Archbishop Christophe Pierre, Apostolic Nuncio to the United States, recently forwarded to all bishops a memorandum explaining the remarks of Pope Francis on same sex unions contained in a documentary film entitled Francesco. Archbishop Pierre was acting on behalf of Pope Francis, who directed the explanation be offered in order to permit an adequate understanding of his words, which were misrepresented in the documentary and have raised various concerns.

Pope: Without prayer, life can seem troublesome

VATICAN CITY (CNS) – Prayer has the power to take all those things in life that seem like a condemnation and turn them into something good, Pope Francis said.

"The trials of life thus change into opportunities to grow in faith and charity," the pope said Nov. 4 during his weekly general audience, which was livestreamed from the library of the Apostolic Palace.

The general audience had been taking place with the public present since Sept. 2 – starting in an outdoor courtyard and later in the Vatican’s Paul VI hall. But after someone attending the general audience Oct. 21 tested positive for COVID-19, the Vatican announced that beginning Nov. 4, the audiences would return to being livestreamed without the presence of pilgrims and visitors to prevent "any possible future risks to the health of the participants."

Continuing his series of audience talks about prayer, Pope Francis reflected on how Jesus always took time out to pray and be in dialogue with God, despite busy days helping the poor and the sick.

Jesus was not guided or inspired by success, consensus or "the seductive phrase, 'Everyone is searching for you,'" the pope said.

"Prayer is the rudder that guides Jesus’ course," he said; it does not lead him to the easiest path, but to the one that stays true to God’s will, which he discovers in prayer.

A day lived without prayer risks turning into a day that is lived as "bothersome or tedious," a day when whatever happens is poorly endured and comes from “blind fate,” the pope said.

"Prayer is first of all listening to and encountering God," he said. It helps people face reality, but in a way that they can see problems not as obstacles, but as opportunities to grow in faith and charity.

Without cultivating self-reflection, he said, “we become superficial, agitated and anxious.”

Jesus showed that prayer is ultimately letting go and putting oneself in God’s hands.

Remembering to express gratitude

November is a month dedicated to gratitude. November begins with our offering gratitude to God for all the saints that have touched our lives and shown us the way to being saints ourselves. Then, we offer prayers in gratitude for our deceased loved ones — those who were an important part of our lives and are now with the Lord.

The month of November always aims toward Thanksgiving Day. This is such a wonderful holiday and has become an important part of our life as Americans. Thanksgiving is a family day of gratitude remembering family and friends and being grateful for all we are and have as Americans. It is a day to celebrate our freedom and our way of life, despite the many challenges and controversies.

I know that I have written a great deal about gratitude to you in the past. I continue to believe that gratitude is an important part of all that it means to be a Catholic. God is so good and so loving to me. He fills my life with such goodness and blessings. My gratitude is constant. Knowing my God’s love, I begin and end each day with gratitude.

Jesus brought the message of God to our world. God loves us. God’s loving forgiveness welcomes us each and every day as disciples of the Lord. We must respond in gratitude to this God, who does not hesitate to forgive and love us. Jesus came to this world of ours, and Jesus was constantly close to the outcasts of this world. In love, Jesus demonstrated that God is always loving and forgiving. I must so deeply grateful for this God that loves me so much and forgives me each time I fail, each time I sin.

Jesus taught us in a very clear way in his parable of the Prodigal Son. I am certain that you remember this story. In Jesus’ story, the young son demands his share of his father’s inheritance and then loses all in a wasteful manner. Then this young man in poverty decides to return to his home. In Jesus’ story, the father rushes down the road to meet his son. The father welcomes him home in love and forgiveness and celebrates his return. Jesus tells me in this story that each time I break my relationship with the Lord and then realize, like the Prodigal Son, my selfishness and reach out to the Lord, God reacts just like the Father in Jesus’ parable, welcoming me with love and forgiveness.

There have been many times when I was indeed the Prodigal. And I have experienced God’s loving forgiveness and felt that call to find new life in the Lord’s love and peace. Each time I am overwhelmed with God’s love. This God is so loving and caring that he constantly forgives me and shows me the way to peace and happiness.

Each time I approach the altar for Mass, I remember that this is a moment of gratitude. I remember that the very word Eucharist means “thanks.” Each prayer I offer is in response to the gratitude that overflows in my heart for this God of mine. Gratitude is a part of each and every day, not just all the days of November, but all days. Jesus entered my world to bring love and peace and forgiveness to me. I am a loved person and for this I am grateful, and I know that I must live out this gratitude each day.

As I pray this day, remembering my gratitude to the Lord for all that he has brought into my life, I offer my gratitude to God for my vocation as a priest. I believe that my God called me for this I am grateful. I believe the Lord constantly supports and guides me, and for this I am grateful.
Father Angrand becomes priest of the diocese

By Darcy Fargo

MALONE – He’s now officially a priest of the Diocese of Ogdensburg. On Nov. 2, Father Medenel Angrand, parochial vicar at St. André Bessette Parish in Malone, was formally incardinated as a priest of the diocese.

“Incardination is the canonical institution of permanent attachment of bishops, priests and deacons to a particular church or other ecclesiastical entity for the primary purpose of the service of the people of God,” according to the New Commentary on the Code of Canon Law.

Canon Law states that “every cleric must be incardinated” and “unattached or transient clerics are not allowed at all.”

Father Medenel Angrand

Father Angrand was previously incardinated in the Diocese of Fort-Liberté in Haiti. To be incardinated into the Diocese of Ogdensburg, Father Angrand had to receive permission from his bishop in Haiti, Bishop Quesnel Alphonse, SMM, as well as Bishop Terry R. LaValley.

“Father Angrand is a welcome addition to our diocese,” said Bishop LaValley. “He has served faithfully and been a living witness of the Gospel to the people of St. André Bessette Parish in Malone for the past year, and we look forward to having him continue to serve God, the Church and the people of our diocese for many years to come.”

Father Angrand, who recently completed a pastoral year in Malone, said he is pleased to continue his ministry here in the North Country.

“I feel comfortable here,” he said. “It is a joy to serve in this diocese. I’m very happy to be here to serve the Church as a priest among the people. I want to be and remain a servant of God among them. I pray for that. I ask them to pray for me so I can be a humble servant of God, live the joy of the Gospel and bring the joy of the gospel to these people.”

Father Angrand said he “fell in love with the diocese” after visiting the North Country several times and meeting Father Howard J. Venette.

“I asked Father Venette if I can be part of the diocese,” he said. “He said I can. I sent a letter to the bishop to accept me into the diocese. Bishop and (Vicar for Clergy) Father Chris (Carrara) gave me an assignment in this parish. I’m very happy to be here.”

Father Angrand said he has enjoyed working with the people at St. André Bessette Parish.

“People here, they are very devoted, and they welcome me with great love,” he said. “They are patient with me and my English and my accent. I love them.”

He also noted that he is glad to serve in a diocese where there is a need for priests.

“There’s a need for priests in this diocese,” he said. “In my country, they have a lot of vocations and a lot of priests.”

Father Angrand was ordained Aug. 24, 2003 in the Diocese of Fort-Liberté, Haiti. In addition to serving as a pastor of two parishes, he has served as director of Caritas, director of Holy Childhood, a member of the College of Consultants and as an assistant pastor in his previous diocese.

Father Angrand received his bachelor’s degree in sacred theology in 2002 and a master’s degree in moral theology in 2019. He also has associate degrees in intercultural studies and philosophy.

Memorial Mass celebrated for Father Morris

A Memorial Mass for Father Thomas Augustine Morris, O.S.S.T. was celebrated at St. Lawrence Martyr Catholic Church, 7850 Parkside Blvd., Hanover, Maryland, on Monday, November 9, 2020.

Father Morris was born on August 15, 1953 in Malone, New York, the son of Augustus and Shirley Marie (nee Yando) Morris. He was baptized Thomas Edward Morris.

He entered the novitiate of the Order of the Most Holy Trinity and of the Captives on August 12, 1977 at Holy Redeemer Monastery in Baltimore, Maryland. He made his First Profession of Vows on August 12, 1978 at St. Mary Star of the Sea Catholic Church in Baltimore, Maryland. He made his Solemn Profession of Vows on September 11, 1981 at St. Jerome Catholic Church in Hyattsville, Maryland.

On September 12, 1981, he was ordained a deacon at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. Father Morris was ordained to the priesthood on December 12, 1981 at St. Jerome Catholic Church in Hyattsville, Maryland.

Since July 1, 2016, Father Morris has served as pastor of Incarnation-St. James Catholic Parish in Ewing/Trenton, New Jersey. Father Morris also served in parish ministry at Our Lady of Good Counsel in New Orleans, Louisiana, at St. Ann in Bristol, Pennsylvania, and Sacred Heart of Mary and St. Rita in Baltimore, Maryland. During his time in Louisiana, he also served as a hospital chaplain at Hotel Dieu. Father Morris has served World Wide Marriage Encounter in various capacities since 2007.

During his 38 years of priesthood, Father Morris was called to serve the Order as provincial secretary, director of formation, and as director of Holy Trinity Spiritual Center in Baltimore, Maryland.

Father Morris is survived by his sister Carol Anne (Robert) Patterson; brothers John Robert (Mary Ann) Morris and Jefrey Charles (Donna) Morris; uncle Edward (Gracia) Yando; aunt Carol Higgins; nieces and nephews Kristie (John) Patterson Dauth, Adam Morris, Bryan Patterson, Monique Morris and Heather Morris; great-niece Isabel Dauth; great-nephew Jack Dauth; and his Trinitarian brothers and members of the Trinitarian family.

Father Morris was preceded in death by his parents and several aunts and uncles.

Interment will be in New Cathedral Cemetery 4300 Old Frederick Rd., Baltimore, Maryland.

He will long be remembered by us, since “fraternal communion among our religious is not interrupted by death but is strengthened and truly endures through love and prayer” (GD 41). With confidence in the mercy and goodness of the Trinity, we request that the suffrages prescribed by our legislation be offered for Father Morris.
Archbishop Christophe Pierre, Apostolic Nuncio to the United States, recently forwarded to all bishops a memorandum explaining the remarks of Pope Francis on same sex unions contained in a documentary film entitled Francesco. Archbishop Pierre was acting on behalf of Pope Francis, who directed the explanation be offered in order to permit an adequate understanding of his words, which were misrepresented in the documentary and have raised various concerns.

Over one year ago, in the course of an interview, Pope Francis responded to two distinct questions, at different moments. The documentary was edited afterward and the two distinct answers were published as a single response without necessary explanation or context. It is this editing that is causing confusion among the faithful.

The Pope’s first statement arose in a discussion about the need for families to treat a son or daughter with a homosexual orientation with respect and dignity. In this context, Pope Francis said, “Homosexual persons have the right to have a family. They are children of God, they have a right to a family. Nobody should throw them out of the family or make life impossible for them.”

Pope Francis’ response reflects sentiments expressed in the Apostolic Exhortation concerning love in the family (Amoris laetitia) (2016): “During the synod, we discussed the situation of families whose members include persons who experience same-sex attraction, a situation not easy either for parents or children. We would like before all else to reaffirm that every person, regardless of sexual orientation, ought to be respected in his or her dignity and treated with consideration, while ‘every sign of unjust discrimination’ is to be carefully avoided, particularly any form of aggression or violence. Such families should be given respectful pastoral guidance, so that those who manifest a homosexual orientation can receive the assistance they need to understand and fully carry out God’s will in their lives.”

The Holy Father made the second statement in response to a discussion about a local law in Argentina regarding marriage for same-sex couples. At that time, Pope Francis was Archbishop of Buenos Aires and was opposed to the legislation. In this respect, Pope Francis affirmed that “it is incongruent to talk about same-sex marriage,” adding in that precise context, that when he was Archbishop of Buenos Aires, he had spoken about the need for these persons to have legal protections for such things as healthcare. He said, “What we have to have is a law for civil coexistence. They have the right to legal protections. I defended that right.”

This is consistent with other statements by Pope Francis. During a 2014 interview, the Holy Father expressed clearly that “[m]arriage is between a man and a woman. Secular states want to justify civil unions in order to regularize economic matters between persons, such as ensuring healthcare, for example. This relates to various forms of cohabitation agreements, which I would not be able to list. The different situations must be examined and evaluated, according to their circumstances.”

Archbishop Pierre expressed the hope that this information would clarify that the Holy Father was responding to distinct situations when formulating the responses contained in the documentary, but that the editors of the documentary edited the statements and published them as a single statement. Pope Francis was addressing a particular secular statute in one instance, and how to respond lovingly to family members who experience same-sex attraction in the other. The Pope was not changing the doctrine of the Church, which has been reiterated on numerous occasions over the years by Pope Francis.
Connected events focus on vocations

By Darcy Fargo
Editor

OGDENSBURG – It’s all about vocations.

The weekend of Dec. 13, the Diocese of Ogdensburg Vocations Office, working in cooperation with other diocesan offices and parishes, is hosting a series of connected events aimed at praying for, discerning and educating about vocations to the priesthood and consecrated life.

“We’re very excited about this,” said Father Christopher C. Carrara, director of Vocations and Seminarians. “We’re very pleased with the fact that Youth Ministry, Vocations and Faith Formation are working hand in hand to bring a number of initiatives to the parishes at a time when getting around and hosting events is so difficult. I’m excited to see how it’s going to unfold.”

The event will kick off with a Holy Hour at a parish in each deanery at 2 p.m. on Dec. 13.

“The first aspect is to do what Scripture tells us and to pray for vocations,” Father Carrara said.

Holy Hours will be held at St. Mary’s Cathedral in Ogdensburg, St. Mary’s in Massena, Notre Dame in Malone, St. Alexander’s in Morrisonville, St. Patrick’s in Watertown, St. Bernard’s in Saranac Lake, St. Peter’s in Lowville, and St. Bartholomew’s in Old Forge. Due to a scheduling conflict, Essex Deanery will hold its Holy Hour on December 6 at St. Patrick’s in Port Henry.

While the Holy Hours will be open to the public with appropriate COVID-19 protocols in place, an online option will also be available for those who are unable to travel to one of the participating churches.

“We’ll be livestreaming the Holy Hour at the cathedral with Bishop (Terry R.) LaValley,” added Catherine Russell, Vocation coordinator. “Some of the participating parishes may also decide to livestream.”

Father Carrara also noted that other parishes are welcome and encouraged to hold Holy Hours to correspond with the event.

After the Holy Hour, a confirmation retreat will be held from 3:15 to 6:30 p.m.

“The retreat will be led virtually, but we’re asking parishes to gather their confirmation students in a group – with all the safety protocols in place – at their locations,” Russell said. “The retreat will start with ice breakers to get them warmed up. Next, there will be a meditative prayer experience on the life of Jesus. That experience will include breaking into small groups so the students can have discussion and community. After that part of it, there will be a session on what God is calling you to do now with what you’ve learned.”

That last portion will lead into the third component of the event, a Zoom-based question-and-answer (Q&A) session with Bishop LaValley, Sister M. Gregory Munger, vocations director for the Sisters of St. Joseph in Watertown, and three Diocese of Ogdensburg seminarians.

“Each of the presenters will share a short reflection on their own vocation, and Bishop LaValley will give a short presentation,” said Father Carrara. “We’ll also have the Q&As. Some of the questions will be submitted by the classes ahead of time, and some questions will be asked live.”

As an extension of the vocations event, a handful of diocesan seminarians will go out to diocesan parishes to speak about vocations while home for their winter breaks.

“A number of our seminarians will be home in January,” said Father Carrara. “Bishop has approved having some of the more senior seminarians go out and speak in parishes where they haven’t had a seminarian speak recently. Parishes can request seminarians to speak at Masses in early January. Our goal is that between the weekend of December 12 and 13 and the time the seminarians go back to school in January, a good number of our parishes will have had vocations events, visits, prayer and reflections.”

Russell noted that the Faith Formation Department has been encouraging catechetical leaders to have their confirmation students participate in the retreat and vocations events. She noted, though, that participation in the Q&A is not limited only to confirmation students.

“Anyone who may be interested in learning more about a vocation or who is actively discerning a vocation is encouraged to participate,” she said. “If there’s someone interested in participating who isn’t a student, they can talk to their pastor or contact the vocations office to get the link for the Q&A.”

Both Russell and Father Carrara said they are excited to utilize the available online platforms to pray for and discuss vocations during these challenging times.

“We’ve always had events like Operation Andrew dinners, and we just can’t do those this year,” said Russell. “We had to come up with new ways to bring people together to have these conversations about vocations and to pray together.”

“Gathering together and getting out to foster vocations in person is a big challenge during this pandemic,” added Father Carrara. “But it’s not a challenge to pray. We should be doing that first and foremost. We wanted to give people an opportunity to pray together for vocations and opportunities to safely gather – even if it’s from different locations. This also builds on our efforts to give the Vocations Office more of a virtual and digital presence.”

“We’ll see how it all goes,” concluded Russell. “We’re trying new things, and we’re preparing as much as we can, but we’re still learning as we go.”
Environmental Stewardship

Needed ‘ecological virtues’

In an article entitled Nine Ecological Virtues, Rich Heffern suggests that in addition to the theological virtues of faith, hope and love, and the cardinal virtues of prudence, justice, temperance and fortitude, we may need some other virtues to heal a world that is badly out of balance.

Virtues provide us with resources that not only help us get through life but enable us to flourish on our faith journey. The writer quotes Pat Misch, co-founder of Global Education Associates, who states, “Our search for life in God must be worked out now in a global context, in the midst of global crises and global community.”

The struggle for the future will be fought in the midst of our lives, in adjusting our wants and needs to fit within earth’s limits.

One of these suggested ecological virtues is humility. This virtue roots us in the very truth of who we are. As we know the word itself comes from the Latin “humus,” meaning meaning ground or earth. It is part of the bedrock on which the spiritual house is built. It requires attention listening to the subtle ways that God is present to us in the events, people and places we experience each day. It is the kind of practical wisdom that we discover day by day. A clarity of vision of who we are and our place in the world takes time to develop.

Humility reveals for us that we are never alone, but rather we are a unique part of the magnificent tapestry of creation. The realistic perspective of humility challenges us to listen to others when we realize that none of us has all the answers. Mary’s Magnificat calls for a sacred community, based on humility that provides good news for the poor, while scattering the proud with all their plans. This wisdom helps us to discern how to adjust our wants and needs to fit within Earth’s limitations.

Suggestion for the week:

Pray Psalm 8 and reflect on your own role in taking care of creation in your “backyard.” And from nature, take only what is needed.

GET TO KNOW CURSILLO

‘I was missing something’

By William Fassinger
North Country Cursillo

I thought I was a pretty darn good Catholic. Catholic grade school, Catholic high school, two Jesuit colleges (Regis College when I was stationed in Colorado and Chaminade University when I was stationed in Hawaii), and I even graduated from a Baptist University. I was an altar boy from grammar school to when I first attended college and occasionally when I came home for a weekend. I was living my faith.

As time progressed and I grew older and wiser, I joined the Knights of Columbus while living in Hawaii and transferred my membership to a Council in St. Lawrence County. I even went as far as becoming a Fourth Degree Knight. I was living my faith.

Now please don’t get the idea that I am a poster child for the Catholic church. There were times when my faith faltered and I questioned. Some of it may have had to do with the line of work I was in, some of it may have to do with some setbacks I experienced.

Even in the times of trouble, I was living my faith, or so I thought.

Was my faith the bridge over troubled waters? Was I getting enough out of it or was I just looking for the WIFM (what’s in it for me) experience? Some of it may have had to do with my faith faltered and I questioned. Some of it may have had to do with some setbacks I experienced.

Still, I thought I had it made in the shade because I went through the motions, made my appearances, belonged the the right organizations, and even sat on a couple of committees at my parish.

All of those warm and fuzzy feelings were there, or so I thought.

I was missing something. I was missing that close relationship with Jesus, having Him as my friend, my confidant, my mentor and my Savior. I learned how to talk with Him, as a friend with whom I could share my deepest feelings and fears. I came away looking to continue and strengthen that relationship.

This is not some kind of cult that makes you shave your head and relinquish all your possessions to them. This is a group of men (and there are also Cursillo weekends for women) that want to strengthen their relationships with Jesus, gain a deeper understanding of their faith and make the Catholic Church stronger and more vibrant.

So, now I am going to pose a couple of questions to you: Do you feel that you are lacking something in your faith and relationship with Jesus? Do you want more?

If you answered yes to either of those questions, I would strongly suggest that you make the time to attend a Cursillo weekend. You may come away from the retreat revitalized in your relationship with Jesus and ready to take what you have experienced and share it with everyone you encounter.

2019-2020 ANNUAL REPORT
Passing Our Living Faith to Future Generations

Dear Sisters and Brothers in Christ:

During these uncertain times, we have leaned strongly on our faith as we cope with such concerns as the loss of loved ones, serious health issues, financial setbacks, and many other causes of anxiety that haunt us during this pandemic. Whether we are praying and worshipping physically in our churches, livestreaming on television or tuning in on our radio, we are all united and continuing to support one another in our faith journey.

Now, more than ever, we must possess the foresight to make certain the Church will have the means to carry out its sacred mission: protecting human life, promoting respect for the dignity of every human life, supporting the poor, and building up the Church as we continue the mission of proclaiming the Good News.

From one generation to the next, our family of faith has generously supported and strengthened one another in our journey of faith. In 2007, in order to “Build a Bridge for the Future” and continue a strong sense of commitment, the Foundation of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Ogdensburg was established with the purpose of preparing the Diocese on the back page of this insert.

Please take a moment to review the 2019 Annual Report of the Foundation found on the back page of this insert. You will note the fifty-one endowments established to support the future ministry of the Church here in the North Country, as well as our mission statement which explains what a Catholic Foundation is, how it works, and the methods of giving.

These endowment gifts are a perpetual source of revenue for the Diocese, Parishes, Schools, Ministries and Missionary Projects of the Diocese. I am extremely appreciative and grateful to those who have contributed to the Foundation and have invested in our Catholic community’s future.

The Foundation is an instrument for you to make a legacy for the next generation and for generations to come. If you have not already done so, I encourage you to consider developing an estate plan for the benefit of your loved ones and those close to your heart.

I am grateful to the Board of Directors who provide sound guidance, ensure legal ethical integrity and offer wise stewardship in overseeing the investments of its funds.

Wishing God’s blessing to you and your loved ones, I am
Faithfully yours in Christ,

Most Reverend Terry R. LaValley
Bishop of Ogdensburg

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of The Foundation is to pass our living faith to future generations by financially supporting the charitable, spiritual, educational and temporal works of the Catholic Community of the Diocese of Ogdensburg by accepting donations or endowment funds from donors and the administration of these funds.

In fulfilling its mission, The Foundation will:
- Provide estate planning and charitable giving information and assistance.
- Provide gifting vehicles in which the Church or related entities are the designated beneficiary.
- Provide responsible and financial management and distribution of earnings that further the mission of the Catholic Church.

Catholics are called by God to protect human life, to promote dignity, to defend those who are poor, to strengthen the Church and to seek the common good. The Foundation exists to help Catholics live out this sacred mission of the Church, through the wise stewardship and thoughtful sharing of their financial resources.

The Foundation will provide permanent endowments and memorial funds for donors who want to give lasting support to parishes, schools, religious and social service ministries in the Diocese of Ogdensburg.

PUBLIC ACCOUNTABILITY STATEMENT

We recognize and understand as a Catholic Foundation entirely separate from the Diocese but in all ways accountable to both the Diocese and our donors, we are sustained by public trust and laws that confer upon us a special responsibility to society and the Roman Catholic Church. We further acknowledge that this responsibility can be met by full, open and public disclosure of all our affairs.

HOW THE FOUNDATION WORKS

The Foundation solicits and receives planned gifts to benefit the people and communities of the Diocese as designated by donors. Prudent financial management of the funds is entrusted to the Board of Directors comprised of distinguished Church, business and civic leaders. A professional staff administers the day to day operation of The Foundation and oversees the distribution of annual earnings from the funds. Assets are managed by investment professionals.

Challenges and joys of seminary in COVID

By Mary Beth Bracy
Contributing Writer

Some of the Diocese of Ogdensburg seminarians recently reflected on the challenges and joys of seminary life during the pandemic.

Challenges
• “Until a few weeks ago, we weren't allowed off the Josephinum campus, except with the express permission of the vice-rector,” shared Lukas Gruber. “Thankfully, we were recently offered the ability to go to parks and trails. Still, it is a challenge not to be able to interact with local parishioners and minister to them. For me, this period has been a great reminder of what a great privilege it is to be able to serve God's people in any capacity, even if it is reduced to prayerful accompaniment. God-willing, we'll go out and perform some sort of parish ministry next semester.”
• “Adapting to a new culture and environment is hard; at times I have felt confused and even anxious,” Tuan 'Joseph' Vuong revealed. “I am making strides, growing and accepting joys and challenges. The diocese is becoming my home, as Bishop (Terry R.) LaValley suggested. My dream is to become a priest, and I hope to settle in the North Country. I am doing all I can to adapt to local culture and traditions. My biggest challenge is homesickness. I have no family in the U.S.; they all live in Viet Nam, so loneliness is an issue. I have concerns about my parents’ health.”
• “Going to seminary in the middle of a pandemic is very strange,” noted Nick Olley. “While still having to go to classes, liturgies, off-campus, and the list goes on. Seminary is difficult on its own, with all the reading and assignments, along with the things that are expected from us in the seminary schedule or the very fact that we are studying to become a priest for Jesus Christ. The most annoying thing is that we must wear masks everywhere in the building, though we live together. This is certainly helping us practice the virtue of obedience to our superiors!”
• “For me, the biggest challenge is not being able to travel home for Thanksgiving or do much off campus,” wrote Tyler Fitzgerald. “Although sad, there are preparations underway for a large community dinner. There have been plenty of socials, parties, and fraternal events. We had a pumpkin carving, snacks, movies and candy. Not being able to freely travel has led to a deep sense of fraternity. We are blessed with an excellent campus equipped with a pool, gym, exercise rooms, places to walk, four chapels, and a (temperamental) bowling alley. Every day I am reminded that I'm not alone.”
• “The biggest impact has been on our brotherhood, upon which so much of our seminary formation relies,” Carter Pierce said. “By our brotherhood we solidify what each other in discernment, strengthen each other in our commitment to virtuous living, console each other in our struggles and offer friendship. It is harder to have those interactions in a deep, impactful way. This has taught me to appreciate more what is currently lacking. My brothers have done a great job in overcoming challenges, discovering new ways to bond, have conversations, and interactions. This experience has bonded us together.”
• “Here in the Archdiocese of Baltimore, we are not even allowed to sing at Mass,” relayed Leagon Carlin. “Though it seems that we are all further apart than ever, and this carries its own struggles in our attempt as future priests to be close to the people for whose service we will be ordained, it is in many ways all the easier to become closer to the One for Whom we are pursuing this way in the first place, and for love of Whom we desire to give our lives: The Most Holy Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.”
• “One of the biggest challenges, especially this year, has been adjusting to life at a new seminary: Mt. Saint Mary’s definitely does things differently than the Josephinum, where I studied the last four years,” commented Douglas Schirmer. “But it’s been a great experience, and the community here is wonderful! I’m finding the challenge to be rewarding.”

Joys
• “The greatest joy is to be able to continue in-person formation,” Gruber reflected. “Virtual learning is a wonderful tool and aid, but God did not make us to sit in front of a screen all day. Rather, He made us with a deep desire for in-person human contact with Himself and others. It’s also a great joy to worship God together here in a fairly normal and regular fashion. We are extremely lucky that we are able to attend Mass every day and have frequent Confession. May God soon grant everyone the opportunity for frequent reception of the Eucharist and Confession.”
• “Here in the Archdiocese of Baltimore, we are not even allowed to sing at Mass,” relayed Leagon Carlin. “Though it seems that we are all further apart than ever, and this carries its own struggles in our attempt as future priests to be close to the people for whose service we will be ordained, it is in many ways all the easier to become closer to the One for Whom we are pursuing this way in the first place, and for love of Whom we desire to give our lives: The Most Holy Trinity, the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit.”
• “One of the biggest challenges, especially this year, has been adjusting to life at a new seminary: Mt. Saint Mary’s definitely does things differently than the Josephinum, where I studied the last four years,” commented Douglas Schirmer. “But it’s been a great experience, and the community here is wonderful! I’m finding the challenge to be rewarding.”

• Olley witnessed: “I went straight to Jesus in the Eucharist and to Mama Mary with my concerns. Like a good mother, Mama Mary came and wrapped me up and gave me a sense of warmth and peace. Did not Jesus say, 'Do not be afraid' and to trust in Him? Take care of your relationship with Christ, the Divine Physician. A prayer I recommend “The Surrender Novena” which includes the prayer, O Jesus, I surrender myself to You, take care of everything! You can always find blessings in all situations in life. Pray, Hope, and Don’t Worry!”
• “Firstly, we have been blessed that no one at the Mount has contracted COVID-19,” mused Pierce. “We have been praying daily to Our Lady for protection and she has not let us down. For this I am very thankful, both because we have a couple elderly priests here and...
Challenges and joys

because it allows us to continue to live, study, and be formed here without further interruption. We are also blessed with great leadership, who are excellent models for us and keep everyone positive, even in these trying times.”

- “Every day I get to wake up, pray, receive the sacraments, learn about God and His Church, and grow in my spiritual life,” expounded Fitzgerald. “What more could I want? It is a true pleasure, to prepare for a life of service to our diocese. Not a day goes by that I don’t pray for the People of God in the North Country, who, please God, I will serve one day as a priest. I am filled with joy that God has allowed me to continue my formation and on the path to the priesthood. That outweighs any challenge imaginable.”

- “One of the greatest joys that seminarians get to experience at any time, but which COVID has especially reminded us of, is that of daily Mass and Eucharistic adoration,” Schirmer contemplated.

“Spent time with Jesus in the sacrament, and to do so daily, is the most rewarding part of our routine here. Given the fact that COVID restrictions have made it difficult for so many to be close to Our Lord in this way, we do not take that blessing for granted! We’ve been praying for the people of the Diocese, and the Church throughout the country, during this time. Another great joy for me is studying the Church’s teachings. There is no teaching of the Church that does not have a good explanation: it just may take some work to find it every once in a while! There’s a richness and beauty, a completeness, to the Church’s teaching that constantly astounds me.”

“The routine of prayer, the friends I am still able to be with, and the guidance of Priestly Advisors, both spiritual and practical, has served to create a real stable situation,” concluded Carlin. “We are able to enter into the process of vocational discernment and preparation with a solid grounding in the things that sustain us, that is: the Eucharist; personal prayer and our relationship with the Blessed Mother; many opportunities for the Sacrament of Consecration, and close, life-giving friendships. Thank you all for your prayers and support, and please be assured of the prayers of myself, and all of the seminarians!”
Washington (CNS) – Horns blared near the White House just before noon Nov. 7 as major U.S. news organizations projected Democrat Joe Biden will be the 46th president of the United States, making him the second Catholic in the country’s history to be elected to the nation’s highest office.

“Congratulations to our second Catholic President and our first female VP of African and Indian roots!” tweeted Bishop John E. Stowe of Lexington, Kentucky, shortly after organizations such as The Associated Press, The New York Times and Fox News announced Biden and running mate Kamala Harris had won the race.

The projection came following the announcement from Pennsylvania officials that Biden had won the state’s cache of 20 electoral votes, putting him over the 270 electoral-vote threshold needed to secure a victory. Running mate Harris becomes the country’s first female vice president-elect.

Though President Donald Trump’s campaign launched legal battles over votes in some electorally rich states and made allegations of fraud in vote counting, even the president’s supporters, such as Fox News, said in a newscast after the race was called that they hadn’t seen evidence of widespread fraud.

Among Catholics, news agency AP VoteCast showed they were split between the two candidates, with 50% of Catholics backing Trump and 49% Biden, with most of the support coming from Latino Catholics, the second largest ethnic group in the church, who overwhelmingly cast votes for Biden.

Some Catholics said they could not support the Biden-Harris ticket because both support legalizing abortion.

In reaction to announcement of the Biden win, Carol Tobias, president of the National Right to Life Committee, said the president-elect and his vice president “support radical abortion policies.” She expressed regret their administration is expected to roll back “protective legislation such as the Hyde Amendment” and support taxpayer funding of abortion.

But many Catholic organizations and even some bishops were tweeting or released statements of support for Biden shortly after news of his win.

Sister Simone Campbell, a Sister of Social Service, who is head of the Catholic social justice lobby group Network, said Catholics had responded to the president’s divisiveness and voted for a range of issues.

“Catholics are not single-issue voters,” she said in a statement. “Our community looked at the entirety of Donald Trump’s divisive and harmful record and chose to elect leaders who will govern with empathy and concern for the most marginalized. Catholics rejected racism, hatred and division and embraced the politics championed by Pope Francis—a politics of love and inclusion.”

Bishop Thomas J. Tobin of Providence, Rhode Island, also tweeted best wishes.

“Congratulations to President-elect Joe Biden! We join in praying sincerely for his health and safety and that of his family,” Bishop Tobin wrote. “With the grace of Almighty God to assist and guide him, may he strive always to govern our nation with wisdom, compassion and moral integrity.”

Faith-based organizations that closely work with the Catholic Church on immigration issues, such as Hope Border Institute in El Paso, voiced support for a new administration and urged the presumptive president-elect to pass comprehensive immigration reform, to stop the building of the border wall, end a policy that keeps asylum-seekers to the U.S. in Mexico as they wait for their cases to be settled in U.S. immigration courts and end family separations among migrants.

In a letter the organization released Nov. 7, signed by Jesuit Father Sean Carroll, executive director of the Kino Border Initiative, Sister Norma Pimentel, executive director or Catholic Charities of the Rio Grande Valley, and Dylan Corbett, the institute’s executive director, they asked that special attention be given to immigrant issues along the border.

“What we need now is moral leadership to bring us together and reject hate in all forms. As a fellow Catholic, we urge you to embrace the oppressed and vulnerable in our midst, who we believe are no less than the Christ knocking at our door,” the letter said.
SCRIPTURE REFLECTIONS

Are we using and growing our talents?

Many of you will remember the song from the musical Godspell, “We plough the fields and scatter.” The refrain goes like this: “All good gifts around us, are sent from heav’n above, So thank the Lord, O thank the Lord for all His love. I really Paul E. Schwartz really ‘lifted it’ from an old German hymn. But how appropriately for this Sunday’s readings, which really warn us to use well the gifts God has given us, for the time is short before God will demand an accounting from us.

In the Gospel story about the king who goes on a long journey, then comes back suddenly, Jesus invites the Apostles to reflect on their own lives in terms of the “talents” they have each received. It’s clear that he has given them to each in accordance with their own abilities. In the story, two of the servants promptly go out and double their value, while one, out of fear and timidity, just buries his one talent without any attempt to use it well. The moral is obvious: if we don’t use God’s gifts and share them, we will be punished at the end of our lives.

Why must we be so industrious and generous with God’s gifts? Because, as followers of Jesus, we cannot just live for our own selfish enjoyment, for we are “children of the light” meant to spread the Good News and help others to also live in the light.

It’s clear from St. Paul’s preaching to the Thessalonians that no one knows just when the world will end, but the Lord’s second coming is inevitable, and it will come suddenly, without warning.

It’s a good Sunday to ask ourselves, “If the Lord should come today, how ready am I to ‘turn in my chips’ and give an accounting of my life? Will the Lord be pleased with how I have increased the gifts of light and grace He has given me? How generous have I been in sharing my light?”

CALLED TO SERVE

A Veterans Day reflection

The first military veteran I knew was my father. Dad was a Corpsman in the U.S. Navy during World War II. He was assigned to a Marine unit and served in the Pacific. He was detailed with hundreds of other soldiers, sailors, and Marines to Nagasaki after the Japanese surrender to assist with the “clean-up” following the atom bombing of that Japanese city.

I never had a chance to talk to my father about his military experiences, because he died when I was young. Daniel Mastellon is buried in the Pinelawn Memorial Park on Long Island.

His grave is among those of other veterans who have died either during or after their service to our country.

In my lifetime, our nation has sent young men and women in our military services to conflicts and peacekeeping missions in many parts of the world. Some of those who served were relatives and friends.

You may have served, or members of your family or acquaintances may have served. This day, Veterans Day, is to remind us of your service.

This Friday, November 13, deacons of the diocese will join Deacon Dave Clark’s family and friends in prayer to thank God for the service Dave gave to his country and his Church.

Deacon Dave died last March, only days after the pandemic restrictions were placed on all of us. He died in Plattsburgh after a relatively short but horrific series of medical complications.

Dave retired as a colonel from the United States Air Force after 30 years of service. He was a registered nurse and continued nursing as a civilian for the State of New York. He was ordained a deacon for the Diocese of Ogdensburg in 2017.

He ministered in St. John’s Church in Plattsburgh.

Dave and all the men and women I have been privileged to know who have served our country in military service have taken their faith with them to their assignments.

A passage from 1 Peter is appropriate for Veterans Day:

Let your love for one another be intense be-cause love covers a multitude of sins. Be hospi-talable to one another without complaining. As each one has received a gift, use it to serve one another as good stewards of God’s varied grace. Whoever serves, let it be with the strength that God provides so that in all things God may be glorified through Jesus Christ.

Thank you all for your service to God and country.

Deacon Kevin Mastellon ministers in Watertown. He is the Director of Permanent Deacons for the Diocese of Ogdensburg.
Seasons change, but needs remain the same

This time of the year with the fall chill in the air, it brings about reminders of having to get out our boots and coats. While the weather will and does change, the work to fight hunger and poverty in the United States and mission lands never ends.

As Catholics, we take time to reflect on Jesus carrying His cross. Reflections can lead us to remember why Jesus willingly carried His cross. Reflections no doubt fill us with emotions as we contemplate His great love for each of us.

As Jesus met His mother while carrying His cross, Mary suffered as she watched her son endure pain and could do nothing to help Him.

As our global battle with COVID continues, we all face difficult times, but it offers us the opportunity to think about people living in poverty and carrying the cross of hunger.

We are reminded of those who possibly have no boots, coats, or food all while trying to live within the parameters of a pandemic.

Thank you to all of you who contribute to the Pontifical Mission Societies each year with our collections and appeals to benefit so many living in the mission lands. These efforts do not just help with hunger alleviation efforts but with the building of schools, supporting vocations and assisting the efforts of missionaries in the developing lands.

Your contributions help people to receive relief from the daily crosses of hunger and poverty. As the mission lands suffer, maybe try to give of your time to volunteer at a local agency that reaches out to the poor in your community. Pick a meal to fast in solidarity with those who are hungry. There is always more we can do.

Let us pray for the wisdom to always remember that the poor at home and around the world are not statistics; they are our brothers and sisters.

May hope in Jesus’ love for all affirm our work for justice for all people. May we remember that by our baptism, we are all missionaries.

Please remember “The Society for the Propagation of the Faith” when writing or changing your Will.

Funeral Mass held for Sister Loretta Wundrock, GNSH

A funeral Mass for Sister Loretta Wundrok, a Gray Nun of the Sacred Heart, 84, formerly Sister Loretta Joseph, was held Nov. 11 at Maternity B.V.M. Church in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Sister Loretta died November 4, 2020 in her 67th year of religious life.

As a native New Yorker, this lifelong educator served as teacher, principal and school librarian during her years of active ministry. For 41 years, Sister Loretta was assigned to various locations in her home state, 20 of which were served at St. Mary’s in Potsdam, where she was principal from 1977 to 1996. Other teaching assignments in New York State included Buffalo, Jackson Heights, Corona, Port Washington and St. Albans. She also taught in Atlanta, Georgia and King of Prussia, Pennsylvania.

Sister Loretta earned a bachelor’s degree in elementary education from D’Youville College, Buffalo, and a master’s in education from Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond, Kentucky. From 2007-11, Sister Loretta volunteered in ministry to the elderly homebound in Rockville Centre Diocese. After retiring to the Motherhouse, Sister Loretta continued to engage in intracommunity service until moving to Holy Redeemer Lafayette in 2016.

Born January 25, 1936 in New York, New York, she entered the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart in 1953.

In addition to her religious congregation, she is survived by her sister, Kay Wadsworth and nieces and nephews. Her parents and brother, Joseph, predeceased her.

Donations in Sister’s memory will be gratefully received by the Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart, 14500 Bustleton Ave., Philadelphia, PA 19116-1188 or at www.greyun.org.

St. Paul’s in Pyrites celebrates 100 years

PYRITES—On October 25, a special outdoor Mass was held at St. Paul’s Oratory in Pyrites to celebrate the church’s 100th anniversary. The main celebrant for the Mass was Bishop Douglas J. Lucia of the Diocese of Syracuse, former pastor of St. Mary’s Church in Canton. Father Bernard D. Menard and Father Todd E. Thibault, former pastoral associates were also present concelebrating alongside Father Bryan D. Stitt, current pastor of St. Mary’s Church.

Cars lined the small country back road and over 100 were in attendance. Many sat in lawn chairs in the chilly autumn air. For those who chose to remain in their cars, the Mass could be heard via FM radio.

Though a celebration of 100 years since the building of the church structure, the event also had a somber tone, as it will likely be the last Mass to be celebrated at St. Paul’s. The church recently sustained significant damage, and it will soon be put on the market to be sold. Before a potential sale to a good buyer, all the religious items such as the altar, pews, stained glass windows, and bell will be removed. St. Paul’s was built in 1920. The land was deeded to the church in 1922 by the De Grasse Paper Company at the cost of one dollar. The Church was declared an oratory in April 25th, 1990 and is a facility of St. Mary’s Church in Canton.

Despite this underlying sadness, Bishop Lucia’s homily centered on the reminder that we are all called to be church. “As beautiful as they (the buildings) are, what is most important is what happens when we go forth from these places,” Bishop Lucia said. “You and I are called to be the building blocks of the Church today. Go out and live the Mass.”

Edd White, long-time parishioner and caretaker of St. Paul’s read the first and second readings. At the end of Mass, a special plaque was presented to White to honor his commitment to and love of St. Paul’s.

“My father was the caretaker for years,” White said. “He spent a lot of his own money there. When he passed, I stepped in and took over. Someone needed to watch over it.”

White made the altar and lectern at St. Paul’s as well as a large five-foot wooden cross.

“It always seemed like home,” White shared.

Many other long-time parishioners of St. Paul’s were in attendance, including several from the Bessette/Warren family. Susanne Bessette Smith’s brother was married at St. Paul’s along with aunts and uncles. Her family helped to build St. Paul’s after they emigrated to Pyrites from Ireland. “Our family, for generations through the years, went to St. Paul’s every Sunday,” she said. “It means so much because it has been our family church for so long.”

Smith’s aunt still lives on the family homestead that is directly through the woods behind St. Paul’s. “My cousins used to walk that path through the woods to get to church in the summer and I remember playing on the lawn after Mass as a child,” she said.

The event was a beautiful way to end the long tradition of St. Paul’s Church in Pyrites, Smith said. “I teared up several times,” she said. “It was wonderful.”
