Pope: it's OK to complain to God

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — To complain to God in moments of doubt and fear like Abraham did is not something bad but rather is a form of prayer that requires the courage to hope beyond all hope, Pope Francis said.

While in life there may be times of frustration and darkness, "hope is still there and it moves us forward," the pope said Dec. 28 during his weekly general audience.

"I won't say that Abraham loses patience, but he complains to the Lord. This is what we learn from our father Abraham: complaining to the Lord is a form of prayer," Pope Francis said.

Sometimes I hear confessions where people say, 'I complained to the Lord.' But no. (Continue) to complain; he is a father and this is a form of prayer. Complain to the Lord, this is good," he said.

Entering the Paul VI audience hall, the pope greeted thousands of pilgrims from all over the world.

Among those present was a group of performers from Italy's Golden Circus, who performed several acrobatic feats and entertaining performances at the end of the general audience.

YEARNING FOR PEACE

Pope Francis delivers his Christmas blessing "urbi et orbi" (to the city and the world) from the central balcony of St. Peter's Basilica at the Vatican Dec. 25. The song of the angels that heralded the birth of Christ urges men and women to seek peace in a world divided by war, terrorism and greed, Pope Francis said. "Today this message goes out to the ends of the earth to reach all peoples, especially those scarred by war and harsh conflicts that seem stronger than the yearning for peace." Migrants, refugees, children suffering due to hunger and war, victims of human trafficking as well as social and economic unrest were also remembered by the pope. Full story, page 7

SCENES OF THE SEASON: Christmas celebrations across the diocese... p. 5
EDITOR’S NOTE

A year to be inspired and merciful

Catholics of the Diocese of Ogdensburg spent much of 2016 celebrating the universal call to holiness, the vocation of every individual.

Support for all vocations was the focus of an historic summit which drew 4000 to Lake Placid in September and it marked the work of youth ministry, lay ministry and the revamped Office of Vocations.

The vocation summit in Lake Placid — Inspire: Called to Love — highlighted the year as thousands from the North Country, neighboring dioceses and Canada, joined in prayer and listened to internationally acclaimed speakers.

Bishop Robert Barron, auxiliary bishop of Los Angeles and founder of the global media ministry Word on Fire, delivered the keynote address.

Breakout sessions were led by Bishop Christopher Coyne of Burlington, chairman of the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops committee on communication; Jennifer Fuller, writer, speaker, mother, radio host and former atheist; and George Weigel, Distinguished Senior Fellow of the Ethics and Public Policy Center of Washington, D.C.

The program of Inspire: Called to Love also included the diocesan Youth Rally, the annual Marriage Jubilee and Religious Jubilee.

Just two weeks after Inspire, the diocese celebrated the particular call of the priesthood as Bishop LaValley ordained Father Todd Thibault Oct. 8 at St. Mary’s Cathedral.

Father Thibault, now parochial vicar in Canton, had been ordained a transitional deacon April 2 at St. James in Carthage.

The bishop also presided at the deacon ordination of Deacon Michael Jablonski, May 28 at St. John’s in Plattsburgh.

To further support vocations to priesthood and religious life, Bishop LaValley announced the restructuring of the Diocesan Vocation Office.

Catherine Russell, a former principal of Seton Catholic in Plattsburgh, was named vocation coordinator while Father Douglas Lucia was appointed diocesan vocation director and Father Thomas Higman, associate vocation director.

A PASTOR’S PERSPECTIVE

Because Jesus was once one of us…

Christmas – Epiphany – the Baptism of Jesus. These are the feast days of the Christmas season.

On these important and sacred holy days, we Catholics celebrate the incarnation of Our Savior, Jesus Christ. Jesus became one of us. The Son of God accepted our humanity; he was born as a tiny baby just like you and I. He lived among us to teach us and demonstrated how to bring love and peace to our lives and our world. He died on the cross, giving for us out of love that all he could give. Then he found new life to show us the way to our resurrection.

We are blessed people, a holy people, because Jesus was once one of us. Our humanity is truly consecrated because Jesus was once one of us. This means that our possibilities are endless. We are truly capable of so much, so many magnificent, almost miraculous things, because Jesus was once one of us. The days of our Catholic liturgical feast days fill our year over and over. Each of these feast days is a celebration of the incarnation of Jesus. We have the opportunity to, again and again, unite ourselves in a special way with Our Lord and Savior, Jesus. Each time we allow Jesus into our lives – as in these wonderful Christmas celebrations – Jesus becomes our spiritual guide, showing us the best way to live our lives.

After the Christmas season, we will continue to follow Jesus through the time of Lent, that time of prayer and repentance as we prepare for the feast days of our salvation during Holy Week.

On Palm Sunday, we walk with Jesus as he enters Jerusalem to meet his Passion and death.

On Holy Thursday, we join the apostles and Jesus at the Last Supper for the institution of the Eucharist.

Then on Good Friday, we walk with Jesus to Calvary and stand at the foot of his cross. Our Holy Week Journey ends with Easter Sunday as we discover the empty tomb and celebrate the Lord’s Resurrection.

I am hoping that this year at this Christmas Season you will discover the powerful presence of the Lord. Jesus wants to walk with us. Jesus wants to show us a real purpose for our day to day life and, as we walk with Jesus, we will live according to his words.

This is such an important time for us, a time to strengthen our faith in the presence of our Lord who continues to be with us even today. This is a time to put new life into our faith in God and our faith in the blessedness of our own humanity.

Jesus was one of us. He came to show us that we, humans, are blessed and capable of so much greatness. Jesus was once one of us. He wants us to realize that we can successfully meet the challenges of life when we walk with Jesus.

I would like to add one more thing here. This year during the Christmas season there were two funerals of friends of mine, among so many others. One of our priests in the Diocese of Ogdensburg, Father Paul Beyette, died; his funeral was just before Christmas. He was a dedicated pastor with deep concern for his parishioners and had so many other interests, such as ecology. The other was a friend and former student, John Graham. He endured a long battle with cancer. Throughout his life he was a dedicated Catholic, a man of deep faith. He was truly a loving husband, father and grandfather. He was always dedicated to the needs of others, working for many years in the programs of Catholic Charities.

At first, many would think that Christmas time would be a rather sad and difficult time for a death and a funeral. However, I discovered immediately for my two friends - whose lives had been so completely connected with Jesus – that these feast days of love and peace were a perfect time to celebrate their lives.

I want you to know that Christmas and the celebration of the birth of the Lord brought us all a certain peace and love – knowing how close the Lord was to them. And we discovered how close the Lord was to the rest of us who were remembering and celebrating our friends who were now with the Lord. As we celebrated Christ’s birth and life – we celebrated the lives of our dear friends now with the Lord.
What will we bring to the New Year?

On the first day of each New Year, for the last fifty years, popes have delivered a Papal Message for the World Day of Peace. Pope Francis entitled his 2017 address: "Nonviolence: A Style of Politics for Peace."

The Holy Father writes of the piece-meal violence that wreaks such great pain and suffering in the lives of so many around the globe. He cites wars in different lands, terrorism, organized crime, abuses suffered by migrants and the victims of human trafficking, as well as the devastation of the environment.

"We can add to his list the physical, emotional, verbal and sexual abuse suffered by spouses and children, gang violence, bullying, incendiary language, among others.

We know that Jesus, like us, lived in violent times. In such an environment, Jesus taught that violence and peace meet in the human heart. So many folks today are grating the New Year without peaceful hearts.

Peace is not the absence of war, but the path marked out for us, a better question to ponder is what will we bring to the New Year? What will our hearts produce? Will we bring to others the fruits of Christ-- hope and gain the graces to write straight with crooked lines. The angel departed but the path marked out for her by God remained.

Can you and I resolve this New Year to offer God the same trusting response as did the Queen of Peace? Maybe rather than asking what will the New Year bring us, a better question to ponder is what will we bring to the New Year? What will our hearts produce? Will we bring to others the fruits of our, personal encounter with Jesus Christ-- hope, reconciliation and charity?

Will my New Year's resolutions include works of mercy where I might serve as an instrument of God's peace and unconditional love, beginning at home within my family?

Pope Francis writes: "the politics of nonviolence have to begin in the home and then spread to the entire human family."

He cites the Little Flower, St. Therese of Lisieux as one who practiced the little way of life, urging you and me "not to miss out on a kind word, a smile or any small gesture which can sow peace and friendship."

Cardinal Walter Kasper writes that peace in the world starts small: in the heart and in thoughts of peace, in the everyday lives of each of us, in families and in workplaces, in neighborhoods, and in many individual human encounters. From there it streams out into the larger world of politics.

He writes: "The light emanating from the manger in Bethlehem has lost none of its fascination up to our own day. God reveals his power and greatness in weakness. If we confess our faith in this Child as the Prince of Peace, the One whose dominion is without end, then we must change our thinking, renounce violence, and become peace-makers through many small acts of love."  (Accepting the Mystery, 2016).

Each time we make efforts to heal rather than hurt, hearts are softened and we get a taste of God's peace in our midst.

Our resolve to look for more opportunities, however modest, to be an instrument of peace can be greatly enhanced by committing ourselves to a stronger devotion to Mary this New Year. Seeking her intercession is a powerful means to strengthen our hope and gain the graces to live with the trust and confidence that characterized the Virgin's life. Make 2017 the year to give our hearts to Mary, Queen of Peace! There is much she can teach us. With Mary as our model, we will not allow confusion and fear to cripple our witness to Christian hope.

The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord let his face shine upon you, and be gracious to you. The Lord look upon you kindly and give you and your loved ones His peace! Blessed New Year everyone!

K of C council receives international award

WATERTOWN - Knights of Columbus Council 259 of Watertown has earned the distinction of Star Council, one of the organizations top awards for the 2015-2016 fraternal year.

The organization’s headquarters, located in New Haven, CT, made the announcement.

The award recognizes overall excellence in the areas of membership recruitment and retention, promotion of the fraternal insurance program, and sponsorship of service-oriented activities.

The award was presented to Grand Knight John Morgia by District Deputy Michael Deline at their regular meeting Dec. 12.

In announcing the local winner of the Star Council Award, Carl A. Anderson, chief executive officer of the organization, said “Please accept my sincere congratulations upon achieving this prestigious award. Your dedication to the Order is seen in the high standard of excellence you have achieved.

"At the same time, I encourage you to carry forward this enthusiasm to meet the challenges that will face the Knights of Columbus in the years ahead," Anderson said.

"May this award be a reminder and an inspiration to the members of your council to continue to promote the ideals of Columbianism for the good of the Church, your community and the Order."

Grand Knight Morgia, head of the local council, said, "Receiving the Star Council Award is quite an honor for us. We are extremely proud of how hard our Council worked to achieve this goal."

The Knights of Columbus is the world's largest Catholic lay organization. It provides members and their families with volunteer opportunities in service to the Church, their communities, families and young people.

With more than 1.9 million members in over 15,000 council around the world, the Knights annually donate more than $175 million and 73 million hours of service to charitable causes.

The theme for the annual Bishop’s Fund Appeal was Mercy in Motion, while the NCC featured a series “God’s Mercy in God’s Country,” showing how Catholics in the diocese live out the corporal works of mercy.

Social justice issues were emphasized in several initiatives in the diocese in 2016. Efforts against assisted suicide and human trafficking drew attention as did political responsibility in the weeks before the presidential election.

An end of life conference was held March 19 in Saranac Lake and the first annual Blue Mass - offering support for those who work in law enforcement, the military and prisons - took place Oct. 30 in Malone.

Various groups of Catholics of the diocese found encouragement in conferences and meetings held during the year.

The priests gathered in Alexandria Bay in May for a priests’ retreat led by Cardinal Timothy Dolan.

Earlier that month, Bishop Howard Hubbard, retired bishop of Albany, addressed the annual Deacon Convocation in Lake Placid.

Commissioned lay ministers gathered several times during the year in regional groups for fellowship and continued education.

Teachers met in Lake Placid in October for the annual Superintendent’s Day and Catholic teenagers gathered at Guggenheim in Saranac Lake for six weeks of summer camp and a Leadership Weekend.

Also during the year, Kelly Donnelly, new diocesan director of youth ministry, organized a Diocesan Youth Council.

Young people also participated in the annual March for Life in Washington, although the trip was cut short by a blizzard in the nation’s capital.

Traveling a bit further, ten young adults from the diocese were among the millions who traveled to Poland for World Youth Day.

New faces in church leadership during the year included James Crowley who replaced St. Joseph Sister Jennifer Votraw as chancellor for the diocese. Sister Jennifer moved to Watertown to serve as superior of the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse.

Several people received special honors during the year. Kelly Sternisha, a teacher at St. James in Gouverneur, was named Catholic School Teacher of the Year, while Catholic Charities presented its annual Caritas Award to the Mercy Care for the Adirondacks and its President’s Award to Linda Young of Lake Placid.

The year was a time for many sad farewells including the departure of the Ursuline Sisters who were honored at a farewell celebration in Malone in July.

And, we mourned the clergy who died: Father Edward Papp on May 13, Deacon William Schmidt, May 15; Father George Maroun, June 30; Father Lawrence Cotter, Aug. 7; Deacon George Steward, Oct. 11 and Father Paul Beyette, Dec. 14.

Now, we enter a new year with words from Bishop LaValley: The Lord bless you and keep you. The Lord let his face shine upon you, and be gracious to you. The Lord look upon you kindly and give you and your loved ones His peace! Blessed New Year everyone!
CATHOLICS OF THE NORTH COUNTRY CELEBRATE CHRISTMAS

SCENES OF THE SEASON

The students of Seton Academy in Plattsburgh presented their annual Christmas program on Dec. 21. PreK-Grade 2 entertained the audience with “The First Christmas” and Grades 3-5 performed “Star of Wonder - A Children’s Musical of Hope.” Ella Manion was Mary, Patrick Benware was St. Joseph, and Mick Bateman was the Infant Jesus.

Amongst small tokens of appreciation passed out at the Christmas Eve Mass at St. Ann’s in Wells, Father Sony Pulickal surprised Fran and Kathy Gramlich from St. James Church in Lake Pleasant with the “Service Award.” The Gramlich’s were awarded a plaque for their almost 50 years of service to the church. Father Pulickal said, “through many years and many priests, the Gramlich’s have always been of great assistance to the parish.” Mr. Gramlich was on the Board of Trustees more than once and has always been ready to help with whatever needed to be done. Mrs. Gramlich headed up the Altar and Rosary Society, buying the candles, setting the altar and flowers and more.

The Catholic Community of Burke & Chateaugay Youth Group along with Belly Buttons hosted a Birthday Party for Jesus Dec. 17 to collect new toys and food for the less fortunate in the community. The kids enjoyed a show by Belly Buttons, balloon animals, crafts and birthday cupcakes. Pictured, back row, are Cameron Dumont, Zoey Perkins, Cora Fitzpatrick, Belly Buttons, Jenna Decosse, Jacob Decosse, Jenna Cornell, Brady Fitzpatrick, Destiny Perkins and Luke Dalton; front, Mason Santamoor, Luc Demers, Drew Crawford, Adam Perkins, Alison Dumont, Anna Dalton and Ainsley Crawford.

National Migration Week
The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops has proclaimed the week of Jan. 8 – 14, 2017, as National Migration Week, with this year’s theme “Creating a Culture of Encounter”.
Since its inception in the 1960’s, National Migration Week is an attempt to draw attention to the plight of the many refugees, immigrants, and victims of human trafficking that occur in our country, as well as those who suffer from forced relocation in other places around the world.
At the start of this New Year, it is important to realize how blessed our nation has been, and to recognize that it is our responsibility to assist those who have not had the good fortune to be born here. Being forcibly uprooted and displaced from one’s home, livelihood, and culture is one of life’s most traumatic experiences. However, for most of these individuals, the nightmare continues as they are forced to confront and deal with people who view them in the most unfavorable light.
As Catholics, we are called to treat everyone with respect, especially strangers and those travelers who are in need. When living in the North Country, it is easy to overlook the physical hardships and emotional stress that permeates the lives of millions of the displaced souls on our planet.
As a Catholic community, we must be generous in providing financial support to Catholic Charities and other organizations that directly help these people. We must also be generous with our prayers in asking God to alleviate the suffering of displaced people. We must also be generous with our smiles, friendly faces, and words of encouragement to anyone who seems to be in need of having their spirits uplifted. St. Francis of Assisi is believed to have said, “Preach the Gospel always, and only use works when necessary.”

World scarred by war, greed must welcome prince of peace, pope says

By Junno Ancho Esteves
Catholic News Service

VATICAN CITY (CNS) -- The song of the angels that heralded the birth of Christ urges men and women to seek peace in a world divided by war, terrorism and greed, Pope Francis said.

"Today this message goes out to the ends of the earth to reach all peoples, especially those scarred by war and harsh conflicts that seem stronger than the yearning for peace," the pope said Dec. 25.

Migrants, refugees, children suffering due to hunger and war, victims of human trafficking as well as social and economic unrest were also remembered.

"Peace to the peoples who suffer because of the economic ambitions of the few, the idolatry of money, and the idolatry of money, which leads to slavery," he said.

An estimated 40,000 people slowly made their way through security checkpoints in St. Peter's Square to attend the pope's solemn Christmas blessing "urbi et orbi" (to the city and the world).

Heightened security following the Dec. 19 terrorist attack in Berlin, Germany, was evident as police cordoned off streets and established multiple checkpoints throughout the area.

While police presence is standard for major events in St. Peter's, the added security was a sign of the times where crowded areas have become a target for terrorists.

The pope prayed for "peace to those who have lost a person dear to them as a result of brutal acts of terrorism that has sown fear and death into the hearts of so many countries and cities."

Countries ravaged by the scourge of war were also in the pope's thoughts, particularly in "the war-torn land of Syria, where far too much blood has been spilled," especially in the city of Aleppo.

The pope called on the world to support the people of Syria with humanitarian assistance and to put an end to the conflict.

"It is time for weapons to be silenced forever and the international community to actively seek a negotiated solution so that civil coexistence can be restored in the country," he said.

The pope appealed for peace for the people of Ukraine, "who to this day suffer the consequences of the conflict."

The Vatican announced Dec. 23 that the first installment of 6.3 million euros ($7.63 million) would be distributed on Christmas Day to assist in relief efforts in Ukraine. Earlier this year, the pope called for a collection across churches in Europe to help the people of the war-torn country.

"Iraq, Libya and Yemen, where their peoples suffer war and the brutality of terrorism," were in the pope's prayers so that they may "be able to once again find unity and harmony."

The pope also remembered Africa, especially Nigeria where fundamentalist terrorism "exploits children in order to perpetuate horror and death" as well as South Sudan and the Democratic Republic of Congo, calling on their leaders to choose the path of dialogue rather than "the mindset of conflict."

He also prayed for peace in the Holy Land and that Israelis and Palestinians turn away from hate and revenge while having "the courage and determination to write a new page of history."

Praying for an end to current tensions, the pope also called for peace in Venezuela, Colombia, Myanmar and the Korean peninsula.

Christ's birth, he said, is a sign of joy and a call for the world to contemplate "the child Jesus who gives hope once again to every person on the face of the earth."

"For to us a child is born, to us a son is given. He is the prince of peace; let us welcome him."

After his address, the bells of St. Peter's rang loudly, pealing throughout the square as they did in the evening Dec. 24 following the proclamation of Jesus' birth during Christmas Mass.

The darkness of the night sky over St. Peter's Basilica was broken by the bright lights emanating from the colonnade and the Christmas tree from the square.

Temperatures just above 40 degrees didn't stop thousands of people unable to enter the packed basilica from participating in the Mass, sitting outside and watching the Mass on giant screens in St. Peter's Square.

In his homily, the pope said the love of God is made visible at Christ's birth on a night of glory, joy and light "which would illuminate those who walk in darkness."

The shepherds are a witness to "the enduring sign of finding Jesus when they discover him wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger," a sign that is given to all Christians today, the pope said.

"If we want to celebrate Christmas authentically, we need to contemplate this sign: the fragile simplicity of a small newborn, the meekness of where he lies, the tender affection of the swaddling clothes. God is there," he said.
SCREPTURE REFLECTIONS

Epiphany completes spirit of Christmas Mass

The theme of the Epiphany really completes the spirit of the Mass for Christmas Day.

There, Isaiah had foretold that “all the ends of the earth will behold the salvation of our God.” And the Gospel for that Christmas Mass had promised that all people would eventually be the chosen ones. “…to those who did accept Him, he gave power to become children of God.”

And now, on the Epiphany, the light from the skies is intensified a hundred, a thousand fold. The prophecy of Isaiah is fulfilled that “nations shall walk by your light, and kings by your shining radiance.”

To the amazement of all in that region, there come foreign camels bearing foreign scholars - wise men - kings! Caspar, Melchior, and Balthasar, with gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh! What courage and perseverance those strangers have shown, to brave the dangers of travel, skepticism, and political intrigue. But they found what they were looking for. That star gave trustworthy guidance and now triumphantly shines as guard over the lowly dwelling wherein rests the child who possesses all meaning. They fall to their knees in adoration, and the one Source of Light, judge and Arbiter of Truth and the one Source of Light, but we are all called to be “epiphanies”, providing glimpses of that Truth, showing the way in our own small spots of time and circumstance to a larger plan and destiny.

Princely Child, make of us all wise men and courageous women, obedient children who will follow wherever you lead us. That means being faithful to prayer, diligent in imitating the enthusiasm and guidance of Pope Francis in sharing with those seeking the Light.

This is the way for us to be light-bearers, helping banish the darkness and confusion in the world in which we live.

Books provide daily reflections for the new year

Here are some new books that offer daily reflections for the new year.

• "Heaven Starts Now: Becoming a Saint Day by Day" by Fr. John Riccardo. Word Among Us Press (Frederick, Maryland, 2016). 143 pp., $12.95.

Collateral Beauty

"Collateral Beauty" (Warner Bros.) is a strange, pretentious drama about overcoming grief. While that's obviously a subject about which a good film -- perhaps many of them -- might be made, the treatment of it in director David Frankel's quirky mess of a movie is at once too bizarre and too pat to yield any insights.

The talented cast certainly do their best to redeem the proceedings, though ultimately their effort proves futile.

Will Smith plays Howard, a formerly successful advertising executive so emotionally paralyzed by the death of his young daughter that he endangers the future of his firm by his neglect of clients. In response, Howard's three principal colleagues -- Whit (Edward Norton), Claire (Kate Winslet) and Simon (Michael Pena) -- hire a trio of actors, vain Brigitte (Helen Mirren), fetching Amy (Keira Knightley) and skateboarding street kid Raffi (Jacob Latimore), to prove that Howard's distress has rendered him incompetent. And this is where things get rather squirrelly.

The thespians are to prove that Howard has gone off his rocker by impersonating the three abstractions -- death, love and time -- to which, as private detective Sally (Ann Dowd) has discovered, Howard has written, and mailed, angry letters. Sally will capture the resulting exchanges on her mobile phone, the players will be edited out of the footage, and Howard will be shown ranting away to himself. Cuckoo, Q.E.D.

To take the blatantly unethical nature of this maneuver on the part of Howard's partners, who also claim to be his friends, seriously would first require a jumbo-sized suspension of disbelief.

The fact that the death-love-time triad also just happens to fit the life situations of these treacherous amigos similarly strains credibility.

The occasional jokes that leaven the dialogue in screenwriter Allan Loeb's script, moreover, are far outnumbered by fortune-cookie sentiments the audience is clearly meant to receive as nuggets of wisdom.

Some of these come from the picture's moral-compass setter, Madeleine (Naomie Harris). A bereaved mother who leads a therapy group Howard reluctantly joins, Madeleine also shares the anecdote from which "Collateral Beauty" takes its title.

If you've ever heard the one about "silver linings," you probably much know what the moral of that story is going to be. Those willing to endure the blizzard of cliches of which the eponymous phrase forms but a flake will, however, find a warm endorsement of marital fidelity waiting for them at the wrap.

The film contains an adulterous theme as well as several crude and a couple of crass terms. The Catholic News Service classification is A-III -- adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG-13 -- parents strongly cautioned.

Sing

A generally amiable but flawed musical cartoon, "Sing" is populated mostly by animals, in which the koala bear owner (voice of Matthew McConaughey) of a failing theater aims to revive his business by staging a singing contest. The quintet of finalists in the competition comprises a conceited mouse (voice of Seth MacFarlane) who croons in a Sinatra-like style, a gifted teenage elephant (voice of Tori Kelly) afflicted with stage fright, a harried pig housewife (voice of Reese Witherspoon) run ragged by her 25 children, a gorilla gangster's son (voice of Taron Egerton) who would rather belt out Elton John tunes than help his dad steal and a porcupine punk rocker (voice of Scarlett Johansson) coping with the selfishness of her live-in boyfriend. Friendship and loyalty are triumphant amid plot complications that include a typo escalating the winner's prize a hundredfold. But writer-director Garth Jennings incorporates into his film not only a living arrangement that has no place in a movie aimed at children but a German-accented male stage partner (voice of Nick Kroll) for Witherspoon's character who exudes swishy enthusiasm and favors glitzy leotards. Probably acceptable for mature teens. Cohabitation, some scatological humor, scenes of peril. The Catholic News Service classification is A-III -- adults. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG -- parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
