Pope: Those unable to give are slaves to possessions

VATICAN CITY (CNS) – Life is for loving, not amassing possessions, Pope Francis said.

In fact, the true meaning and purpose of wealth is to use it to lovingly serve others and promote human dignity, he said Nov. 7 during his weekly general audience.

The world is rich enough in resources to provide for the basic needs of everybody, the pope said. "And yet, many people live in scandalous poverty and resources – used without discernment – keep deteriorating. But there is just one world! There is one humanity."

"The riches of the world today are in the hands of a minority, of the few, and poverty – indeed, extreme poverty, and suffering – are for the many," he told those gathered in St. Peter's Square.

The pope continued his series of talks on the Ten Commandments, focusing on the command, "You shall not steal," which reflects respect for other people's property.

However, he said, Christians should also read the commandment in the light of faith and the church's social doctrine, which emphasizes the understanding that the goods of creation are destined for the whole human race.

Diocese posts names of removed priests

Bishop Terry R. LaValley announced that the Diocese of Ogdensburg published the list of priests the Diocesan Review Board and/or the Diocesan Bishop found reasonable grounds to remove from ministry under the Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People.

Bishop LaValley said the decision to publish the list was made in response to the controversies that have challenged the church in the past three months.

NEW KNIGHTS

Sunday, November 4, 27 men from the Diocese of Ogdensburg advanced through the Knighthood Degree of the Knights of Columbus. The Exemplification took place at the K of C Hall in Tupper Lake. The Degree was under the direction of the Conferring Officer, Roger Miner from Dannemora and the Warden, Deacon David Clark of Plattsburgh. The New Knights of Columbus members will be going back to their councils to carry out the work of the order. New Knights include Edward Demo, William Scott Sr., Thomas Cunningham, George Grube, Troy Deno, David Petrelli, Samuel Murphy, Jed Dukett, Eric Decelle, Peter Tebo, Rich Brady, David Brett, Paul Scheidelman, Edward Keel, Rolando Guerrero, David Russell, Mark Kozsan, Vincent Bodah, Tylor Storkey, Zachary Cowperthwait, Joseph Kimpfen, Mark Zagrobelny, Francis Dumont, James Moesch, Adam Gayne, Gregory Clark and George Chamberlin. Also pictured are Deacon Clark, Miner and Knight Brandon Baldwin.

IRISH, CATHOLIC AND PROUD

The Msgr. James Ruddy Division of the Ancient Order of Hibernians (AOH) recently donated to Immaculate Heart Central School in Watertown. Accepting the donation from AOH Msgr. James Ruddy Division member Bill Flynn is Amanda Mcilroy, assistant development director.

The AOH is now actively recruiting new members. Any Catholic male age 18 or over with Irish heritage is eligible for membership. The fraternal organization celebrates Irish heritage and supports local charitable organizations.

“Ever since the creation of the world, his invisible attributes of eternal power and divinity have been able to be understood and perceived in what he has made.” – Romans 1:20

It would be an understatement to say I thoroughly dislike cold weather.

If the topic comes up in conversation, I am almost certain to spout a litany of complaints: “Heating a house is expensive. Shoveling is torture; people die doing it. Driving on icy roads is stressful. I get cold easily. Snow is a four-letter word that starts with ‘S’ and ends with ‘NOOOOOOO!’”

In fact, I can think of only two endearing things about winter: Christmas and sleeping with my family, and I only do the latter if the temperature is above 20.

With that in mind, I was more than a little unhappy to find a thick layer of frost when I opened my front door one day last week. My snow brush/scrapper still in storage (that has since been corrected), I sat in my vehicle, waiting for the defrost function to work its magic and grumbling about the cold.

My windshield clear, I got on the road for my commute to work.

With the sun just beginning to make its appearance over the trees devoid of leaves, the rural roads seemed very gray and lifeless.

Just a few miles into my commute, as I awaited an opportunity to safely pass an Amish buggy, I noticed a horse eating in the field adjacent to the road. When the horse lifted its head from the pile of feed, its breath was visible.

The cold that made the world look lifeless allowed me to see enchanting beauty.

I briefly considered that God was trying to teach me to love the cold, but I’m pretty sure He knows that would take a miracle.

Sisters are blessing to me, our diocese

Recently, I was asked by the Sisters of the Precious Blood to present a week-long retreat to the sisters at their monastery in Watertown. As often happens for me, I was touched spiritually much more than the sisters. I also discovered the tremendous value that these sisters and their monastery have for our diocese.

This monastery is truly a house of prayer. This monastery stands as a symbol of the Catholic faith for this community and this city. All who see it know immediately of the faith of those who helped build the monastery and continue to support it. Every day, the sisters are praying for all of us. In addition, all are welcome to come to the monastery and spend time in prayer – in silence and solitude. The sisters accept requests for prayer, and they always include in their prayers the bishop, priests and deacons, and people of our diocese.

This monastery, like others in the diocese, is a sign that there are many sisters who are willing to step out of the work-a-day world and dedicate their lives to prayer. They spend time bringing our requests of prayer to the Lord. These sisters are true contemplatives. Yet spending time with them this week, I realized quickly they were ordinary folks – just like the rest of us. However, they were called by the Lord to this vocation of prayer as Sisters of the Precious Blood. They have dedicated their lives to be near to the Lord in prayer.

Some of us may consider this vocation too difficult. We are so immersed in this world and involved in so many activities that we can’t imagine spending time just in prayer. However, spending this time in the monastery, I discovered a satisfying peace and joy. I realized also that the sisters were helping so many especially by bringing prayer to the Lord for those in need of help and consolation. Many people come to the monastery searching for the help that only God can give them.

I write this today as a way of offering my gratitude to those sisters with whom I prayed this week. I recognized that they bring a powerful ministry for this city and our diocese. I have come to realize the support and strength of their prayers, as well as their readiness to support me and my ministry. I am certain I am guided and led by the Lord through the prayers of these sisters.

We are blessed here in our diocese by many such monasteries and convents – many congregations of sisters and brothers always ready to direct their prayers seeking God’s help and love, supporting and helping those in ministry and those in need.

By the way, there is a place for others who sense a call, a vocation to be part of a religious community dedicated to prayer. It is a unique challenge for our church and a wonderful opportunity to make a difference with their lives. These are truly dedicated saints who are prepared to deluge heaven with prayer for God’s people.

St. Therese of Lisieux, who spent her short life in the convent, praying passionately for the missionaries of the world, wrote this in her, “The Story of a Soul”:

“For me, prayer is the heart’s impulse, a simple gaze toward heaven. It is a cry of gratitude and love, from the depths of trial as well as the height of joy. Finally, it is something great, supernatural, that expands my soul and unites me to Jesus.”
Decision has been made to release the names

My dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

I am writing to address an important matter: the release of the names of priests removed from ministry according to the provisions of the Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People. In the past, we have declined to publicize the names of these individuals for many reasons, including due process questions. While there are strong arguments for releasing the names and strong arguments for not releasing the names, recent controversies in the Church make it necessary for us to now release the names.

The recent controversies and scandals have produced righteous anger, discouragement and frustration among the people of God. Increasingly, the faithful have called for the release of the names of those removed from ministry under the Charter. The list of names will be posted on our diocesan website.

I know the release of names will cause pain for those on the list, their families, former parishioners and friends. There will be a need for compassion and understanding among all of us. While our main concern is the safety of our young people and helping victims find healing and peace, we must also strive to uphold the dignity of those removed from ministry. Mercy and reconciliation are central to our mission as the Church of Jesus Christ.

We are facing great challenges in our Church. However, we remain Christ-led, Christfilled and Hope-filled. We continue to trust in the Lord’s presence among us and follow His way. As we face adversity, we remain faithful to our call and do the work the Lord gives to us. We are to fight the good fight, run the good race and keep the faith, to paraphrase St. Paul. Let us pray for and encourage one another. Wishing God’s blessings to you and your loved ones, I am

Faithfully yours in Christ,
Most Reverend

List of credibly accused clergy published online

Bishop Terry R. LaValley announced that the Diocese of Ogdensburg published the list of priests and diocesan Review Board and/or the Diocesan Bishop found reasonable grounds to remove from ministry under the Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People. Bishop LaValley said the decision to publish the list of names was made in response to the controversies that have challenged the church in the past three months.

“There are strong arguments for releasing the names and strong arguments for not releasing the names,” said Bishop LaValley. “Ultimately, the challenges facing the church at the present time make it necessary to release the names for the sake of transparency and safety.”

The names will be posted on the diocesan website on the Safe Environment page. The list includes allegations dating back to the 1940s, and all priests named are either deceased or out of ministry.

“The Catholic faithful have asked more and more in recent days for the release of the names,” said Bishop LaValley. “We view this as an important step to restore confidence of the faithful in their Church.”
Capital campaign progresses toward goal

The It's Our Church, It's Our Future Capital Campaign continues to inspire more and more of the faithful throughout the parish communities of the North Country. Fifty-nine parishes in Blocks 1 & 2 are actively participating in the Campaign (with Block 3 currently conducting the active phase of the campaign).

Eighteen (18) of the 59 parishes have already exceeded their goals. Congratulations! An additional 13 parishes are over 75 percent of goal. Thank you to those families who have responded early in this campaign. The diocese is grateful for your sacrifice and support. With continued follow up of those parishioners who have yet to respond, more and more parishes will surpass their campaign goal in the coming weeks and months.

The consulting firm Guidance in Giving Inc. is conducting the capital campaign and working closely with the Diocese of Ogdensburg Development Office to hit the campaign’s $16.3 million goal. Included in the $16.3 million is $1.3 million for the 2018 Bishop’s Fund Appeal.

Of the funds raised once the parish meets its Bishop’s Fund Appeal, 75 percent of funds raised will remain at the parish for their direct needs, such as parish programs, ministries and capital improvements. Each parish has developed its own case statement outlining how funds raised will address their specific parish needs. The remaining 25 percent of the funds raised supports the parish’s indirect needs such as retired priests, seminarians, Camp Guggenheim and St. Mary's Cathedral.

The chart to the right is a current progress update.
SCENES FROM AROUND THE DIOCESE

FACES OF FAITH

From Sept. 1 to Oct. 13, a group of 20 men, including six Immaculate Heart Central alumni, wore pink to support the Making Strides against Breast Cancer, Real Men Wear Pink Campaign. This event raised over $70,000; $25,000 of which was raised by the members of the Real Men Wear Pink Campaign! On Oct. 13, a walk was held to honor those who lost their lives to breast cancer, to support those who currently have cancer, and to promote early detection of this disease. To set the tone, Immaculate Heart Central School’s Marialena Mouikel sang the National Anthem.

Students from Faith Formation classes at St Peter’s Church, Lowville, enjoyed learning about saints and All Saints Day. Each child picked a saint and drew or painted a picture of what they were the Patron Saint of. Students were encouraged to have their parents help them look up the saint, find information about them, and share it at class the following week. Pumpkins were placed near the Sanctuary for All Saints Day Masses.

Eleven young parishioners of St. Joseph’s in Dannemora recently received the Sacrament of Confirmation. The youth are pictured with Bishop Terry R. LaValley and Father John M. Demo.

Father Timothy Canaan recently visited seminarian Leagon Carlin while he was attending his 25th anniversary at Mount St. Mary’s Seminary in Emmitsburg, Maryland. Leagon is a first year Theologian at Mount Saint Mary’s.

Support for Thanksgiving dinner appreciated

To the Editor,

For 25 years, Knights of Columbus, Msgr. A.D. Charbonneau Council 258 in Ogdensburg have offered a free Thanksgiving dinner to all who ask for it. More than a meal, this is an opportunity for socialization and support. The meal preparation is provided by local community volunteers, and the food is generously donated by the community.

Last year, the Knights’ Thanksgiving Dinner fed 658 people on Thanksgiving Day. Over the years, with the help of our volunteers and donors, we’ve been able to feed over 18,000 holiday dinners to those in need.

This year, dinner will be served Thanksgiving day starting at noon. Deliveries begin at 11 a.m. Volunteers prepare and serve the food, deliver meals to homebound residents, and decorate, set up and clean the hall. We appreciate everyone who gives up family time on Thanksgiving to help us. Without the support of our community, we would not be able to do this. As we all know, the costs go up every year but, the generosity of the community continues to make this holiday meal possible.

If you can donate toward this year’s Thanksgiving Dinner, please mail your check to the Knights of Columbus, Msgr. A.D. Charbonneau Council 258, Attention: Chairperson BILL TAYLOR, 721 Hasbrouck Street, Ogdensburg, NY 13669.

We will be setting up and decorating on Wednesday, November 21 at 6 p.m. All help is very much appreciated.

Please call the clubhouse at (315)393-7990 for reservations or takeouts. If there’s no answer, please leave a message with your name and telephone number, and we will get back to everyone who calls. Thank you in advance for everyone’s help and monetary donations.

At the Knights of Columbus we are very grateful for all the help we receive. May everyone have a wonderful holiday season.

Knights of Columbus,
Monsignor A.D. Charbonneau Council 258

2017-2018 ANNUAL REPORT
Passing Our Living Faith to Future Generations

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ:

It’s Our Church, It’s Our Future is the theme of our Diocesan-wide Capital Campaign. This message reminds you and me of our commitment to build vibrant faith communities in our Diocese. Since 2007, The Foundation of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Ogdensburg, NY, Inc. has been a valuable means for this local Church to Build a Bridge for the Future.

The Foundation continues to be an important instrument to make planned gifts that benefit the works of the Church. As you know, the growth of our Church in the North Country depends on all of us supporting the many ministries and the corporal and spiritual works of our Diocese.

Since its establishment, forty-nine endowments have been created in the Foundation. These are listed in this 2018 Annual Report as well as their beneficiaries. Parishioners, families and organizations continue to make planned gifts to the Foundation as a means of support for our parishes, Catholic schools and other organizations of the Diocese of Ogdensburg. Please take a moment to review the report and learn more about the Foundation’s mission and how it functions.

We are very grateful to Mr. Scott Lalone, Diocesan Director of Development for his valuable counsel and leadership of all our development efforts. The publication of this annual report gives us a good opportunity to thank the members of the Board of Directors of the Foundation for their wise stewardship in overseeing the investments and dividends of its funds.

I am extremely grateful to all who have had the foresight in establishing and contributing generously to the Foundation. These gifts are a perpetual source of revenue for the future works of the Church. If you have not already, I encourage you to consider developing an estate plan for the benefit of your loved ones. The Foundation is a valuable means for you to begin a legacy for the next generations.

Wishing God’s blessing to you and your loved ones,
I am

Gratefully yours in Christ,

Most Reverend Terry R. LaValley
Bishop of Ogdensburg

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of The Foundation is to pass our living faith to future generations by financially supporting the charitable, spiritual, educational and temporal works of the Catholic Community of the Diocese of Ogdensburg by accepting donations or endowment funds from donors and the administration of these funds.

In fulfilling its mission, The Foundation will:
- Provide estate planning and charitable giving information and assistance.
- Provide gifting vehicles in which the Church or related entities are the designated beneficiary.
- Provide responsible and financial management and distribution of earnings that further the mission of the Catholic Church.

Catholics are called by God to protect human life, to promote dignity, to defend those who are poor, to strengthen the Church and to seek the common good. The Foundation exists to help Catholics live out this sacred mission of the Church, through the wise stewardship and thoughtful sharing of their financial resources.

The Foundation will provide permanent endowments and memorial funds for donors who want to give lasting support to parishes, schools, religious and social service ministries in the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

Cardinal: Resist the 'cold shadow' of euthanasia

TORONTO (CNS) – The “cold shadow” of euthanasia is spreading, warned Cardinal Thomas Collins.

Speaking at the 39th annual Cardinal’s Dinner in Toronto Nov. 8, the cardinal urged 1,600 attendees to fight attempts to expand Canada’s euthanasia law to include minors.

“The time for review of the federal euthanasia law is upon us, and there is great pressure to eliminate the so-called ‘safeguards’ which made it seem to be not so terrible,” he told the audience at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre.

“One such safeguard is that euthanasia is to be only for adults. Now we hear arguments made that the concept of ‘adult’ is to be made so elastic that even minors are to be eligible for euthanasia, even without the consent of their parents. The cold shadow of euthanasia is spreading further in our land, and we must resist that,” the cardinal said.

In December, a government committee is expected to deliver a report that examines extending assisted suicide to youth under 18, psychiatric patients, and consenting adults who give an advance directive to be euthanized in the event they become incapacitated by illness or disease.

The cardinal stressed the need for access to palliative care.

“That, not euthanasia, is the way forward,” he said.

“When people are lonely and feel that they are useless, and that life is not worth living, we must reach out, in practical love and support. Each person is worthy of life and of our love.”

The dinner featured head table guests from several layers of government, as well Archbishop Luigi Bonazzi, the Holy See ambassador to Canada.

The central theme of Cardinal Collins’ speech was on the importance of Catholic health care, although he also acknowledged several issues that have been in the news: the “terrible evil” of the attack on the Pittsburgh synagogue, the plight of Christians suffering religious persecution in the Middle East, and the church’s sex abuse scandal.

“We must always be vigilant and continue zealously to eliminate corruption from the church,” he said about abuse.

“Above all, we must remember that the pain of what was suffered in the past continues into the present for those who endured this great evil. We must never cease to do whatever we can to help all victims of abuse.”

Voters in two states pass anti-abortion measures

WASHINGTON (CNS) – An Oregon measure that would have banned state funding for elective and late-term abortions was defeated by voters Nov. 6, while an amendment to the West Virginia constitution stating that women do not have a right to an abortion was passed by a narrow margin.

Alabamans also approved a measure that makes it state policy to ‘recognize and support the sanctity of unborn life and the rights of unborn children.’

The measures were among several nationwide that attracted the interest of Catholic voters, including the legalization of marijuana, the expansion of Medicaid and what would have been the first-ever carbon emission tax in a single state.

The Oregon anti-abortion proposal gained the support of Archbishop Alexander K. Sample of Portland, who urged Catholics to approve the measure, in a column that appeared Nov. 1 on the website of the Catholic Sentinel, the archdiocesan newspaper.

The measure was written to overturn a 2017 Oregon law that expanded taxpayer funding for abortion.

The passage in West Virginia opens the door to the state Legislature banning abortion if the U.S. Supreme Court overturns its 1973 Roe v. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide.

Elsewhere, voters approved Medicaid expansion for low- and moderate-income residents in traditionally conservative Idaho, Nebraska and Utah, the only three states where such measures were up for a vote.

CATHOLIC WORLD AT A GLANCE

Buffalo bishop responds to criticism

CHEEKOTOWA, N.Y. (CNS) – Buffalo Bishop Richard J. Malone told reporters at a news conference he held Nov. 5 outside Infant of Prague Church in Cheektowaga that at a meeting earlier in the day with the diocese’s priests, two of them had asked him to resign. The bishop acknowledged ongoing criticism over his handling of clergy abuse complaints but said he has no plans to resign.

“I know that there may not be a high level of trust right now, but I do believe that working with others who continue to believe in me, we can steer through this storm into a calm sea,” said Bishop Malone, who has headed the Buffalo Diocese since August 2012. The day of the news conference the diocese added 36 names to a public list of priests with substantiated claims of sexual abuse of a child, bringing the number to 78. Other actions by the diocese have included instituting an Independent Reconciliation and Compensation Program.

Holy Land Catholic leaders ask Israel to repeal law

JERUSALEM (CNS) – The controversial Israeli Nation State law must be repealed because non-Jews also are citizens of Israel, said the Catholic ordinaries of the Holy Land.

“We, as the religious leaders of the Catholic Churches, call on the authorities to rescind this basic law and assure one and all that the state of Israel seeks to promote and protect the welfare and the safety of all its citizens,” they said in a statement early November. The ordinaries include bishops, patriarchs and religious leaders of various rites who serve in the Holy Land. All residents of Israel, regardless of their religion, must be treated as equal citizens, the Catholic leaders said.

The law, which was passed in July, establishes that “the right to exercise national determination in Israel is unique to the Jewish people,” that “Jewish settlement is a ‘national value,’” mandating the state to “encourage and promote its establishment and development.”

The law also establishes Hebrew as Israel’s only official language, downgrading Arabic to a “special status.”

The Catholic leaders noted that since the creation of Israel in 1948, Arab citizens have been struggling with manifestations of discrimination. The new law, they said, is a blow to the very democratic values protected and promoted by the Human Dignity and Liberty Basic Law passed by the Israeli Knesset in 1992. Now one of Israel’s basic laws – something akin to a constitutional law which guides Israel’s legal system – it is more difficult to repeal than a regular law.

Pope recognizes martyrdom of U.S. Christian Brother

VATICAN CITY (CNS) – Pope Francis has recognized the martyrdom of De La Salle Christian Brother James Miller, who was born in Wisconsin and was shot to death in Guatemala in 1982. The recognition of the martyrdom of Brother James, or Brother Santiago as he also was known, clears the way for his beatification; the date and location of the ceremony were not immediately announced. Publishing news about a variety of sainthood causes Nov. 8, the Vatican said Pope Francis had recognized as “blessed” a 15th-century Augustinian brother, Michael Giedrojc. The recognition amounted to the “equivalent beatification” of Brother Giedrojc, who was born in Lithuania and died in Krakow. With the pope recognizing that over the course of centuries the brother has been venerated by thousands of Catholics, the normal process leading to beatification is not needed.

Brother Miller, the U.S. martyr, was born Sept. 21, 1944, in Stevens Point, Wisconsin. He met the Christian Brothers at Pacelli High School there and, at the age of 15, entered the order’s juniorate in Missouri. After the novitiate, he taught Spanish, English and religion at Cretn High School in St. Paul, Minnesota, for three years. He also was in charge of school maintenance and served as the football coach.
God is generous to those who give in sacrifice

At this time of year, we get a sense of ending. As autumn gives way to winter, days are darker, nights are colder, and the calendar year is nearly ended. Next Thursday, we celebrate Thanksgiving Day. It’s a time for prayer, reflection on the good things God has provided for us, and to beg his forgiveness for our failures to share them with those in need. It’s also the end of the church year, which concludes next Sunday with the Feast of Christ the King.

Today, the readings are all about the final “end time” or Apocalypse. The Book of Daniel speaks about the Son of Man, coming on the clouds of heaven to judge all humanity.

“Some shall live forever; others shall be in everlasting horror and disgrace... But the wise shall shine brightly, like the splendor of the firmament, and those who lead the many to justice, shall be like the stars forever.”

These last Sundays of the church year proclaim that one day we will all be judged by the Son of Man, who has given his followers the Great Commission of feeding the poor, helping the homeless and the handicapped, working to bring the peace to God’s creation. There are so many ways we can work now while there is still time – the Campaign for Human Development, our own Urban Mission, Catholic Charities and Catholic Relief, to mention a few.

The Lord feeds us constantly at his table. Go in peace, in love, in service – to prepare the world for that day when the Son of Man will return in Glory!

Catholics have a duty to fight anti-Semitism

The following editorial, provided by Catholic News Services, was authored and originally presented by America, a national Catholic weekly magazine run by the Jesuits.

"Stop the words of hate," pleaded Rabbi Jeffrey Myers of Tree of Life synagogue, the day after a gunman killed 11 people worshipping there in Pittsburgh. The shooter reportedly shouted "All Jews must die" before he opened fire.

The shooter reportedly also made anti-Semitic comments to law enforcement after his arrest, including that "they (Jews) were committing genocide to his people." He also was a frequent user of Gab, a social-media platform that places few restrictions on the content that can be shared. His posts there were at turns anti-Semitic, nativist and nationalistic.

Pope Francis condemned the attack, saying, "We are all, in reality, wounded by this inhuman act of violence." His words were a reminder that Catholics have a special responsibility to stand with our Jewish brothers and sisters and denounce these acts of evil -- especially given the church’s own painful history of anti-Semitism. The church has taught since "Nostra Aetate" in 1965 that there is a "spiritual patrimony common to Christians and Jews," and reproves "any discrimination against men or harassment of them because of their race, color, condition of life, or religion."

On Saturday, President Donald Trump called for unity and condemned "the historic evil of anti-Semitism and every other form of evil." Unfortunately, his incendiary rhetoric both before and after the attack has helped to foster an environment in which such evils can fester. Leaders of a Jewish group in Pittsburgh have written an open letter telling Trump that "your words and your policies have emboldened a growing white nationalist movement" and have called on him to explicitly denounce white nationalism and cease his alarmist rhetoric about immigrants, refugees and minorities.

"Trump must recognize that his strong rejection of this specific episode of anti-Semitic violence cannot be fully credible if he continues to stoke fear and sow division for political advantage on other fronts. His call for unity needs to start with a clear break with his own patterns of accusatory and violent rhetoric."

"We must reject violence. But this is the least that we should do. We also must directly challenge the dehumanized ideologies that spawn such acts and the toxic political culture in which they find a fertile soil. This means challenging the vilification and marginalization of Jews and other minority groups, which give encouragement, even if unintentionally, to these acts of violent depravity."

The recent rhetoric directed against these groups is inhumane, un-Christian and un-American. In heeding Rabbi Myers’ call to end hateful words, we also must move past empty gestures. Now is the time to stand in peaceful solidarity with our brothers and sisters, with our whole minds, our hearts and our willing hands.

If the church has learned anything from its own history of anti-Semitism, it is that looking the other way is never justified. All people, but above all Christians, have a moral duty to support our Jewish neighbors; to call out anti-Semitism whenever and wherever it rears its odious head.

The views or positions presented in this or any other editorial are those of the individual publication and do not necessarily represent the views of Catholic News Service or of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops.
THE NUTCRACKER AND THE FOUR REALMS

NEW YORK (CNS)--German author E.T.A. Hoffmann's tale "The Nutcracker and the Mouse King" has proven a remarkably rich bit of source material since its initial publication in 1816.

Translated into French by Alexandre Dumas the elder, it gained wide popularity, with Dumas' version eventually becoming the basis for the much-loved 1892 ballet "The Nutcracker," composed by Pyotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky.

Directors Lasse Hallstrom and Joe Johnston's riff on both the story and the ballet, "The Nutcracker and the Four Realms" (Disney), may turn out to be much less durable than some of the other works derived from Hoffman's original. Though suitable for most, their visually rich but dramatically impoverished fantasy film will likely satisfy few.

The movie opens in Victorian London where teenager Clara Stahlbaum (Mackenzie Foy), her father (Matthew Macfadyen) — identified only as Mr. Stahlbaum — and her siblings, Louise (Ellie Bamber) and Fritz (Thomas Sweet), are all still in mourning for Clara's recently deceased mother, Marie (Anna Madeley). On Christmas Eve, Dad distributes the gifts Marie had chosen for them to the children.

Clara's present is a mysterious egg-shaped silver object with a lock but no accompanying key to open it.

In the course of her search for the missing item, a quest encouraged by her kindly godfather, Drosselmeyer (Morgan Freeman), Clara wanders into an alternate world that's divided into the territories of the title.

There, she learns, Marie once reigned as queen. But one of the regions, the Land of Amusements, led by the apparently villainous Mother Ginger (Helen Mirren), has since gone to war with the others: the Land of Sweets, the Land of Flowers and the Land of Snowflakes, presided over, respectively, by regents Sugar Plum Fairy (Keira Knightley), Hawthorne (Eugenio Derbez) and Shiver (Richard E. Grant).

So, aided — among others — by Capt. Phillip Hoffman (Jayden Fowora-Knight), a life-size nutcracker she has befriended, Clara sets out to defeat Mother Ginger and restore unity. But, as she soon discovers, all is not as it seems.

Throughout "Nutcracker," there's a nagging sense that the filmmakers are whispering in viewers' ears: "Isn't all this charming and spectacular?" Well, yes, on the surface at least. But more thoughtful moviegoers will also find the proceedings contrived. While predictable messages about believing in yourself and cooperating with others are perfectly acceptable, moreover, they are driven home ham-handedly.

Still, although too scary for small fry, "The Nutcracker and the Four Realms" is otherwise generally unobjectionable.

The film contains occasional peril and some frightening images. The Catholic News Service classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association of America rating is PG — parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

'Instant Family' a hit with target audience

NEW YORK (CNS)—The connections between real-life events and the forthcoming film "Instant Family" were the main topic of discussion at a recent news conference about the comedy.

The gathering, held at New York City's Mandarin Oriental Hotel, featured, among others, stars Mark Wahlberg and Rose Byrne as well as the movie's director and co-writer, Sean Anders.

"Instant Family" takes place in 2015, when Dax (Wahlberg) and Ellie (Byrne) adopt three foster kids. It was Morris who struck on the idea of turning these anecdotes into a film, Anders said.

"It didn't take Wahlberg, one of Hollywood's most prominent Catholics, long to make up his mind to join Anders for their third movie together, following 2015's "Daddy's Home" and its 2017 sequel. "I committed before I saw the script," remembered Wahlberg, who plays Pete, the adoptive father inspired by Anders. "It was something I wanted to be part of."

Byrne recalled that, in preparation for playing the role of Pete's wife, Ellie, she met with women who had fostered kids as well as with social workers who had served children in need of adoption.

"The oldest of the trio of kids Pete and Ellie shelter, and eventually seek to adopt, is frequently rebellious teen Lizzie (Isabela Moner). Wahlberg could easily relate to the more challenging of Lizzie's actions since he was simultaneously "dealing with similar behavior" on the part of his own adolescent daughter.

While acknowledging that much of the humor in the film was derived from the "chaotic, awkward situations" in which he and his wife sometimes found themselves, Anders also observed that "spending a year making a movie about your family, and how much you love your kids, is therapeutic -- in a good way."

Once the picture was completed, the filmmakers, Anders said, arranged for it to be pre-screened for an audience of foster parents. Fandango's Erik Davis, who moderated the event, said the website had been "inundated" by reaction to "Instant Family" from people affected by fostering and adoption. He added that the film's trailer was the most-watched of any Fandango had ever posted.

"Instant Family" will be released Nov. 16 by Paramount Pictures.

Mission Sunday lifts the world

Thanks to all of you throughout the North Country who have so generously given to our brothers and sisters in the developing countries.

I give thanks to Almighty God when I reflect upon your generosity in prayer and sacrifice for the missions.

Traditionally, November has been dedicated as a time of special prayer for our deceased and to remember the joy they brought into our lives.

It is indeed an opportune time to give thanks for our benefactors who were witnesses to the Gospel by their sacrificial offerings to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

The Diocesan Mission Office wishes to acknowledge in thanksgiving the following bequests made to the Society for the Propagation of the Faith.

May they rest in peace.

Rule confirms exemption to contraceptive mandate

WASHINGTON (CNS) – A rule finalizing the religious exemption to the contraceptive mandate should be “the end of a long cultural war fight” over the issue and confirm that the U.S. government “never needed nun’s to give out contraceptives” to women, said the president of the Becket law firm.

Commenting in a press call to reporters Nov. 8, Mark Rienzi said the rule issued a day earlier by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services “should be welcomed by people of good faith” on all sides of the issue.

In a joint statement Nov. 9, the president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops and the chairman of its Committee for Religious Liberty applauded the Trump administration’s decision “to finalize common-sense regulations” for religious employers.

The move allows “those with sincerely held religious beliefs or moral convictions opposing abortion-inducing drugs, sterilization, and contraception to exclude such drugs and devices from their health plans,” said Cardinal Daniel N. DiNardo of Galveston-Houston, USCCB president, and Archbishop Joseph E. Kurtz of Louisville, Kentucky, the committee chairman.

“These final regulations restore free exercise rights in accordance with the First Amendment and long-standing statutory protections for religious freedom,” they said. “The regulations allow people like the Little Sisters of the Poor, faith-based schools, and others to live out their faith in daily life and to continue to serve others, without fear of punishing fines from the federal government.”

In talking with reporters, Rienzi, whose law firm has represented the Little Sisters of the Poor in their court fight against the mandate since 2010, also emphasized that the Trump administration is not doing away with the mandate but instead is working to expand women’s access to contraceptives under Title X.
Hibernians celebrate Irish heritage, assist charities

Have you heard of AOH? It’s not texting shorthand. It stands for Ancient Order of Hibernians.

“We stand with our Irish Catholic brothers around the world,” said Sean Hennessy, District 3 director and president of the Msgr. James Ruddy Division of AOH. “Our cause may be ancient, but we are young, growing and want new members like you to join our fold.”

The Ancient Order of Hibernians was founded back in 1836 to protect Catholic churches from being attacked and burned. Since that time, AOH has morphed from a defensive organization to a charitable one.

Today, the AOH focuses on charitable giving and advancing Irish American culture across the state and country. Thousands of men in New York and tens of thousands across the country call each other “brother” in this fraternal organization.

The National AOH has divisions in each of the 50 states, with the Msgr. James Ruddy Division operating out of Watertown. The local division has been in the North Country for over 35 years.

“This has been a busy year,” said Hennessey. “The local division made sizable donations to a number of local charities, including Habitat for Humanity, Project St. Patrick, North Country SPCA, Watertown Back Pack Program, Evans Mills Food Pantry and many more. The local division also brought to the North Country a new sport, Irish Road Bowling. Over the summer and fall, dozens of teams took part in this fun game and raised funds that are now being dispersed to charities right here in the North Country.”

AOH members are men of at least 18 years of age, who are Catholic with Irish ancestry.

“Are you someone who’s proud of our Irish Catholic culture? Do you like helping others? Do you like having fun? If so, we want to talk to you about the great work the AOH is doing right here in the North Country,” Hennessy said.

The local division will be visiting area parishes over the next several months to promote the work the AOH division has done in the North Country.

At the October meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, Msgr. James Ruddy Division, Watertown, several Brothers were presented a commemorative AOH pins honoring them for their service to our country.
