Remembering Msgr. Riani

Msgr. Peter R. Riani died May 16, 2019 at the age of 89. He died just a few days shy of the 64th anniversary of his ordination.

Msgr. Leeward J. Poissant, a close friend of Msgr. Riani, said Msgr. Riani’s life reflected his love of the Lord and the peace and happiness that gave him.

“Several years before he died, he chose some words that would be an inscription on his tombstone,” Msgr. Poissant said. “The words were ‘smile, Jesus is risen.’ Whenever anyone asked him why he chose that inscription, he would explain that we have joy in our lives because Jesus is risen from the dead and still with us.”

Pope: Prayer not possible without Holy Spirit

VATICAN CITY (CNS) – The Holy Spirit gives Christians the courage and the strength needed to engage in a loving dialogue with God that is like the dialogue of a child with his or her father, Pope Francis said.

“Do not forget this: The protagonist of all Christian prayer is the Holy Spirit. We can never pray without the strength of the Holy Spirit; it is he who moves us to pray well,” the pope said May 22 during his weekly general audience.

Greeting an estimated 20,000 pilgrims as he toured St. Peter’s Square in the popemobile, Pope Francis occasionally stopped to kiss children’s foreheads and drink mate tea offered to him.

Alessandro Gisotti, interim Vatican spokesman, said in a tweet published after the audience that the pope also greeted Denis Mukwege, a Congolese gynecologist who was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 2018 for his efforts to end the use of sexual violence against women in war and armed conflict.

In his main audience talk, the pope concluded his series of talks on the Lord’s Prayer, meditating on the theme, “Wherever you are, invoke the Father.”

Christian prayer, he said, “is born from the audacity of calling God by the name ‘Father.’”

“This is the root of Christian prayer: to call God ‘Father.’ But this requires courage. It is not so much a formula as it is a filial intimacy into which we are introduced by grace,” he said. “Jesus is the one who reveals the Father and gives us familiarity with him.”

The “filial trust” that Jesus’ exhibited toward God, especially in times of trial, is a call for Christians to embrace a “spirit of prayer” that must be insistent and, above all, it must bear the memory of our brothers and sisters, especially when we have difficult relationships with them.”

Recalling Christ’s prayer of “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” as he was crucified on the cross, the pope said that even in that moment of abandonment, Jesus still remembered his heavenly Father.

“In that ‘my God,’ one can find the nucleus of the relationship with the Father, there the nucleus of faith and prayer can be found,” Pope Francis said.
I met Father William G. Muench at the first event I attended after starting my employment with the diocese. I was seated at a table with Father Bill.

When the first speaker was introduced by the event emcee, Father Bill turned to me, smiled and whispered, “get ready to be here for a while.”

I instantly knew I would like this man.

The last time I saw Father Bill, just a couple of weeks ago at an event in Watertown, I took the opportunity to joke with him about our shared space on this page.

“I know your column is called, ‘Father Bill says...’” I noted. “Sometimes, based on how little space you leave me, I think it’s short for ‘Father Bill says a lot.’”

And Father Bill does say a lot.

In his writing, Father Bill says a lot about the beauty of our faith and the beauty of the Gospels. Father Bill says a lot about our call to love one another and how we can live that call in our day-to-day lives. Father Bill says a lot about the changes he’s seen in the Church, the diocese and in himself.

I’ve lost count of the number of times I’ve read his column and thought some sentence, some idea was exactly what I needed to hear in the moment. Father Bill says a lot.

Father Bill was one of the priests honored at the May 22 Jubilee Mass. He has been blessing the diocese with his priestly ministry for 60 years. He’s been blessing the North Country Catholic with his column for nearly seven years. He’s been blessing me with his work, his dedication to this newspaper, his kind words and his ever-joyful nature for a year.

Father Bill loves the Lord and the Church, and the joy that results from that love is evident to all who encounter him.

Congratulations on 60 years, Father Bill. Keep saying a lot, because to all of us who are blessed to benefit from your reflections and insights, as well as your priestly ministry, it means a lot.

Remembering my friend, Msgr. Riani

My friend, Father Peter Riani, died recently after an extended illness. Today, I would like to share with you some of my memories of the time I spent with this extraordinary priest.

I had many opportunities to have time to be with Father Peter. There were the quiet days, when we just wanted to get away. There were several memorable trips that I took with him and others to places in parts of this world – places I never would have gone on my own. I also remember the countless hours we spent on the ski slopes. Each were such great and enjoyable times.

I often sought Father Peter’s input and advice for things I was doing – a homily or a program or a column. Father Peter was such a brilliant theologian; he had a wonderful ability to put complicated ideas into more understandable language for me. Personally, he was an excellent advisor and teacher. He helped me better understand Sacred Scripture and the message of the Catholic Church – the story of Jesus. Father Peter loved Jesus. His understanding of who Jesus is and why Jesus came among us continues to be truly transformative for me. Father Peter was important to me; he would often read over and comment on my writings.

I continue to remember well on a ski day seeking Father Peter’s advice and help about a program or a particular idea as we rode up the ski lift to the top of the hill. Did I remember to tell you that Father Peter was a very good skier? I would learn more about skiing while following him down the ski slope.

On another personal note, Father Peter was a constant source of support for me. He often encouraged me in all of my endeavors. He would offer his praise to things I wrote. For this I am eternally grateful. I thank God for placing Father Peter into my life.

How else should I characterize Father Peter Riani? He introduced me to the writings and teachings of Pierre Teilhard de Chardin. He loved movies and loved to discuss them afterwards.

I talked him into learning how to play golf. He loved the camp on Lake Champlain. He loved to swim. He formed friendships quickly and kept them long. He was a good musician, a masterful homilist, a powerful writer, and a great and holy priest.

Father Peter loved to travel. I was so very fortunate to tag along on several of his trips. Father Peter got me to China and Tibet, to Kenya and Tanzania, to Juneau, Alaska and Glacier Bay, to New Zealand and Australia. I remember driving through the Maritimes and traveling up to the Magdalen Islands. We took a riverboat cruise from Budapest to Amsterdam and another in Southern France.

We took a house for a couple of weeks near Lucca, Italy. That gave us an opportunity to drive through most of Tuscany. And there were others.

As I reminisce on those wonderful trips, I think of so many incidents that happened along the way – some wonderfully impressive, like the evening in Juneau when we had supper with Bishop Michael Kenny, and that hot air expedition in Africa that ended with a terrific outdoor breakfast. So, again, I thank God for the presence of Father Peter in my life. All of these wonderful experiences with him have been mine.

I close today with a prayer for my friend, Father Peter Riani:

Lord God, you chose our brother, Peter Riani, to serve your people as a priest and to share the joys and burdens of their lives. Look with mercy on him and give him the reward of his labors, the fullness of life promised to those who preach your holy Gospel. We ask this through Christ our Lord.

Amen.

Wadhams Hall.

In his early years as a priest Msgr. Deno served as assistant pastor in Clayton, Morrisonville, Holy Family in Watertown, St. Alphonsus in Tupper Lake and St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg. He began teaching in 1960 at the former Our Lady of Victory Academy, Plattsburgh and then at Holy Ghost Academy, Tupper Lake.

He was named a Prelate of Honor with the title monsignor in 1989. After serving 25 years as superintendent of schools, Msgr. Deno became the pastor in Hammond in 1996. He served as pastor of St. James in Cadyville from 2000 until the time of his retirement in 2017.

Father Vincent T. Freeh, MSC

Father Father Vincent T. Freeh, a Missionary of the Sacred Heart, was born in Bucks County, PA, on October 15, 1933. He attended public schools for his primary education, did high school in Geneva, Illinois, and then completed a year of spiritual formation in Youngstown, Ohio. After his profession of temporary religious vows as a member of the United States Province of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart (MSC), he studied philosophy and theology at Sacred Heart Major Seminary, Shelby, Ohio, and made his final profession of religious vows in 1956. He was ordained a priest on May 30, 1959, and later did studies in psychology at DePaul University, Chicago, Illinois, and in journalism at Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Father Freeh was the editor of a monthly mission and family magazine for four years and then served as a missionary for 10 years in Papua, New Guinea in the South Pacific. While there, he was engaged in pastoral ministry, education, health, village and economic development and leadership training. His main location was home to a central elementary school, a girls’ vocational school, a training college for midwives and infant welfare nurses and a ten-unit rural health center which was built under his direction on a $550,000 grant-in-aid from MISEOR, a development agency headed by the Catholic Bishops of Germany.

Father Freeh also founded a technical training school for young men, using an on-the-job training rationale to make the school self-reliant and to equip students with the skills in crafts and management to run businesses of their own. The school is still in operation. While in the United States at various intervals over a period of 15 years, Father Freeh served as religious superior of several communities. He was also engaged in communications, public relations and fundraising for the US Province of the Missionaries of the Sacred Heart.

Throughout this time, he preached parish missions and conducted conference retreats for high school students, clergy, religious and laity. In 1988, he was installed by the Diocese of Ogdensburg as pastor of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Parish in Watertown, where he served for nine years until being appointed director of the Sacred Heart Retreat and Renewal Center in the Diocese of Youngstown, Ohio.

Father Freeh returned to the North Country in 2008 to renew work on the restoration of family as an essential cultural value. More recently he has been taking measures to establish an interactive website to engage people in the pursuit of a commonly held understanding of what it means to be human. He sees the answer to this question as the key to shaping a culture more favorable to family and society and to shared faith.

In preparing to serve in the missions, Father Freeh became practiced as an auto mechanic, an electrician and a welder, skills not readily available in underdeveloped areas in the world. He also learned how to operate heavy equipment, and he acquired an amateur radio license – the only medium for communication at that time.

The one readiness he found he didn't need was his pilot's license; and the gift that served him best was being able to play a guitar. He found no better way to share friendship and to get inside a culture than to learn the folk songs of a people for its richness and for the role song plays in celebration.

Father Freeh also served as a liaison for nine years for MSC priest in Colombia, Latin America. His background in philosophy, psychology and journalism helped him benefit from this broad exposure to a variety of cultures and made him far more aware of the assets and liabilities in our own culture.

Father William G. Muench

After initially retiring in 2011, Father William G. Muench was named administrator of St. Bernard’s Church in Saranac Lake, St. John of the Wilderness Church in Lake Clear, St. Paul’s Church in Bloomingdale, and Church of the Assumption Mission in Gabriels for a one-year assignment.

Father Muench retired again in 2013. He was born Nov. 8, 1933 in Syracuse. He studied for the priesthood at Wadhams Hall and St. Mary’s Seminary in Baltimore before he was ordained in St. Mary’s Cathedral on May 16, 1959 by Bishop James J. Navagh.

The priest has served as an assistant pastor in Gouverneur, St. Mary’s in Massena, Brasher Falls, Chateaugay, Brownville, St. Patrick’s in Watertown and St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg.

He was on the faculty of Holy Family in Massena and at Immaculate Heart Central in Watertown from 1962 to 1973 except for one year, when he served as principal of St. Mary’s Academy in Ogdensburg.

Father Muench was first appointed a pastor in Sackets Harbor in 1970. He has also been a pastor in Cumberland Head, Chateaugay, Brownville, and at the Newman Center in Plattsburgh.

While in Lowville, he served as dean of Lewis County.

He was chairman of the Committee for the continuing Education of Clergy from 1970 to 1982 and continued as a member of the committee until 1992.

Father Muench became a diocesan missionary that year and served in the Ogdensburg Peruvian Apostolate in Molendo, Peru until 1995. He was then named a member of the faculty at Wadhams Hall Seminary for one year before serving as pastor at Ticonderoga and Crown Point until his initial retirement.

Father Muench also has been a columnist for the North Country Catholic for several years.

Father Joseph N. Sestito

Father Joseph Sestito, a retired chaplain for the U.S. Navy, currently resides in Rome, NY in the Diocese of Syracuse.

A native of Rome, New York, he was born Oct. 20, 1932. He entered St. Andrew’s Preparatory Seminary in Rochester and completed his theological studies at St. Bernard’s Seminary in Rochester and St. Mary’s Seminary in Baltimore.

He was ordained May 16, 1959 by Bishop James Navagh in St. Mary’s Cathedral. Before entering the Navy in 1967, Father Sestito was an assistant pastor at St. Patrick’s and St. Anthony’s in Watertown as well as in Peru and Lake Placid.

He served in the U.S. Navy from 1967 to 1992 and earned a Bronze Star for his service.

He later served the diocese as a temporary administrator at St. Anthony’s in Watertown and in Port Leyden.

Why is climate change so devastating? Part 1: Rising temperatures

By Tom Kalinowski
St. Bernard’s Parish, Saranac Lake

Regardless of whether or not you believe in man-made climate change, it is a fact that the earth’s atmosphere is currently experiencing a dramatic warming trend. Over the past century and a half, global temperatures, on average, have been rising, triggering an array of changing weather patterns, especially when viewed over a long span of time.

Any change in climate is difficult for most people to perceive, as weather patterns from the past century, or more, must be taken into consideration to verify any variation of this scope. Adding to this challenge is that long-term trends in nature never occur along a smooth progression, but rather have numerous ups and downs from one year to the next. It is only when analyzing a large collection of records that it is possible to assess in what direction, if any, temperature is trending.

A few consecutive months of unseasonably cold weather does not make a century-long trend, nor does it scientifically support the notion that the climate is cooling over that region. It must also be emphasized that few occurrences in nature are evenly distributed over the planet, and a warming atmosphere is no exception. As heat builds in the atmosphere, the vast majority of regions around the earth are experiencing higher average temperatures.

As vast quantities of carbon dioxide are released to the air, our atmosphere traps more of the sun’s heat. This has been shown to elevate the temperature on a global scale and upset long established weather patterns. If we wish to avoid the insidious consequences of this type of pollution, individuals, and society as a whole, must take drastic steps to reduce their carbon footprint. Weather events severely disrupt the lives of many around the world. While warmer temperatures may sound great for residents of the North Country, the unwanted side effects of a warmer environment are often devastating.

St. Regis Mission Church lauds retiring musician

By Dr. Rose-Alma McDonald
St. Regis Mission Church

About 15 years ago, members of the Mohawk Choir at St. Regis Mission Church decided they needed a change.

Minerva White was an organist, and she was asked if she would play at the 10 a.m. Sunday Mass each week.

At the same time, the decision was made to move the organ downstairs in the church and to purchase a new organ.

White was asked to be the organist and to lead the congregational singing. One of the hymns that was introduced at the time was the Our Father which was sung in Mohawk. White became the chair of the Mohawk Music Ministry, and over the years, she organized a Mohawk Choir that sang hymns both in English and Kanien'keh'a.

Over the past 15 years White has tirelessly donated her time to the choir and liturgical music on behalf of the St. Regis Mission Church. This included funeral services as well.

The St. Regis Mission Church gratefully acknowledges White’s hard work and dedication to the Mission Music Ministry and for nurturing the important role of Kanien'keh'a in the celebration of Mass.

Congratulations and best wishes to Minerva White on her well-deserved retirement. She will be greatly missed! Best wishes and God Bless Minerva!

Remembering Msgr. Riani

By Darcy Fargo

One of my first recollections of the living faith was learning to read the inscription over the sanctuary of Immaculate Conception (in Keeseville), ‘Where Your Treasure Is, There Also Will Your Heart Be. (Lk. 12:34)’ and loudly announcing my newfound ability to the congregation. As a result, I was sent across the yard after Mass to apologize to Father John Bent, the Pastor, for talking in church. He received me kindly and said, ‘You know, Peter, if you want to talk in church you will have to become a priest.’ I was four years old.”

Msgr. Peter R. Riani penned those words for the December 19, 2012 edition of the North Country Catholic, describing the earliest suggestion that he would serve the Lord and the Church as his life’s vocation and mission.

Msgr. Riani died May 16, 2019 at the age of 89. He died just a few days shy of the 64th anniversary of his ordination.

Msgr. Leeward J. Poissant, a close friend of Msgr. Riani, said Msgr. Riani’s life reflected his love of the Lord and the peace and happiness that gave him.

“Several years before he died, he chose some words that would be an inscription on his tombstone,” Msgr. Poissant said. “The words were ‘smile, Jesus is risen.’ Whenever anyone asked him why he chose that inscription, he would explain that we have joy in our lives because Jesus is risen from the dead and still with us. And it gives us hope of our own resurrection when our time comes, and that resurrection in us has already begun with the power of the Holy Spirit working in us. If that isn’t enough to make us smile, I don’t know what is.”

Father Richard S. Sturtz, also a close friend of Msgr. Riani, said Msgr. Riani was a “renaissance man,” yet exceedingly humble.

“First thing – he always wanted to be known as ‘Father,’” Father Sturtz said. “When he was made a monsignor, it crushed him. He was a humble man. He was also a renaissance man. He loved art, opera, philosophy, astronomy, theology... and he would communicate those loves to his students (at Wadhams Hall Seminary). He would offer seminars in the summer back in the days before Guggenheim opened. I remember he did one on classic movies. It was a lot of foreign films.”

Despite his varied interests, Father Sturtz said Msgr. Riani was first and foremost “a church man.”

“He was deeply, deeply dedicated as a priest,” Father Sturtz said. “Early in his priesthood, when he had been a priest for four years, he was sent to Rome to get a doctorate in theology. He already had a licentiate – master’s degree. He could see the need for opening up in the church. He was in Rome studying at the Angelicum, before the Council began, and he could sense from the talks the pope was giving that there was movement in the direction of opening the doors and windows to church. After the Council took place, he was back in the States and gave lectures all over the diocese about the Second Vatican Council.”

Msgr. Poissant said Msgr. Riani’s strong faith helped him through difficult times.

“We all go through the death of our parents, and it’s never easy,” Msgr. Poissant said. “But his situation was a little unusual. His parents died nine days apart with Christmas in the middle. His mother, Mary, died December 22, 1987. His father, Peter, died December 31, 1987. I was at both funerals, he celebrated them. I’m sure it was a very difficult time. His faith in the resurrection and that Jesus is risen was evident in those Masses, even at such a difficult time.”

Both Msgr. Poissant and Father Sturtz noted that a significant portion of Msgr. Riani’s priesthood was spent educating future priests at Wadhams Hall Seminary, where he served as an instructor and later the school’s president-rector.

“He was a great teacher, not only in classroom but by his life example,” said Msgr. Poissant. “He was a teacher for all who knew him, even if they hadn’t been in one of his classes.”

In addition to teaching many of our diocesan priests in the classroom, Father Sturtz said Msgr. Riani was instrumental in changing the seminary curriculum to better form seminarians, using a program first implemented at Catholic University.

“It was a complete program – addressing academic and spiritual life in seminary,” Father Sturtz said. “He was a leader in that. His love for the priesthood and formation was evident in seminary.”

Msgr. Riani was also known for his love of travel, a love he shared with many of his friends.

“I remember being told in seminary, ‘if you travel with a priest, and you’re friends after you’ve traveled, that’s true friendship,’” Father Sturtz said. “We traveled the world together. We visited all the continents except Antarctica.”

Both Msgr. Poissant and Father Sturtz said Msgr. Riani maintained his spirit for ministry through his decline due to Parkinson’s Disease.

“He struggled with Parkinson’s for years,” Msgr. Poissant said. “One time, I visited him when he was in an assisted living facility in Willsboro. He told me he had had come to terms with the fact he couldn’t do as much for others as he’d like, but he said his new ministry was being loving to the people who were providing care for him.”

“When he was diagnosed with Parkinson’s, never once did I hear him complain or ask ‘why me,’” Father Sturtz added. “Both men also indicated they would miss their friend. “He was like a brother to me,” Father Sturtz said. “I knew him for over 70 years.”
Hello! My name is Lukas Gruber and I am originally from Queens, NY and have now called the North Country home for six years. My home parish is St. Mary’s in Potsdam.

As one of the seminarians for the Diocese of Ogdensburg, I currently study at the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio, where I just completed my studies in philosophy and will begin my theological studies next year.

I’m looking forward to my third summer on Lower Saranac Lake; a summer that promises to be full of faith and fun. Until then, may God continue to bless you and may He grant you His peace.

Hi, my name is Kaylee McLean, and I am a member of St. Bernard’s parish in Saranac Lake. I have lived my whole life just down the road from Camp Guggenheim in the little town of Lake Clear.

I am a rising sophomore at Le Moyne College in Syracuse working toward a dual degree in nursing. I attended Camp Guggenheim as a camper for the past two summers and I am excited to be on staff for the first time this year!

I can’t wait to hike, swim, and praise this summer with everyone!

Hi, my name is Kevin McCullough. I am a parishioner of Holy Family Parish in Watertown. I am a seminarian for the Diocese of Ogdensburg, and I just finished my second year at the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio.

This is my fourth year working on staff at Camp Guggenheim. I continue to return to camp every year since the first time I went in 2009 because camp has always filled a special place in my heart where I can learn and grow in my faith.

I can’t wait to begin working with the staff and to meet all the campers for another faith-filled and joyful experience on the shores of lower Saranac Lake!

Hi! My name is Jessica Sokol and I am 20 years old. I am a Music Education major with a French horn concentration at The Crane School of Music.

I am from Tappan, New York (which is 10 minutes away from the border of New Jersey), and I attend Our Lady of the Sacred Heart Church.

I am really excited to spend my first summer working at Guggenheim! I’ve always been called to teach kids about God’s love, and I think Guggenheim will be the perfect place to do that.

Hi! My name is Carter Pierce and I hail from St. Raphael Parish in Heuvelton. A seminarian for the Diocese of Ogdensburg, I am studying philosophy at the Pontifical College Josephinum in Columbus, Ohio.

I am pumped to return to camp this summer! I cannot wait to spend the summer living fully alive under the warm rays of the Son’s love, in the merciful Father’s embrace, and in the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. To experience the pure joy of the faith and be God’s instrument leading others to Christ.

I expect to see you there!

Jesus calls for unity in John’s Gospel

The days of the “Al-leluia” season are drawing to a close. For those who are privileged to attend daily Mass, we have followed the exciting history of the days following the Resurrection. It was a time of sudden appearances of the risen Lord, with Jesus’ dramatic lessons to the apostles that He was not a ghost, but a flesh and blood person who had truly risen from the dead. This past Thursday, we celebrated the Ascension of the Lord into heaven. Despite Jesus’ careful preparation to his followers that, if He didn’t go back to the Father, the Holy Spirit would not come to them, their hearts were heavy as they watched Him disappear into the clouds. With almost desperate pleas, they closed themselves into the Upper Room to pray with Mary for the coming of the Holy Spirit.

As we await the explosive events of Pentecost next Sunday, it is good for us to concentrate on the Gospel for this Sunday. In this section of the Jesus’ farewell address to his apostles the night before His passion and death, He prays for all those who will one day believe in Him through the preaching of courageous witnesses like Stephen, the first martyr (first reading). The last will and testament of Jesus is that “they all may be one!” Even though Christians today seem so far from peace and unity, we must keep in mind that on the night before He died, his earnest prayer for unity extends far beyond his Resurrection, far into the future, even to Christians today. And his plea to the Father will never cease until unity has been achieved. We need to be aware that astounding progress has been made by both Pope John Paul II and by Pope Benedict and Pope Francis to bring this about.

Thanks to their efforts, we are closer today to unity with the Eastern Orthodox churches that at any time since they separated from Rome. Spend a little time thinking of the words from the second reading from the Book of Revelation: “I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.” The world cannot end until all nations and all peoples have been drawn by the Spirit into the loving arms of the one God who died for all. At times we think of Christianity as going backwards. Nothing could be farther from the truth. The steady flow of today’s martyrs to God’s truth is moving us always forwards to that unity for which Christ still prays.

Memorial Day always nudges us to remember. This year’s observance recalls a cold Sunday in February, and the small group gathered outside after Mass. There, all unexpectedly, we were blessed to learn about the amazing grace that filled the final days of our dear friend’s life.

Less than 48 hours earlier, Patricia had died following a sudden and shocking terminal diagnosis. Fifty-four years old, 28 years married, a new grandmother, just retired, she and her husband were full of plans for their future. Now he stood at the foot of the church steps, with their children and grandson, generously choosing to share with us the strange beauty of his wife’s last days. The stories he shared were not about the pain and devastation inflicted by terminal illness, but instead witnessed to the deep and dynamic faith that was the essence of Patricia’s being.

Rich in God’s love, Patricia shared his presence as lavishly in the medical center as she had done in every other part of her life. Always concerned for others, she reached out cheerfully to patients and staff alike, offering to pray for their needs and adding their names to her growing list of prayer intentions—convinced that these folks needed prayer far more than she did. When nurses, noticing her happiness, asked for advice about love and marriage, Patricia was happy to share what she had learned from experience and to reassure them that God always wants the best for his sons and daughters.

As the arc of her life drew toward its close, Patricia remained deeply peaceful. Her husband recounted that she never shed a tear, never complained, never showed any anxiety; rather, she was calm, happy, and very much ready for her transition from this life to the next. Her material affairs were in good order, and she had received the sacraments, including the Anointing of the Sick. She rejoiced in the presence of her family and entrusted them to God’s loving care. She had no fear of death, her husband related, because she knew she was going home to God.

Patricia was many things to many people. But first and last she was a disciple of Jesus Christ, whom she sought to love with all her heart and to serve with all her strength. Not long ago, her husband tearfully recalled watching her cantor at Sunday Mass—a service she offered at St. Andre Bessette Parish for many years. “I could not stop watching her,” he explained. “Her eyes would be closed, and I realized that she was not only singing. She was praying, and that brought God very close. Just remembering affects me the same way.”

This experience described by her husband brings into focus the powerful effect of Patricia’s own discipleship. Her faithful example recalls the words of Wisdom 7:27: “From generation to generation, [Wisdom] enters the souls of holy people and makes them friends of God.”

Exactly: because Patricia was a friend of God’s, she wanted to introduce him to everyone she knew! In Patricia, natural vivacity and generosity were further enlivened by the Holy Spirit upon whom she depended so much, creating a joy that drew people to her—and to God. As one parishioner put it: “Patricia was such a special lady, with so much love! She brought so much to all of us.”

For what seems too brief a time, many were blessed to call Patricia “friend,” for which we will always give God thanks and praise.

We cannot help but rejoice and be glad that she has reached the End she lived for, even as we strive to follow her example. Her faith and love, her life and death show the truth proclaimed in the Catholic funeral liturgy: “Lord, for your faithful people, life is changed, not ended.”

Cardinal: Promote pastoral approach to human life

VATICAN CITY (CNS) — To fight a throw-away culture that pressures women to view abortion as the only alternative to a difficult pregnancy, the Catholic Church must be ready to assist, accompany and care for expectant mothers and their families, said U.S. Cardinal Kevin J. Farrell.

The cardinal, prefect of the Dicastery for Laity, the Family and Life, opened a Vatican conference on protecting life May 23.

Catholics, Cardinal Farrell said, must have a more “pastoral orientation” to fulfill the Christian obligation to “take care of another in a loving and caring manner in accordance with our view of human life: that every man and every woman is created in the image and likeness of God.”

“One of the greatest challenges to every mother is the thought that the child in the womb may be diagnosed with a grave illness,” he said. “It is at such moments that the church and indeed all people of good will must be prepared and ready to assist the mother and her family as a loving mother that the church is always called to be.”

The conference sponsored by Cardinal Farrell’s office was designed to offer “reflection and formation from a scientific perspective and with pastoral concern” for unborn and newborn children threatened by or suffering from serious illness or disability.

It also aimed to promote “a genuine welcoming culture” for those diagnosed with fetal pathologies.

The two-day conference, titled “Yes to Life: Caring for the Precious Gift of Life in its Frailness,” featured experts in the field of prenatal care and medicine as well as religious men and women who offered their perspectives on creating a welcoming and caring environment for expectant mothers and their families.

In his opening address, Cardinal Farrell said that the purpose of the event was “to promote a pastoral approach” in which the church community goes out “in search of these families and helps them in this moment of disorientation, this moment of disability, illness and the possible loss of children.”

“We must ensure that these people never feel alone, never feel abandoned by us,” he said.

The cardinal also emphasized the need for greater cooperation between those in the medical and religious profession to defend “the unique experience” of motherhood that “is a mysterious and profound bonding between a mother and her child right from the time of conception.”
