris,” held April 18 at the school.

Joan Rufa and Michele Bombard paid tribute to Dan Case and St. Joseph Sisters Mary Eamon Lyng and Shirley Anne Brown, for their efforts in securing the future of Catholic education in Massena.

Among the 200 guests was Bishop LaValley, a former parochial vicar at Sacred Heart Parish in Massena.

HOLY YEAR PILGRIMAGE: Bishop LaValley to lead 2016 trip to Italy... p. 5
Here we go again!

No one is more surprised than the editor that the North Country Catholic is sponsoring another pilgrimage to Europe. Of course, our trips to Italy and Ireland were fabulous, life-changing experiences but they were also exhausting, pushing the resources of our two-person office to the limit and beyond! But my “never again” has turned to “never say never” and I’m giving all the credit/blame to Pope Francis. When the Holy Father announced that 2016 would be a Holy Year of Mercy, I started hearing voices.

First there was the voice of my husband and whom I had planned a trip to Rome as a way to celebrate our retirement “someday.” “I really think we should go during the Holy Year,” Tom said, “while we have Pope Francis.”

“Well,” I said when the shock subsided, “the best way to do that is on a pilgrimage.” “Maybe Bishop LaValley would want to go again,” he said.

“Hmmmm,” she said. A couple hours later, I had a chance to talk with Bishop LaValley and made the proposal with the warning that, despite the date on the calendar, my request was not an April Fool’s joke. “Just think about it,” I said. The voice I heard back still surprises me a little. “I don’t need to think about it,” the bishop said. “Let’s do it.”

So, we’re doing it. Next April 5, we hope to be joined by dozens of fellow pilgrims to begin what is sure to be a trip of a lifetime.

We’ll start our Italian journey in Venice and move on to Florence, Siena, Orvieto, Assisi and Rome, celebrating daily Mass in some of the most historic churches in the world. We’ll also enjoy the cultural treasures of Italy as we view the works of Michaelangelo, ride on a gondola, walk through the Coliseum and the Sistine Chapel and taste-test the gelato at every spot.

And, if all goes well, we’ll each come home with the penity indulgence that’s associated with a pilgrimage to Rome during the Holy Year.

More information about the pilgrimage - with the Bishop’s personal invitation - appears on page 5 of this week’s NCC. The full itinerary is available on our website, www.northcountrycatholic.org or in the brochure we can send through the mail. Just give Christine a call at 315-608-7556.

One of our pilgrims from 2012 has some good advice for anyone considering the pilgrimage: “If you can manage it, GO!!!! You will CHERRISH the trip for the rest of your life.”

A PASTOR’S PERSPECTIVE

Sharing faith with youthful enthusiasm

I am often asked where I find the ideas to share with people each Sunday. We priests are instructed to preach a homily each Sunday and the homily is to be based on the Scripture readings for the Mass. However, to make the message interesting, we search for some ideas that will make Jesus’ message more alive to the people of a parish.

Recently, an idea sprung to my mind, right during Mass – out of the blue. I had a homily prepared and then another idea came to me.

Now I know what you will tell me – that I, a priest, should have realized that it was simply God’s way of letting me know that God had a better idea for me that day to share.

What happened was this: I had carefully prepared a homily for a weekend Mass, one of the Sundays of the Easter season. Then at the first Mass that weekend another idea jumped out at me when I proclaimed the opening prayer of the Mass, the collect. Right away, I recognized a better thought than what I had prepared.

Here is the prayer: “May your people exult forever, O God, is renewed youthfulness of spirit so that rejoicing now in the restored glory of our adoption, we may look forward in confident hope in the rejoicing of the day of resurrection.”

In this prayer, the Church encourages us all to pray for that Easter hope that gives us all confidence to live in the joy of Our Savior by developing a spirit of youthful enthusiasm.

Right away I realized that this would be a perfect challenge for the people – discovering Christ’s life and love by becoming more youthful. Jesus said as recorded in the Gospels “Unless you become like a little child, you will not enter the Kingdom of God.”

The Spirit of Easter that Jesus brings to us in his resurrection is a youthful spirit. This is the way we are able to live a good life and bring message to this world – when we live in that youthful spirit.

So, I quickly thought about what it means to be youthful. First of all, I thought of enthusiasm. A youthful spirit doesn’t do things halfway; a youthful spirit means being excited and joyful. A disciple of Christ discovers in faith the joy and excitement of the message of Christ. It should take over his or her life.

This message of Jesus should put enthusiasm into efforts to make one’s life better. With a strong faith this enthusiasm will make us friends of Jesus As Christians, we are challenged to live like Jesus. May people see that spirit of Jesus in our lives. Pope Francis said this, “Christians should not look like people that just came from a funeral.”

There is so much more in that idea of youthfulness. Youths don’t like to be left out and a Christian does not want to be left out. When there are opportunities to bring Jesus into their world, they are ready to do something. This youthfulness brings an openness and readiness to accept the challenge of making the world a better place.

Youthfulness means a spirit of joy: it brings to our Christian way of life a spirit of joy and happiness. This joy truly brings Jesus’ love and peace to all that we do.

From the Decree on the Apostolate of Lay People of the Second Vatican Council: speaking of young people and their spirit – “Carried along by their natural ardor and exuberant energy, when awareness of their own personality ripens in them they shoulder responsibilities that are theirs and are eager to take their place in social and culture life. If this enthusiasm is penetrated with the spirit of Christ, animated by a sense of obedience and love towards the pastors of the Church, a very rich harvest can be expected from it. The young should become the first apostles of the young, in direct contact with them, exercising the apostolate by themselves among themselves, taking account of their social environment.”
Bishop approves grade reconfiguration at Seton

PLATTSBURGH - Bishop Terry R. LaValley has approved an educational grade reconfiguration for Seton Academy Elementary School and Seton Catholic Central Jr./Sr. High School.

Effective with the start of the new school year in September, the Seton Schools will be officially moving the incoming 6th grade Class of 2022 from its traditional self-contained classroom at Seton Academy Elementary School at 23 Charles Street to the Seton Catholic Central Junior High at 206 New York Road.

Seton Academy will be accepting additional applications for their newly formed pre-kindergarten classrooms for 4 year olds in addition to grades K-5 while Seton Catholic is now accepting applications for grades 6-12 for the 2015-2016 academic year.

“We are proud to announce the expansion of our middle school campus by transitioning the 6th grade class,” said Chris Hay, president of the Education Council of the Seton Schools. “This move will allow us to accommodate our increasing enrollment demands and position us for future growth as we implement our five year strategic plan,”

Hay noted that Seton faculty pride themselves on their dedication to the mission of Catholic education and a personal passion of teaching and learning. Meeting the academic bar of New York State’s new curriculum standards is not viewed by Seton faculty as an academic challenge as much as it is a personal commitment to success, he said.

A few highlights of positive alternatives to public school education at Seton include:

- All New York State education standards are exceeded with small class sizes
- Faculty are accredited and certified with smaller student:teacher ratios
- Emphasis on differentiated and individualized instruction
- Faith-based environment teaches good morals and welcomes all denominations
- 100% college acceptance rate

“We are now accepting applications for Pre-K and kindergarten-grade 5 at Seton Academy and Middle School (grades 6-8) and High School (grades 9-12) but spaces are filling up quickly, so please apply today to reserve your space today,” said Lynn M. Gilbert, director of Institutional Advancement & Enrollment Management for the Seton Schools.

Forming Intentional Disciples Conference

Join us on May 30, 2015 for an all day workshop with Keith Strohm of the Siena Institute

This practical conference and workshop will help you understand the meaning of the New Evangelization and the urgent need for our parishes to become houses of discipleship. The workshop focuses on the need to awaken the personal faith of our laity so that they will become more capable of putting their gifts and talents to use in the parish communities.

A FAMILY OF FAITH

St. Patrick’s Church in Watertown welcomed its third Marra brother as an active altar server over the Easter weekend. All three: Philip, age 12; Joshua, 10; and Jack, 8; are the sons of Ticia Marra, St. Patrick’s liturgical music director. The boys are shown above with their grandfather, Deacon Kevin Mastellon who also serves at St. Patrick’s.

MASSENA - Trinity Catholic School honored three past principals for their dedicated service at its first annual gala, “April in Paris.”

Joan Rufa and Michele Bombard paid tribute to Dan Case and St. Joseph Sisters Mary Eamon Lyng and Shirley Anne Brown, for their efforts securing the future of Catholic education in Massena.

Over 200 guests, including Bishop Terry LaValley and St. Joseph Sister Ellen Rose Coughlin, Diocesan Superintendent of Schools, were present to help honor these three leaders of Catholic education.

Mr. Case

Dan Case began his teaching career at Sacred Heart School in 1972 teaching 7th and 8th grade math. In 1978, Mr. Case was appointed the first lay principal of a Catholic school in Massena.

During her tribute to Mr. Case, Mrs. Rufa commented about the fact that two of Massena’s Catholic school principals have been alumni of Holy Family High School, Mr. Case and herself.

“I’m quite certain our beloved Father Billmeyer was up in heaven; beaming with pride knowing that Dan, one of his brightest students, a forensics star, with a brilliant mind for numbers and trained by Jesuits, would be following in his footsteps,” she said.

Mrs. Rufa went on to praise his efforts with undertaking the challenging task of running a K-8 Catholic school for six years and then courageously assisting the blending of Sacred Heart School and St. Joseph School when the decision was made to consolidate the two schools in 1983.

“Fortunately for Trinity Catholic, God had placed the right person at the helm of Sacred Heart School; a leader who exemplified extreme humility, loyalty and service above self,” Mrs. Rufa said. “He was a leader who worked diligently to assure this newly consolidated school would be a success and Catholic education in Massena would remain alive and well.”

Dan Case lives in Massena with his wife, Linda and is still helping out Trinity Catholic when he can. Mr. Case is currently serving as a member of Trinity Catholic’s Strategic Planning Committee for Finance.

Sister Mary Eamon

Sister Mary Eamon Lyng, a Sister of St. Joseph for 51 years, was also honored for her contributions to Catholic education over the last 46 years.

Sister Eamon served as principal in Massena during two different periods of time. She was principal of St. Joseph’s School from 1977-1983 and principal of Trinity Catholic School from 1988-2000. Sister Eamon was greatly loved and respected by the parents, students and teachers during her time as principal at St. Joseph’s and Trinity Catholic.

Sister Mary Eamon Lyng also played a significant role in the consolidation process of St. Joseph’s and Sacred Heart School. At the time, many parents were concerned about their children transferring into a newly formed school. Sister Eamon guaranteed a solid enrollment for Trinity Catholic by visiting every family; listening to their concerns and dispelling their fears. Her optimism and perseverance convinced each family not to abandon a Catholic education for their child.

When Sister Mary Eamon Lyng returned to Massena as principal at Trinity Catholic School, she initiated several improvements and accomplishments such as: the New Window Campaign, the Trinity Truck raffle and the Ellen McKenna Scholarship Fund. One significant achievement, while she was principal, was Trinity Catholic’s recognition as a National Drug Free School. Students and teachers were invited to the White House, in 1989, to receive this prestigious award.

Mrs. Rufa presented Sister Mary Eamon Lyng her award stating, “Sister refers to the time she spent in Massena as ‘18 years of joy!’ This is an accurate description of her years of service. Sister’s time in Massena was ‘18 years of joy’—the joy she spread with her loyal devotion, spirit of optimism and steadfast faith.”

Sister Shirley Anne

Sister Shirley Anne Brown was also honored for her extensive and impressive service to Catholic education throughout the Diocese of Ogdensburg and the Diocese of Syracuse. In September of 1983, Trinity Catholic School opened with Sister Shirley Anne Brown as its first principal. It was her daunting task to unite two School Boards, two faculties and two school cultures into one.

Sister Shirley Anne accomplished this with integrity and grace; as well as laying the groundwork for a cutting edge curriculum and high academic standards.

Under her leadership, Trinity Catholic began a Pre-K program, a program for Talented and Gifted Students, the Great Books Program and was the first school in Massena to offer a full day kindergarten. Sister Shirley Anne’s administrative efforts and guidance was largely responsible for Trinity Catholic School being named a New York State School of Excellence.

Michele Bombard honored Sister Shirley Anne with these words, “The poet Maya Angelou said, ‘If you’re lucky, once in a great while, one visionary’s solitary fantasy can transform a million realities.’ Trinity was one of those lucky ones; for without a doubt Sr. Shirley Anne’s vision for Trinity Catholic School touched the future of so many lives and virtually saved Catholic education in Massena.”

The three past principals were chosen to be honored at Trinity’s very first gala because they were the “trinity” of leaders who selflessly put their egos aside and vigorously acted as stewards for the future. Their dedication, loyalty and sacrifice helped guarantee a choice in education for all families in Massena and its surrounding communities.
Dear Friends,

Why not join me and other pilgrims on a journey of a lifetime—a pilgrimage to Italy during the Extraordinary Jubilee Year of Mercy? A highlight of our travels will be four days in Rome where we will enter St. Peter’s Basilica through the Holy Doors and also visit the other three major basilicas. We hope to have an audience with Pope Francis and tours of the Sistine Chapel, the Coliseum, the Vatican Museum, as well as visit many other spectacular places holding sacred and cultural treasures. Our pilgrimage will, also, see us at such awesome locations as Venice, Florence, Siena, Orvieto and Assisi.

A Holy Year offers unique opportunities for spiritual growth. This Holy Year Pilgrimage to Italy promises to be a time for prayer, an increase in faith, and a whole lot of enjoyment for all the pilgrims. The frosting on the cake: gaining the plenary indulgence associated with such a pilgrimage during a Holy Year.

I hope you’ll join us for what promises to be an exciting and spiritually enriching time together.

Faithfully yours in Christ,

Bishop Terry R. LaValley

Catholics and the challenge of a changing climate

By Sister Bethany Fitzgerald
Diocesan Faith and Ecology Group

WATERTOWN - Dr. Gerry Gacioch, chief of cardiology at Rochester General Hospital Heart Institute and NYS Climate Ambassador for Catholic Coalition on Climate Change, spoke to more than 50 people at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse April 19 on how our Catholic social teachings can shed light on one’s response to climate change.

Dr. Gacioch combines his medical profession as a doctor with his appreciation for the beauty of the earth and the needs of people affected by climate change. The Adirondacks are among his family’s favorite places to vacation. As a medical doctor he has volunteered seven times in Haiti as well as in Belize and El Salvador.

Dr. Gacioch stated that 98% of scientists today affirm the reality of global climate change and that human activity has contributed to it, while 2% still debate it.

To illustrate the situation, he posed a question: “Suppose you were very sick and consulted 100 doctors for their diagnosis and treatment. The results were 98 of them agreed on the cause and a treatment. However, two were not sure about the cause and advised more tests to see what might develop over time. What would you choose to do?”

Many facts regarding the effects of global warming both on the natural world and on the human community were presented. The rising temperatures from greenhouse gases are happening more rapidly than predicted and we are seeing the effects, i.e., melting glaciers, extreme flooding, drought, hurricanes, tornadoes, and wildfires throughout the world. Most global warming that has occurred in the last fifty years is attributed to human activity.

A three-minute film on “Who is Under Our Carbon Footprint?” revealed that the poor are most affected by global warming and are least able to bear the burdens. Loss of homes, destruction of productive land and loss of jobs weigh heavily on those who already live on the edge of poverty.

Popes from Pope John XXIII to our present Pope Francis as well as the bishops have been consistent with their call for care for creation and preferential option for the poor.

In 2009, Ten Commandments of the Environment was written by Pope Benedict, and “Global Climate Change: Plea for Dialogue Prudence and the Common Good” was issued by US Catholic Bishops in 2001. The Vatican installed solar panels on the audience hall in 2008 and pledged to become the first “carbon-neutral” state in Europe. (Bishop Terry installed solar panels to power his residence last August). Pope Francis’ ecological on the environment will be coming out soon.

We must tread more lightly and understand the consequences of every step, consuming less, advocating for the responsible stewardship of God’s Creation and for those who come after us.

Environmental Stewardship

“Water, water everywhere but ….”
In the words of Pope Benedict XVI “Attention needs to be paid to the world-wide problems of water and to the global water cycle system, which is of prime importance for life on earth.

The ecological problems of water must be dealt with not only because of the chilling prospects of environmental degradation on the horizon; the real motivation must be the quest for authentic world-wide solidarity inspired by the values of charity, justice and the common good.”

While we watch the return of the green grass with the lovely spring rains, the Holy Father reminds us that our attention regarding fresh water needs to go beyond our own backyards.

Did you know that in our country, the average person uses about 21 gallons of water a day for our standard of living?

In the world’s poorest countries, people use just 2.5 gallons a day to wash, clean and cook.

How many gallons of water do you think you use a day?
Take a few moments this week to be grateful for the sounds of rain around you.
Consider the many ways that water is a vital part of your day, beginning with moment you rise in the morning until you retire at night.
Consider ending your day with St. Francis’ prayer.

Praise be my Lord for our sister Water, who is very serviceable to us, and humble and precious and clean.”

From Garden to Table

'Teaching Gardens’ growing at schools across the diocese

By Mary Lou Kilian

Children at Catholic schools across the diocese are getting their hands dirty on the way to keeping their bodies healthy as they take part in “Teaching Gardens: Healthy Food from Seed to Table.”

Nine elementary schools are sharing a $39,400 grant from Fidelis Care, the New York State Catholic Health Plan, to conduct the program.

Among the goals of the “garden to table” experience are:

• to provide a firsthand experience of the parts of a plant and the role of each part in order to select and properly incubate and grow a healthy plant to maturity;
• to provide an experience of building and preparing a garden for planting;
• to nurture and grow a garden from seed to mature plant;
• to understand the difference between organic gardening and the use of chemicals;
• to relate the growth of vegetables as part of a healthy diet as a component to avoid obesity;
• to experience the vegetables grown as part of a real meal in the cafeteria or equivalent setting;
• to reinforce good nutrition as a major component of a preventive health program.

Karen Donahue, assistant superintendent of schools, is the diocesan program coordinator. Among the ways she has assisted the schools is by placing group orders for GrowLabs, which allowed the students to begin the planting process during the winter, and by offering advice about resources available for the project.

The schools “are creating a learning garden that will provide healthy food for the cafeteria and family dinner table,” Mrs. Donahue said. “Through Common Core based hands-on experiences students are developing lifelong expertise and skills in consumer gardening.

Culminating events will take place at each location and focus on locally identified activities such as family events that showcase the ‘fruits of our labor,’” Mrs. Donahue said. This might be a community dinner event featuring vegetables from the garden, a family fun night that features salsa grown and made by the students or expanding the food service program offerings to include vegetables from the garden.”

At the schools

Each of the schools was asked to select a grade or mix of students to take the lead in constructing and maintaining a teaching garden.

At Trinity Catholic School in Massena each of the grades is responsible for growing one or two of the selected vegetables: asparagus, rhubarb, tomatoes, peppers, lettuce, beans and herbs.

Father Donald Manfred, pastor of Sacred Heart Church, offered a plot of land next to the church and the local Home Depot donated gardening tools for the children.

Over the summer, families will tend the plants with the expectation that the vegetables will be canned and frozen. In the fall, the food will be served in the cafeteria.

Trinity students will be asked to submit a recipe using their vegetables and will vote on favorite recipes which could become a permanent part of the cafeteria’s food offerings.

At Holy Family School in Malone, Jaime Pelkey has been serving as the garden coordinator.

So far, the Holy Family gardeners have secured a location outside the school and reached out to Bonesteel’s Garden Center, owned by a family with children at Holy Family.

Mr. Bonsteel has offered education session on basic gardening facts for the faculty.

The middle schools students took a field trip to the garden center and planted a variety of seeds that will be stored in Bonesteel’s Greenhouse until the garden beds are made.

“Our plan is to have 12 raised beds and plant corn on the perfect spot in our new ‘outdoor classroom!’” Ms. Pelkey said.

The children at St. James in Gouverneur are still in the research portion of their garden project as they prepare to plant an "ABC garden.

Principal Clara Cummings said the students are learning about plants and vegetables that will grow in this area, and will choose one for each letter of the alphabet to insure a wide variety.

About Fidelis Care

Fidelis Care offers free or low-cost coverage through the State's Child Health Plus, Family Health Plus, and Medicaid Managed Care programs, as well as through a variety of Medicare and Dual Advantage plans.

Vatican, LCWR announce successful end of process

By Cindy Wooden
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) - The Vatican approved new statutes and bylaws for the U.S. Leadership Conference of Women Religious, ending a seven-year process of investigating the group and engaging in dialogue with its officers to ensure greater harmony with church teaching.

Conference officers met April 16 with Pope Francis, the same day the Vatican announced the conclusion of a seven-year process of investigation and dialogue with the group to ensure fidelity to church teachings. The outcome resulted in revised statutes approved by the Vatican.

“Long and challenging exchanges” that were “conducted always in a spirit of prayer and mutual respect,” said the pope. The process brought the sisters, the bishops and Vatican officials “to deeper understandings of one another’s experiences, roles, responsibilities and hopes for the church and the people it serves. We learned that what we hold in common is much greater than any of our differences.”

NEW YORK -- The Vatican said interreligious dialogue with the Muslim community must be strengthened given "the barbarism underway" by terrorists claiming to be Muslims.

The statement, issued by the Pontifical Council for Interreligious Dialogue, comes after hundreds of Christians have been killed in recent months, often barbarically, by Islamist extremist groups in the Middle East, Libya, Nigeria, Kenya and several other African nations. Most recently, more than 20 Ethiopian Christians were killed by Islamic State militants in Libya. Thousands of other Christians in war-torn regions of the Middle East and North Africa have been run out of their homes by Islamist groups.

Pope Francis and other church leaders have called on the international community to come to the aid of persecuted Christians in these regions. In the face of the atrocities, the pontifical council said some people are questioning whether interreligious dialogue with the Muslim community should continue.

"The answer is yes, more than ever," said the council in its April 22 statement. "First, because the vast majority of Muslims do not recognize themselves in the barbarism underway."
Cardinal George touched nation, world with his intellect, leadership

CHICAGO (CNS) - To say that Cardinal Francis E. George was an intellectual would be an understatement. To try to quantify his impact on the Catholic Church in the United States and in the world would be an underestimation.

"He's the closest thing in recent American church history to what you might call of as sort of the all-star European cardinal intellectualist," veteran Vatican journalist John L. Allen Jr. told the Catholic New World, Chicago's archdiocesan newspaper, in December 2013. "Prior to George in Chicago, the American Catholic Church has never really produced such a thing."

Cardinal George, who retired in 2014 as Chicago's archbishop, died April 17 after a long battle with cancer. He was 78.

The late churchman's intellectualism was sharpened during stints teaching philosophy at several Catholic universities across the nation, and then further honed when writing doctoral dissertations in philosophy and theology.

"He is acutely aware that words carry meaning. They shape ideas, and ideas shape actions," Father Thomas Baima, vicar for ecumenical and interreligious affairs for the Archdiocese of Chicago and vice rector for Mundelein Seminary, said during an October 2013 speech on Cardinal George.

Probably the most famous words spoken by Cardinal George came during a talk before a group of priests, in which he warned about the dangers of a completely secularized society. The comments went viral, leading Cardinal George to write about it in an Oct. 21, 2012, column for the Catholic New World.

"I am (correctly) quoted as saying that I expected to die in bed, my successor will die in prison and his successor will die a martyr in the public square. What is omitted from the reports is a final phrase I added about the bishop who follows a possibly martyred bishop: 'His successor will pick up the shards of a ruination and slowly help rebuild civilization, as the church has done so often in human history.'"

"What I said was not 'prophetic' but a way to force people to think outside of the usual categories that limit and sometimes poison both private and public discourse."

However, papal biographer and columnist George Weigel believes Cardinal George's writings and speeches sounded a warning bell early on, especially on threats to religious freedom.

"His calm insistence that there were and are deep cultural problems in American democracy was a needed wake-up call for many," Weigel wrote in a December 2013 email to the Catholic New World.

His American peers looked to his intellect and leadership, electing him to a three-year term as USCCB president in November 2007. Just this January, the Knights of Columbus presented Cardinal George with the organization's highest honor, the Gaudium et Spes award.

That respect extended to the Vatican itself, which valued his global view shaped by his work as head of the Missionary Oblates of Mary Immaculate for 12 years, said Allen.

He was not without his critics, however. Father Robert Barron, founder of Word on Fire Catholic Ministries and rector of Mundelein Seminary, noted in a talk about Cardinal George delivered to the seminary on the 50th anniversary of his priesthood that both "liberals" and "conservatives" often felt stung by Cardinal George's words, when he was merely calling for life true to the Gospels.

"What he proposes, finally, is neither liberal nor conservative Catholicism, but 'simply Catholicism,' which means the faith in its fullness, mediated through the successors of the Apostles," Barron said.

For all of his accomplishments, however, Cardinal George remained unassuming. Law professor, pro-life advocate and author Helen Alvare recalled meeting him when he was bishop of Yakima, Washington, and was surprised at his small apartment and humble furnishings.

"The other thing I noticed about his living quarters was there were more books than anything else," she told the Catholic New World in December 2013.

That lifelong intellectual pursuit will shape "the George legacy," Allen said.

"What we'll mean by that is the recovery of a kind of sixth sense of what it means to be Catholic," he said.
After Paul - the church would never be the same

Soon after the early Church began to grow, a major event occurred. Saul of Tarsus, one of the most feared and hated persecutors of Christians, miraculously converted to Christianity.

No one could have predicted the startling accident that befell Saul on his way from Jerusalem to Damascus. He was knocked off his horse, and struck blind by a divine shaft of light that left him blind and helpless.

He was directed by a Voice to seek out one Ananias who would give him further directions. The rest is history.

After some time in prayer and solitude, Barnabas, a man respected and trusted by the Christians, brought him to Jerusalem, and introduced him to Peter and the other leaders. At first, distrust and fear kept them at a distance, but gradually he was accepted.

Despite many severe trials, Paul's theology prevailed. The Church would never be the same again. It was surely a miracle of grace that often-bitter fighting between various factions did not split the Church apart and destroy it. Furthermore, many were sorely tested when friends and relatives opposed them or even betrayed them to the authorities.

What saved the whole enterprise was surely the teaching we find in today's second reading. John tells his followers "...love not in word or speech but in deed and truth." We must not merely "mouth" the beautiful teaching of Jesus, but work on the difficult task of living those words.

All of the disciples must likewise have found consolation in the powerful image of today's Gospel. In the great farewell address of Jesus at the Last Supper, He tells his disciples: "I am the vine; you are the branches". Think about it! As a branch cannot survive if it is separated from the vine, neither can we survive if we sever our connection with Jesus. He is constantly strengthening us with grace, just as a vine gives life moment by moment to its branches.

Surviving siblings

As I have written previously, Silent No More Awareness has taken on a yearlong monthly healing project, and April focuses on the healing of surviving siblings.

There are two components to this dynamic. First addresses the mother and father of the aborted child and, second, the surviving sibling and the family relationship challenges.

The surviving sibling oftentimes experiences a profound sense of emptiness, anxiety and guilt. Sibling survivors struggle to understand their value as a human being in light of their siblings’ lives discarded through abortion.

This is an extremely important and rarely discussed example of the collateral damage from the abortion blast.

According to Philip Ney, MD, his observations of psychiatric patients led him to believe that some people were deeply affected by surviving when someone near and dear to them, usually a sibling, died from a pregnancy loss, especially as a result of abortion.

The surviving sibling oftentimes experiences feelings of impending doom, guilt about surviving, pessimism about the future, not trusting caregivers and other existential symptoms experienced due to this loss.

LIFE CHAIN in Potsdam

One in four pregnancies ends in death for the unborn child by abortion; 3200 babies are killed by abortion every day in America!

The child living in the womb is one of us and helpless, Jesus tells us to help those in greatest need or else (Matt 25:45-46).

For the love of God, please, won’t you join us as we pray an hour with Jesus to save many Lifetimes!

PEACE & JOY OF JESUS, CHRIS LAROSE MEV POTSDAM

Honored movies, TV shows, books illustrate highest values of human spirit

Christopher Awards are announced

The newsmagazine “48 Hours” and the documentary series “NY Med” are among 20 Christopher Awards winners announced April 21 by the Christophers, which is rooted in the Judeo-Christian tradition of service to God and humanity.

The awards, to be conferred at a May 13 ceremony in New York, are presented to writers, producers, directors, authors and illustrators whose work affirms the highest values of the human spirit.

The James Keller Award, named after the Christophers’ founder, will be presented to Patrick Donahue, founder of the Sarah Jane Brain Foundation. The award recognizes individuals who put their faith into action and change the world for the better.

Donahue’s newborn daughter Sarah Jane was shaken so violently by a hospital nurse that the baby lost 60 percent of the rear cortex of her brain. After researching ways she and other children like her could be helped and treated, Donahue helped launch the International Academy of Hope, making it the first and only school for kids with brain injuries and brain-based disorders in New York City.

“NY Med” will be given the Christopher Spirit Award, for individuals or projects that exemplify the Christopher motto, “It’s better to light one candle than to curse the darkness.” The series focuses on health care professionals and their patients at New York City’s Presbyterian Hospital and University Hospital in Newark, New Jersey.

The Christophers called the show “riveting television with heart-pounding moments that can rival any action series. And by highlighting simple ideals like love, service, and gratitude, it provides a vital prescription to heal viewers’ spirits from some of the darkness and hopelessness in the world.”

Missionary heart and hard work

From the Director’s Desk
Sister Mary Ellen Brett, SSJ
Diocesan Mission Director

Each year during the month of October, the Catholic World celebrates World Mission Sunday. A portion of the collection each year goes directly to the Catholic Near East Welfare Association, or CNEWA. The President of the CNEWA is Reverend Msgr. John E. Kozar, a former National Director of the Pontifical Mission Societies. Recently I heard from Msgr. Kozar in response to our Diocesan annual contribution to the CNEWA. Here is an excerpt from his letter that I thought I should share with you all since the donation is a direct reflection of our Diocese’s generosity.

“CNEWA serves as an arm of the Holy See to provide pastoral and humanitarian assistance to the poor in the Middle East, Northeast Africa, parts of Eastern Europe and India. All of our outreach is done in the partnership with Eastern Catholic Churches in these areas.

We are in receipt of your generous donation from the faithful of the Diocese of Ogdensburg. World Mission Sunday affords our faithful an opportunity to breathe with both lungs: to support both Latin and Eastern Mission needs around the world.

On behalf of those in the Easter tradition who will benefit from the generosity of your local church, I offer heartfelt thanks.

Please convey to the faithful the gratitude and appreciation of His Eminence Leonard Cardinal Sandri, Prefect of the Congregation of the Eastern Churches and also His Eminence Timothy Michael Cardinal Dolan, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of CNEWA.

The beneficiaries of this mission support are most grateful, and promise you a remembrance in their prayers. May God Bless you in all your labors. Many thanks for your Missionary Heart and your Hard Work....

God Bless You All!

Please remember “The Society for the Propagation of the Faith” when writing or changing your will.

OBITUARIES

David Minsavage

David “Savage” Minsavage, a graduate of Wadhams Hall Seminary College and a former counselor at Camp Guggenheim in the ‘80’s, died April 9 after an eight month heroic battle with pancreatic cancer.

David was a math teacher and baseball coach at Hanover Park High School in New Jersey. He is survived by his wife, Christine and their four children, Pelagia, David, Peter and Tomas. David was 53 years old and would have celebrated his 25th wedding anniversary this summer.

There are many testimonials to David’s life online. However, the most impressive words came from David himself. After being diagnosed with the pancreatic cancer in August, he wrote a letter to his friend Father John Yonkovig. The letter became the homily at his funeral: “I know that I have been blessed with such a full and incredible life and I thank God for each of you being a part of it. ...I hope that I can be remembered as someone who wanted to make the world a better place through laughter, song, praise, imparting knowledge and idealistic hope”.
