The importance of parents

VATICAN CITY (CNS) - Parents must not exclude themselves from their children's lives and, despite what some "experts" may say, they must take an active role in their children's education, said Pope Francis during his general audience in St. Peter's Square May 20.

"It's time for fathers and mothers to come out of their exile - because they have exiled themselves from their children's education -- and to fully assume again their educational role," he said.

Continuing a series of talks about the family, the pope said its "essential characteristic" is its "natural vocation to educate children so that they grow in responsibility for themselves and for others."

But, faced with numerous experts who tell them how their children should be raised, many parents have withdrawn their involvement in their children's education, and this is "very grave," he said.

"Critical' intellectuals of all types have silenced parents in a thousand ways to defend the younger generation from the damages - real or imagined - of education in the family," he said. "The family has been accused, among other things, of authoritarianism, favoritism, conformism and affective repression that generates conflict." The result is a "divide between families and society, between families and schools," he said.

PILGRIMAGE TO ITALY: Join Bishop LaValley during Holy Year... p. 13
Of fathers and Fathers

It wasn't easy for me to type the date on top of each of the pages of this week's NCC. May 27, the day my dad was born 88 years ago, has always been a day of great celebration in our family. The festivities invariably expanded -- a little early or a couple days late -- to fill the entire Memorial Day weekend.

Every year, as many of his children and grandchildren as possible traveled home for birthday cake and barbecues. A couple even matched his bravery with a dip in the St. Lawrence. (Until the last year or two of his life, Dad always achieved his personal goal of swimming in his river before turning the page on a new year. His daughter was perfectly content to wait till June... or July!)

This year, the family gathered in Ogdensburg for a weekend in May for a different kind of celebration. As North Country families know too well, loved ones who die during the winter months cannot be buried until warmer temperatures soften the ground. Like so many others, our dad's committal service took place several months after his funeral.

As difficult as this was, it seemed right for us to come together one more time in May to say goodbye. Loved ones kept away from the funeral by treacherous February weather could join us in praying, reminiscing and, of course, more than a little bit of eating.

His grandson, Jonathan, was the first among the courageous to pay tribute by swimming. And, once again, we were reminded of the comfort we can find in our faith and through the rituals of the Catholic Church as our family makes this sorrowful journey together.

What a blessing it was to be surrounded by children, siblings, aunts, uncles and cousins -- and even a well-behaved grandson! -- in the pew of the cathedral for a Mass in memory of our dad and mom.

And what a blessing it was to pray at their graveside, with full confidence that we have two new saints interceding for all the family they left behind.

My fatherly musings took on a decidedly brighter note with thoughts of all the Fathers we are celebrating this week for their special anniversaries. The biographies printed throughout the pages of the paper this week barely scratch the surface of what these priests have meant to the people of the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

The list of parishes or Catholic schools to which they were assigned could never include the names of the thousands of people -- including you and me -- who brought closer to God through their 25, 30, 40 or 60 years of ministry.

We can only say thank you, Fathers and thank you, God, for the blessing which your lives have been for us all.

A PASTOR’S PERSPECTIVE

Reflecting, with gratitude, on life as a priest

My anniversary of my ordination as a priest is during this month of May. Actually, I know that many priests were ordained during the month of May. The seminary schedule each year ends classes in the spring so, for most dioceses, this means ordination follows in May or June.

I do remember most of the details of the day of my ordination at St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg. I suspect that most of you remember the events of your wedding day. I also remember the various emotions that hit me that day -- even after all of these years.

I -- like many other priests -- prepared for ordination day with a week of retreat. Over my years in the seminary, I had read a great deal about the priesthood of Jesus Christ. I had heard many priests talk about their lives as a priest and I had meditated often on the Gospels and discovered Jesus’ message to his apostles.

That final retreat became a time to consider a life time of dedication as a Catholic priest. The ordination ceremony was a celebration for me, for all of my classmates that day and for the Church. That celebration would continue with my First Mass that I celebrated at my own home parish, Holy Cross Church in DeWitt.

There were so many details that occupied me and there were so many people, family and friends, who occupied my attention.

So, there I was -- facing a life-time decision with all sorts of other things going on.

Sometimes I am asked if I ever thought on that day of my ordination that I should decide not to go on, to raise my hand and say this is not for me, I am out of here.

Thinking back all these years I don't think I thought of anything other than "I was ready," I truly longed to be a priest and couldn't wait for the moment when the Bishop's hands touched my head.

Now I must admit that there were certainly times over the years that I thought I had had enough, that I wasn't doing very well and I really should not continue in this ministry. However, the Lord was good to me and the Holy Spirit continued to enlist my life and priesthood with new strength, with peaceful help and with confidence that this is where God wanted me to be.

So, I look back with gratitude. The Lord has blessed my life with unique opportunities to use the gifts that are mine. I know only too well, that it was the Lord’s action in my life. I have had the privilege of offering the Holy Mass many times. I am constantly reminded by the Lord of the sacredness of the Holy Eucharist; there is something very sacred at those moments when I am at the altar. I have come to recognize Jesus’ great love in giving us, his people, this Blessed Eucharist. I understand his desire to be present in our lives in such a wonderful way with his people. And, I have seen his love for me, allowing me to celebrate this Eucharist often and to minister to his people in so many wonderful ways.

So, another anniversary, another time to realize that another year has gone by in my journey as a priest. I suppose that I really could tell you of all my assignments over the years. I can remember so many of the people I was privileged to work with, to help, to know. I remember all those many families I was allowed to be part of and from whom I learned so much about life.

So, as I get older, my gratitude grows and I must admit, my hopes do also. I have hopes that there will be a few more opportunities left for me to help and to accomplish something to make my life better and my world a better place.

I thank Jesus for the gift of these opportunities to bring his message and love to his people. Thank you, Lord, for guiding me and guarding me and leading me.
Knights of Columbus donate nearly $32,000 to rebuild school

St. Mary’s in Ticonderoga gets a boost

By Fred Herbst
Contributing Writer

TICONDEROGA - When St. Mary’s School re-opens this fall, it will be with the help of the Knights of Columbus.

The Catholic benevolent fraternal society has raised nearly $32,000 for the Ticonderoga school.

“On behalf of the Ticonderoga council and St. Mary’s School, we thank all of you for bringing everything together on the state and supreme level of the order to help our school,” said Mike Edson, Grand Knight of Ticonderoga’s Knights of St. Isaac Jogues Council 333. “The efforts of everyone involved are proof that, with faith, anything can be achieved.

“I am proud to be not only a Knight, but the Grand Knight of our council this year,” he said.

When a devastating and suspicious fire totally destroyed St. Mary’s School last September, the Knights of St. Isaac Jogues Council 333, their brother Knights throughout the Diocese of Ogdensburg and the New York State Council sprang into action.

Efforts were coordinated among Council 333’s Chaplain Father Kevin McEwan, Grand Knight Edson, Financial Secretary Richard Liddell, District Deputy William McIntyre and New York State Secretary Dr. Charles Robinson, who is a commissioned lay minister in the Diocese. Ticonderoga council Lecturer Frank McCabe and Treasurer Les Bilow also played key roles.

The fire occurred on a Friday. One week later, at the 4:30 Saturday Mass at St. Mary’s, the Knights State Secretary and the District Deputy presented Father McEwan and Principal St. Joseph Sister Sharon Dalton with a $2,500 check from the State Council on behalf of State Deputy Carmine Musumeci and the 90,000 Knights in New York State for the immediate needs of the school.

At that time, Father McEwan said that the funds “were already spent” as the supplies that the teachers bought to get the school running cost over $2,000.

The school was to restart the next day in temporary quarters in the newly-partitioned church basement and in the nearby First United Methodist Church.

The New York State Council has long been an ardent supporter of the Catholic schools in New York State and has for many years matched monetary donations from local councils to Catholic schools in their vicinities.

As such, it promised to donate an additional $2,500 if that amount could be matched by councils and assemblies within the diocese. Ticonderoga Council 333 was charged with coordinating that effort.

Council 333 had a drawing at its November dinner following its Memorial Mass. It gave out $5,000 worth of prizes, with $5,000 going to St. Mary’s. They sold 200 $50 tickets, letting only Council 333 Knights and their wives buy tickets. Hon. Dominick Viscardi, a Brother Knight of Council 333, won the $2,500 top prize and then donated that amount back to the fund for St. Mary’s. Thus 333 itself raised $7,500.

Within five months, other councils in the diocese, in New York State — as far away as Staten Island and as close as neighboring Port Henry — and in Winooski, Vt., donated nearly $8,800 and the state council put in its $2,500 match.

Donating were councils from Adams, Morrisonville, Plattsburgh (Council 6067 and Council 7215), Peru, Saranac Lake, Indian Lake, Brasher Falls, Port Henry, Bloomingdale, Champlain, Tupper Lake, Waddington, Massena, Keeseville, Canton, Old Forge, Malone, Lake George, Chateaugay, Potsdam, Staten Island, Norfolk and Winooski, Vt.

The State Secretary, through the State Deputy and New York-based Supreme Director Art Harris, inquired if the Supreme Council would be willing to help with recovery efforts, and Supreme in mid-March donated $10,000 to the school.

The State Secretary and the District Deputy again travelled over to St. Mary’s to present that check to the pastor and the principal.

All in all, thanks to the generosity of the Knights, more than $31,000 was raised in this five-month time frame. The Knights of Columbus is a worldwide society of 1.8 million men dedicated to the principles of charity, unity, fraternity and patriotism. By their action, their focus is on enhancing their parishes, families, communities and youth.

The Knights provide substantial relief and manpower after natural disasters, such as tropical storm Sandy in New York and New Jersey and Typhoon Haiyan in the Philippines.

The St. Isaac Jogues Council 333 has 259 members and a long history. The Ticonderoga Council of the Knights of Columbus was formed on April 24, 1898, with 42 members.

Congratulations

Fr. Marullo honored for his 40th anniversary as a priest

CONSTABLEVILLE – The parishioners of St. Mary’s Parish honored their pastor, Father Lawrence Marullo for his 40th year of ordination at a Mass and social May 5.

Father Marullo was born in Auburn, New York on Jan. 11, 1949 to Arnold and Hulda Marullo and has one sibling, a brother, Robert and his wife Sue who reside in Auburn.

While in school he started thinking a little about the priesthood, but he said an uncle had some influence on his decision.

Father Marullo began studying for the priesthood for the Diocese of Rochester in Becket Hall, attending St. John Fisher College, Rochester. He graduated with a B.A. degree and then entered St. Bernard’s Seminary in Rochester.

Father Larry (as he is known to many) transferred to the Diocese of Ogdensburg in the spring of 1973 and was ordained for the Diocese by Bishop Stanislaus J. Brzana on May 3, 1975 at St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg.

In his 40 years, he was first appointed parochial vicar (assistant pastor) in St. Mary’s, Massena (1975-1978); St. Joseph’s, Malone (1978-1981); St. Patrick’s, Watertown (1981-1984); administrator of Sacred Heart Church, Chazy (1984-1985); pastor in Star Lake and Newton Falls (1985-1988); Holy Name & St. Matthew Churches, Ausable Forks (1988-1992); St. Bartholomew’s and St. Anthony’s Churches, Old Forge (1992-2002).

Then in 2002 the churches in Constableville (St. Mary’s) and West Leyden (St. Mary’s Nativity) were lucky to have him transferred after the retirement of Franciscan Father Paschal Rys.

In 2011, Father Marullo had two more parishes added to his caretaking, St. Martin’s, Port Leyden and St. John’s, Lyons Falls.

He now has the four churches along with five cemeteries under his supervision which makes him a busy man. The cemeteries are St. Mary’s, St. Patrick’s, St. Michaels, Sts. Peter and Paul and Calvary.

With the four churches he still retains his main residence at the Constableville rectory. Father Larry participates in the activities and fundraisers of all four churches and monitors the church organizations as well as all his other required duties. He is happy to visit the sick, at home or in hospital if at all possible.
Two silver jubilarians are honored in 2015

Father John J. Cosmic and Father Thomas E. Kornmeyer were ordained by Bishop Brzana in 1990. They are celebrating 25 years of priesthood this year.

Father Cosmic is retired and living at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse. A native of Deferiet, he was born April 15, 1923. He earned a bachelor's degree from LeMoyne College in Syracuse in 1955 and worked for IBM for 28 years. In 1983, he was ordained a permanent deacon for the Diocese of Rochester and then began studies for the priesthood at Holy Apostles Seminary in Cromwell, Connecticut.

After his ordination, Father Cosmic served as parochial vicar at St. Mary's Cathedral in Ogdensburg and chaplain at the Ogdensburg Correctional Facility. In 1995, he retired and was named pastor emeritus in Chaumont.

Later, Father Cosmic served as administrator in Harrisville and Natural Bridge from 2000 to 2002 when he became administrator of Black River and Deferiet.

He retired again in 2003 but was named special parochial vicar of Carthage and Copenhagen in 2005 before moving to the motherhouse.

Father Kornmeyer will begin duties as pastor of The Catholic Community of Constable, Westville and Trout River as well as pastor of St. Mary's of the Fort Church in Fort Covington and St. Joseph's Church in Bombay and canonical pastor of The Catholic Community of Burke and Chateaugay on July 1.

He has served as pastor of St. Mary's Church in Evans Mills with missions at St. Joseph's in Philadelphia and St. Theresa of Avila in Theresa since 2012.

Born April 2, 1958 in Constableville, he was raised in Boonville. He graduated from Wadhams Hall in 1980, entered the U.S. Army and served for four years before returning to seminary studies at St. John's Seminary in Boston.

After ordination as a priest, Father Kornmeyer served as parochial vicar in Saranac Lake, Sacred Heart in Massena and Notre Dame in Malone.

In 1999, he was named administrator in Long Lake and Newcomb and pastor in those communities one year later.

Father Kornmeyer served as pastor at Saranac Lake, Lake Clear and Bloomingdale with missions in Gabriels and Paul Smiths before coming to Evans Mills, Philadelphia and Theresa.

Nepal authorities try to block Missionaries of Charity delivering aid

By Anto Akkara
Catholic News Service

KATHMANDU, NEPAL (CNS) -- Members of the Missionaries of Charity had to spend more than two hours waiting at police headquarters for clearance before they could deliver food, blankets and other promised relief to earthquake victims in a remote mountainous area of Nepal.

The group of six sisters, eight brothers and about six volunteers had asked for government permission to distribute relief materials to a remote area of Nepal.

The officers insisted that government permission was required for relief distribution.

The bishops of the Missionaries of Charity center for destitute women at Mitra Park in Kathmandu, the police escorts diverted the vehicles carrying relief material to police offices in Lalitpur District, one of the three districts in the Kathmandu Valley.

The officers insisted that government permission was required for relief distribution.

After the intervention of Bishop Paul Simick of Nepal, Chief District Officer Yadav Prasad Koirala let the group get on their way but warned that, in the future, the missionaries should leave relief distribution to the government.

The nuns told the officials that they had distributed relief material to the people in the Khani Dhanda area and, with Catholic youth, had trekked eight hours to identify other needy families who had not been reached by relief groups.

"This is the first time we are facing such a situation," Sister Marica told Catholic News Service as the convoy of five vehicles took to the dusty mountain path to Khani Dhanda.

Sister Armelle, the most senior of the Missionaries of Charity in the group, explained that they had purchased relief material from the market according to the requirements of the people and to their preliminary visit.

"In some areas, they asked for utensils. In other places, they asked for more rice," Sister Armelle said.

When the convoy reached Khani Dhanda, the Missionaries of Charity brothers unloaded the 140 kit bags, while the sisters lined up those who had been given coupons on the earlier visit.

Eldery women carried the relief materials in cane baskets on their heads.

Ram Bahadur Tamang, a student, told CNS that recipients were grateful for the help, noting that, "except for (Buddhist) monks who came with rice, nobody has bothered to come here in three weeks."

Brother Michael Tirkey, who traveled from India to join the Missionaries of Charity relief work in Nepal, said, "I don't think these people would have got anything if we had left the (relief) kits with the government."

The religious order's relief efforts should have been unhindered by the government, Bishop Simick told Catholic News Service May 19, noting that he hoped for "better understanding and coordination from government officials in the days to come."

The Catholic Church is the major provider of relief to remote areas of Nepal after thousands of people lost their lives and thousands more were injured in a magnitude-7.8 earthquake that hit the capital Kathmandu and its surrounding areas April 25.

The earthquake was followed by several aftershocks, including one that measured 7.3 May 12.

Francis Rebbello, a logistics expert camping in Kathmandu to facilitate church charities' supplies from India, told CNS that the government's intention is probably "to ensure that the relief material reaches the needy and intended recipients."

Rebbello said it had taken him two days to travel to the India-Nepal border to release more than 10 Caritas and Catholic Relief Services supply trucks from India that were held up at the checkposts.

For graduates of Catholic colleges

WASHINGTON (CNS) -- A best-selling suspense novelist, a four-time Grammy winner, a Chicago archbishop and a New York cardinal, and lawmakers and corporate leaders were among speakers at undergraduate commencements this spring at the nation's Catholic universities and colleges.

And at least one family had three children in the class of 2015: the Marbach triplets, Melanie, Megan and John Jr., each graduating from a different university in a different state on a different date.

In Washington at The Catholic University of America's 126th annual commencement May 16, novelist Mary Higgins Clark told graduates to trust in God as their own life story unfolds.

That day, she said, they would begin writing the prologue of "your own suspense novel, and it's called, "The Rest of My Life.""

Author of 42 books and a lifelong Catholic, Higgins Clark said the graduates -- whether they will be starting a new job, continuing their studies or pursuing a religious vocation -- will now be protagonists in their own life story.

Like the protagonist in her own novels, she urged each one to "be a person who combines faith, optimism, intelligence, generosity and a good sense of humor."

The ability to laugh at oneself and at fate "is a cure for both body and mind," she said, adding that she always tries to give protagonists a good friend, too.

"That buddy may be a parent, a sibling, a lifetime pal, but I want all of you to have that kind of person in your life," she said, adding that her protagonists often find a love interest, "the person who may share your life with you."

CATHOLIC WORLD AT A GLANCE

U.S. will fall in love with Pope Francis when he visits, says speaker

BROOKLYN, N.Y. (CNS) -- America will fall in love with Pope Francis when he visits in September. That is the prediction of Austen Ivereigh, author of "The Great Reformer, Francis and the Making of a Radical Pope," who was the main speaker at the Brooklyn Diocese's May 13 celebration of World Communications Day. The daylong conference at the Brooklyn Marriott centered on the upcoming visit by the pontiff Ivereigh received the diocese's St. Francis De Sales Distinguished Communicator Award. The conference was organized by the DeSales Media Group, the parent company of the Tablet and NET-TV, the diocese's newspaper and television station. "I think he's going to give an incredibly robust speech to Congress," said Ivereigh. "It's going to be absolutely fascinating. He's going to tell the politicians -- connect with ordinary people, serve the common good, serve the most vulnerable in society. "To the U.N., he'll be talking about climate control and that will be very powerful. He will have different message for the various audiences."

After arriving in Washington Sept. 22, Pope Francis will be welcomed to the White House by President Barack Obama and first lady Michelle Obama Sept. 23. Pope Francis is scheduled to address a joint meeting of Congress Sept. 24, making him the first pope to do so. His U.S. trip includes a Sept. 25 address to the U.N. General Assembly. He will be in Philadelphia Sept. 26 and 27 for the World Meeting of Families.

Mother Teresa's canonization in 2016 only hypothetical, says Vatican

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- Despite reports in the Italian press that Blessed Teresa of Kolkata's canonization has been set for Sept. 4, 2016, a Vatican spokesman says the date is only hypothetical and cannot be confirmed. Jesuit Father Federico Lombardi issued a statement May 19 in response to media reports that the founder of the Missionaries of Charity, who worked among the poorest of the poor, would be canonized before the end of the upcoming Holy Year of Mercy. "It is a working hypothesis, therefore there is no official confirmation to be given," said Father Lombardi. "The cause for Mother Teresa is still underway and it is therefore premature to speak of an already established date for the canonization." But Italian media have reported that Archbishop Rino Fisichella, president of the Pontifical Council for the New Evangelization, told Rome's municipal officials May 18 that Mother Teresa's canonization has been set for Sept. 4, 2016. Archbishop Fisichella's office is organizing the Holy Year of Mercy, which will begin Dec. 8, 2015. According to the Italian newspaper Corriere della Sera, the archbishop also told city officials that the relics of St. Padre Pio, a Capuchin priest who bore the stigmata of Jesus, will be brought to Rome from southern Italy for veneration by the faithful. The date for the translation of the relics has not yet been set. With large crowds expected for both events and throughout the Holy Year, Archbishop Fisichella reportedly asked on behalf of the Vatican that city officials guarantee all pilgrims health care during the Holy Year. The Italian newspaper also reported that the archbishop asked the municipality to clear out the street vendors around St. Peter's Square, who tend to gouge pilgrims with overpriced goods.

Church needs women's voices, input, experiences, Pope Francis tells religious

By Cindy Wooden

Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) - Women can be appointed heads of some offices of the Roman Curia, Pope Francis said, but that will not be enough to "recover the role" women should have in the Catholic Church.

"Women should be promoted," he said May 16 during an audience with an international group of men and women religious working in the Diocese of Rome. But assigning a certain number of women to leadership positions is "simply functional," he said.

What is important is to ensure that women have a voice and are listened to, he said, because the church needs their specific contributions.

"When we men are dealing with a problem, we arrive at a conclusion, but if we deal with the same problem along with women, the conclusion could be different. It could lead along the same path, but it could be richer, stronger, more intuitive," he said. "Women in the church must have this role," because the church needs "the feminine genius."

During the pope's long meeting with the religious, he responded off the cuff to questions posed by two women and two men. But he also highlighted the stories and ministries of religious he has met during his two years as bishop of Rome and experience he had previously as archbishop of Buenos Aires.

Amignonan Father Gaetano Greco asked the pope how the diocese and religious orders of men could help religious women find good spiritual directors and confessors.

Pope Francis responded that for both women and men religious finding a good spiritual director can be a problem either because a priest "does not understand what consecrated life is, or because he wants to involve himself in the charisma and give it his own interpretation."

What is important is to ensure that women have a voice and are listened to because the church needs their specific contributions

Looking for a good confessor also can be difficult, he said. When going to confession, a religious doesn't need "a nice chat between friends," but he or she also does not need "one of those rigid ones."

"In the other diocese I had," he said, referring to Buenos Aires, "I always asked the sisters who came to me asking advice, 'But tell me, in your community or congregation isn't there a wise sister, a sister who lives your charisma well, a good sister with experience? Ask her to be your spiritual director.'"

The pope said he once was told, "But she's a woman!"

"Spiritual direction, the pope said, "is not a charisma exclusive to priests. It's a charisma of the laity."

"The pope said he was reading a book on obedience by St. Siluan of Mount Athos, who was a carpenter. 'He wasn't even a deacon, but he was a great spiritual director.'"

Pope Francis encouraged religious superiors - of both men and women - to identify members of their congregation who are good and wise and patient, and get them training in spiritual direc-

"It's not easy," the pope said. "A spiritual director is one thing and a confessor is another.

"I go to a confessor, say what my sins are, feel condemned, then he forgives everything and I go forward."

"But with a spiritual director, I have to talk about what is in my heart. The examination of conscience isn't the same for confession and for spiritual direction," he said. For confession, I have to look at where I was lacking, where I lost patience, if I was greedy - that kind of thing, those concrete things that are sinful.

"But in spiritual direction, I must examine what is happening in my heart, where the Spirit is moving, if I felt desolation or consolation, if I am tired, why I am sad: These are things to talk about with the man or woman who is my spiritual director," he said.

"When you find a consecrated man or woman who cannot discern what is happening in his or her heart, who cannot discern a decision, it's a failing of spiritual direction," the pope said. "This is something only a wise man or wise woman can do."

Iwona Langa, a consecrated virgin, asked the pope how married couples and consecrated people can help each other realize they both have a vocation to love and they can support one another in their fidelity to that love.

The key, the pope said, is to remember that love is concrete.

"Your love as a woman is a concrete, maternal love," he said. The 25th chapter of Matthew's Gospel outlines just how concrete Christian love is to be: among other things, it involves feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, visiting prisoners.
Celebrating the mystery of the Trinity

On Trinity Sunday, we celebrate the core doctrine of “relationship” of the three divine Persons within the one God, and also the relationship between God and all human persons.

Since this is a mystery (a truth beyond the human mind to understand fully), we can only ponder it with awe, explain it in stumbling, human words, but accept it with joy.

What can we do with it? We can ponder it—and live it!

It’s terribly important, or God would not have told us about it.

To know that God is our Father and Creator gives us stability, security, and purpose.

To know that God is our brother who redeemed and saved us, gives us a Lord to serve and love.

To know that God the Holy Spirit is a Fire within us gives us courage and inspiration to act.

The first reading from Deuteronomy, speaks about the One God who led His people from sin and slavery to the land of Promise and eventually to the Kingdom. It shows us the Wonder and the Power of our God.

The second reading from St. Paul to the Romans about the Spirit of God who makes us children of God and joint-heirs with Christ of the Kingdom. With Christ, we share a common destiny.

The Gospel describes the scene of Jesus just before His ascension as He gives us our commission—to make disciples of all nations, and to baptize them "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit".

We would never have known that there are three Persons in one God unless Jesus had explicitly revealed this great Truth to us.

Think of the Sign of the Cross. Everything Christians do in praise of the Father, through God His Son, and in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Let us always make this Sign slowly and reverently, aware that in this sign, we conquer evil, proclaim our faith, and give proper praise to the Holy Trinity.

Pope Francis urges reflection on 'final farewell'

By Laura McEwan
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) - Everyone would do well to reflect on their "final farewell" from earthly life and on whether they are prepared to entrust themselves and all they will leave behind to God, said Pope Francis.

During a morning Mass at the Domus Sanctae Marthae May 19, the pope reflected on the day’s readings in which Jesus, after speaking to his disciples of his imminent departure for the Father, prays "the hour has come" (Jn 17:1-11a), and in which St. Paul gathers with the elders of Ephesus before leaving for Jerusalem (Acts 20:17-27).

Every life involves many leave-takings, both great and small, the pope said, and some involve “many tears” and “much suffering.”

Drawing on current events, the pope recalled the “poor Rohingya of Myanmar” -- an estimated 8,000 members of the mostly Muslim ethnic group have been adrift at sea, refused asylum by several countries -- as well as the Christians and Yezidis who are being persecuted in Iraq.

"When leaving their homeland to escape persecution, they did not know what would happen to them," the pope said, speaking of the Rohingya people. After having been on a boat for months, "they arrive in a city where they are given water, food, and are told, 'Go away'. It is a leave-taking," the pope said.

"Incidentally, today there is great existential leave-taking," he continued. "Think of the departure of the Christians and of the Yezidis, who think they will never return to their land because they have been forced from their homes."

The pope then spoke of the "final leave-taking, which everyone will face, when the Lord calls us to the other side."

The great leave-takings in life, including the final farewell, "are not departures of the type 'see you soon,' 'later' or 'until we meet again,' when a person knows he or she will return," he said. "They are departures where we do not know when and how we will return."

The theme of leave-taking is also present in art, he continued, recalling a song of the Italian Alpine corps about a captain saying farewell to his troops.

"Do I think of my final farewell, of the moment when I must say not 'see you soon,' 'later,' 'until we meet again,' but 'farewell,'" the pope asked.

The day's Scripture readings speak of farewell, he said, and of Paul and Jesus entrusting their disciples to God's care.

"To entrust to the Father, to entrust to God: this is the origin of the word 'adieu,'" he said. "We say 'adieu' only in the great leave-takings in life, whether in life or the final one."

The pope encouraged meditation on Jesus and Paul's farewells in the day's readings and reflection on one's own eventual final farewell. "It will do us good," he added. "Who will be the person who will close my eyes? What am I leaving behind? What did I do?"

"It would do me well to imagine myself in that moment. When it will be, no one knows, but the moment will come when 'later,' 'see you soon,' 'see you tomorrow,' 'until we meet again' will become 'farewell,'" he said.

"Am I prepared to entrust my loved ones to God? To entrust myself to God?" he continued.

He concluded invoking the risen Christ to send the Holy Spirit, so that "we may learn" to say the final adieu "with full strength."
The Bellas are back and singing their hearts out in "Pitch Perfect 2" (Universal), the ongoing trials and tribulations of a college a cappella group.

Elizabeth Banks, who reprises her role of snarky pageant official Gail, serves as director and co-producer of this sequel, which essentially follows the same template as the 2012 original. That means spirited musical numbers in the name of sisterhood (and landing a boyfriend), but also, regrettably, bawdy language, off-color humor, and sexual innuendo.

We return to the fictional Barden University, where members of the Bellas are now seniors and ready to graduate. Having won the national a cappella title, they are invited to perform in Washington, before President Barack Obama and first lady Michelle Obama (shown in a cameo).

The appearance takes a disastrous (and tasteless) turn when Fat Amy (Rebel Wilson) – her preferred name to pre-empt insult – has a wardrobe malfunction and exposes herself to the audience. A scandal erupts, and the Bellas are banned from future competition.

Much soul-searching ensues among the group’s leaders, Beca (Anna Kendrick) and Chloe (Brittany Snow). They discover that the road to redemption lies overseas with the world championships, which no American team has ever won.

The competition is dominated by a German supergroup called Das Sound Machine. They are the antithesis of the fresh-faced Bellas, menacing and clad in black leather. Their lead singer is a dominatrix aptly named Kommissar (Birgitte Hjort Sorensen).

With countless references to World War II, the battle is on between the USA and Germany.

Along the way to the showdown in Denmark, the Bellas hone their craft and regain their harmony in sing-offs against male counterparts including a tuneful bunch of real-life Green Bay Packers (don’t ask). They are also inspired by a new recruit, Emily (Hailee Steinfeld), daughter of a former Bella who writes her own songs.

"Pitch Perfect 2" works best when showcasing the catchy songs and not the dialogue, which is shockingly tone deaf. The attempts at humor by belittling women, foreigners and even religion is out of tune with what should be a wholesome anthem for self-improvement and achievement.

The film contains implied nonmarital relationships, adult themes and innuendo, occasional crude language, and an obscene gesture. The Catholic News Service classification is A-II -- adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 -- parents strongly cautioned. Some material may be inappropriate for children under 13.

Dear Friends,

Why not join me and other pilgrims on a journey of a lifetime—a pilgrimage to Italy during the Extraordinary Jubilee Year of Mercy? A highlight of our travels will be four days in Rome where we will enter St. Peter’s Basilica through the Holy Doors and also visit the other three major basilicas. We hope to have an audience with Pope Francis and tours of the Sistine Chapel, the Coliseum, the Vatican Museum, as well as visit many other spectacular places holding sacred and cultural treasures. Our pilgrimage will, also, see us at such awesome locations as Venice, Florence, Siena, Orvieto and Assisi.

A Holy Year offers unique opportunities for spiritual growth. This Holy Year Pilgrimage to Italy promises to be a time for prayer, an increase in faith, and a whole lot of enjoyment for all the pilgrims. The frosting on the cake: gaining the plenary indulgence associated with such a pilgrimage during a Holy Year.

I hope you’ll join us for what promises to be an exciting and spiritually enriching time together.

Faithfully yours in Christ,

Bishop Terry R. LaValley

WOULD YOU PRAY FOR A PRIEST EACH DAY?

PRAYER SUGGESTION

O Jesus, Eternal High Priest, live in (name a priest), act in him, speak in and through him. Think of your thoughts in his mind, love of your thoughts in his heart; take over his entire person; possess his soul; take over even if he is poor and homeless. Incline him to constant adoration and thanksgiving; pray for him and his people. Let him live in you and keep him in this intimate union; come to him in all his needs and thoughts; teach, lead and guide him always. Correct, enlighten and expand his thoughts and behavior. Possess his soul; take over his entire personality and life. Amen.

ASSEMBLY DEMOCRATS BLOCKING HELP FOR CATHOLIC KIDS

Governor Cuomo has proposed a Parental Choice in Education Agenda that includes an Education Tax Credit to encourage donations to scholarship funds serving parents with children in Catholic and other schools. This would increase substantially the amount of money we could raise and the number of scholarships we could award.

At the same time, the Governor has proposed a $500 tax credit to reimburse parents directly for their tuition payments. That’s right, $500 for every child a parent has enrolled in a Catholic or other private school.

The bill also would help public-school children by encouraging donations for music, arts, sports, tutoring and after-school programs. Teachers also would get up to $200 to reimburse them for money they spent out of their own pockets for classroom supplies.

Governor Andrew Cuomo and the State Senate already are on board. But, Assembly Speaker Carl Heastie and Assembly Democrats are blocking this important bill.
