Pope entrusts world to Mary amidst pandemic

VATICAN CITY (CNS)—Pope Francis entrusted to Jesus’ mother the suffering and anguish of millions of people affected by the coronavirus pandemic.

In a video message broadcast March 11, the pope prayed before a portrait of Our Lady of Divine Love, beseeching her to “not disdain the entreaties of we who are in trial” but to “deliver us from every danger.”

“We entrust ourselves to you, Health of the Sick, who at the cross took part in Jesus’ pain, keeping your faith firm,” the pope prayed. “You, Salvation of the Roman People, know what we need, and we are sure you will provide so that, as in Cana of Galilee, we may return to joy and to feasting after this time of trial.”

The pope’s video message was aired on TV2000, the television channel of the Italian bishops’ conference, and the Diocese of Rome’s Facebook page. Cardinal Angelo De Donatis, papal vicar of Rome, celebrated a Mass at Rome’s Shrine of Divine Love that was aired live after the pope’s message.

The Mass, according to the Diocese of Rome, capped a day of prayer and fasting for the city and for Italy, which has been under a government-mandated lockdown to contain the spread of the coronavirus.

As of March 11, more than 12,000 people in Italy have contracted the virus, known as COVID-19, and at least 827 of them have died since the outbreak began in northern Italy, the Italian health ministry said. However, an estimated 1,045 people have been cured since the outbreak began.

The image of Our Lady of Divine Love is of particular significance for Catholics in the city of Rome, especially during troubling times.

It was before the original image of Mary and the child Jesus at the shrine where Pope Pius XII prayed in 1944, imploring the Mother of God to protect the Roman people during the final battle for the city’s liberation from Nazi occupation.
EDITOR’S NOTE

‘I gave credit to my Jeep, not Jesus’

After my recent car accident, I did what nearly any millennial would do: I posted about it on social media. I’ve been reflecting a lot about how I phrased the post.

Why do I keep revisiting it? I gave credit to my Jeep, not Jesus, for saving my life. Every week, as part of my duties as editor of this newspaper, I share some reflection about how I see God working in my life, how I’m living out my faith or how I’m struggling to do so. It’s my job to share my faith.

While I will likely always struggle with writing the column (I struggle to come up with ideas, I struggle with feelings of unworthiness…), I’ve become somewhat accustomed to writing about my faith for this purpose. I’ve gotten to where I don’t mind writing about my faith for (mostly) strangers, especially strangers I assume are most likely men and women also trying to live out their faith.

Yet I shy away from sharing my faith – how I experience God, and where I see Him working – with my family, friends and acquaintances. I let my pride and my desire to be accepted prevent me from sharing my faith openly on social media or (sometimes) in person. I know I have a very diverse group of friends on social media, and I’m confident expressions of faith would draw the ire of at least a few of them or make them think I’m weird or different.

I’m apparently not brave enough to own my faith in the face of a potential challenge.

I’ve resolved to try to do better at the next opportunity, though I hope that next opportunity doesn’t involve me wrecking another Jeep.

And I’m sorry I gave credit to my Jeep, not Jesus.

Called to renew our Baptismal Promises

Today, I would like to take a further look at Baptism with you. Last week, I wrote a bit about the importance of the Sacrament of Baptism during Lent. Lent is the time for the catechumens to enter their final stages of the Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults (RCIA) Program as they prepare to enter the Catholic Church and receive the sacrament of baptism at the Easter Vigil on Holy Saturday. For you and I who are already baptized, Lent is a yearly time of preparation for us to renew and reaffirm our dedication to live out our baptism.

At the Easter Vigil Mass, all of us – all the baptized – are asked to again proclaim their faith in their baptism by accepting the Baptismal Promises. For many of us, these Baptismal Promises were made for us by our godparents. Now, each and every Easter, we are asked to personally accept again these Baptismal Promises. So, today, I would like to remind you of your Baptismal Promises.

At the Easter Mass, the priest celebrant begins the renewal of the Baptismal Promises with an introduction: “Dear Friends, through the Paschal Mystery we have been buried with Christ in Baptism, so that we may walk with him in newness of life. And so, now that our Lenten observance is concluded, let us renew the promises of Holy Baptism, by which we once renounced Satan and his works, and promised to serve God in the holy Catholic Church.”

In Scripture, we are reminded of the meaning of baptism in the Letter to the Romans: “Are you unaware that we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? We are indeed buried with him through Baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might have a newness of life.”

So, baptism is about death and resurrection for people of faith. The image is a wonderful one: in Baptism we are buried in the waters of Baptism for we must die to all that keeps us from God so that we can rise to new life, a resurrection like that of Jesus. In the spirit of Our Lord, we dedicate ourselves to living well and following in life the message of our Savior, Jesus. Jesus rose from the dead on Easter to a new life. We believe we will find a new life through our baptism.

We do this by accepting again the Baptismal Promises. These promises are in the form of questions. We are asked to respond to our dedication by saying, “I do.” The first questions are our rejection of evil: “Do you renounce sin, so as to live in the freedom of the children of God?” “Do you renounce the lust of evil, so that sin may have no mastery over you?” and “Do you renounce Satan, the author and prince of sin?”

We understand the Baptismal Promises when we recognize that living our baptism demands rejecting sin that brings us freedom as children of God. Baptism calls upon us to reject all that keeps us from God’s love. Baptism is a certainly a challenge that calls upon us, the baptized, to live well in the Spirit of our God. Baptism guarantees the help and strength and power of God to support and guide us. Baptism unites us all together in our Catholic Church, a community working together to help each one of us to live out our Baptismal Promises.

In these Baptismal Promises, we are asked to declare our belief in God, to be a people united in faith. So, we are asked: “Do you believe in God the Father Almighty, Creator of heaven and earth?” “Do you believe Jesus Christ his only Son, our Lord, who was born of the Virgin Mary, suffered and was buried, rose again from the dead and is seated at the right hand of the Father?” and “Do you believe in the Holy Spirit, the holy Catholic Church, the communion of saints, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body and life everlasting?”

Our task for these last weeks of Lent is to properly prepare ourselves to be ready to reaffirm our Baptismal Promises. We need a strong and alive faith for this task. Use well the time that the Lord has given you for this prayer and growth in faith.
Use prudential judgment on Mass decision

In light of the serious health risks to vulnerable populations, and mindful of the instructions of medical professionals, the Bishops of New York State have urged the faithful to use their prudential judgment on whether or not to attend Mass on Sundays and Holy Days during the coronavirus outbreak. This is in keeping with the teaching of the Church, which has always exempted those with serious medical conditions, and family members of such individuals, who should take special care in discerning the best course of action. Masses throughout the Diocese of Ogdensburg will continue to be offered at this time, contingent on emergency restrictions regarding large gatherings. We are taking steps to make attendance at Mass safe for those who attend. Additionally, to those choosing not to attend Mass due to illness or having an underlying condition, Bishop LaValley hereby grants a dispensation from the obligation to attend Sunday Mass beginning immediately and continuing until further notice. Persons with underlying health conditions are especially encouraged to remain at home at this time.

Those who do attend Mass are reminded that they should follow the guidelines in place, such as receiving Holy Communion reverently in the hand, not receiving the Precious Blood, being sure to wash hands/use sanitizer before and after Mass, and avoiding physical contact with or close proximity to other persons. Additionally, at this time, we are asking pastors to ensure good and regular cleaning of surfaces that are touched regularly (such as door handles), that ministers of the Eucharist exercise good hygiene (washing or sanitizing their hands prior to distributing Holy Communion), and that holy water fonts are emptied.

During Mass, the sign of peace will not be announced or exchanged. If the parish has the habit of holding hands during the Lord's Prayer, this practice should be halted at this time.

We ask all participants to refrain from shaking hands before, during or after Mass.

A complete listing of precautions can be found on our diocesan website via a link on the diocesan homepage, rcdony.org. Those who will not attend Mass can follow the Mass on radio, television, or online where possible. This includes The Catholic Channel on Sirius XM (10:15 a.m. from Saint Patrick’s Cathedral and 1 p.m. from the Cathedral of Our Lady of Angels), and the Mass from St. Mary’s Cathedral at 8 a.m. Sunday on WQTK 92.7 FM, and television broadcasts (8 a.m. and noon on EWTN, 9 a.m. from St. Andre Besette Parish, Malone, on Spectrum and 11 a.m. and 8 p.m. from St. Bernard’s Church, Saranac Lake, on Spectrum).

All are urged to keep in prayer those who are suffering from the coronavirus, as well as for doctors, nurses, caregivers, and all those who are working to combat the disease.
Service to report misconduct by bishops launched

In May 2019, Pope Francis released his apostolic letter, Vos estis lux mundi (“You are the light of the world”) to address the issue of sexual abuse and bishop accountability in the global Catholic Church. Vos estis calls upon the metropolitan archbishops to undertake the responsibilities for receiving and assessing reports involving bishops that pertain to sexual abuse and related misconduct. In June 2019, one month after Pope Francis issued his order, the bishops of the United States convened for their general assembly in Baltimore and approved the implementation plan for carrying out the directives of the Holy Father here in the United States.

As part of this ongoing commitment to carrying out Vos estis, the Catholic Bishop Abuse Reporting Service (CBAR) was established. The service is operated by Convergent, Inc. an independent, third-party entity that provides intake services to private institutions for reports of sensitive topics such as sexual harassment through a secure, confidential, and professional platform.

Individuals may go to ReportBishopAbuse.org in order to make a report. Reports are also accepted via (800) 276-1562.

When a report is received, it will be forwarded to the local metropolitan archbishop who will undertake the responsibility of initially assessing the report. Cardinal Timothy M. Dolan of the Archdiocese of New York is the metropolitan who presides over the New York province, which includes the dioceses of Albany, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Ogdensburg, Rochester, Rockville Centre and Syracuse. If a report is received that concerns Cardinal Dolan, it will be forwarded to the senior suffragan bishop.

The Catholic Bishop Abuse Reporting service allows for individuals to relay to Church authorities any reports of a U.S. Catholic bishop who has:

- forced someone to perform or to submit to sexual acts through violence, threat, or abuse of authority;
- performed sexual acts with a minor or a vulnerable person;
- produced, exhibited, possessed, or distributed child pornography, or recruited or induced a minor or a vulnerable person to participate in pornographic exhibitions;
- or, a diocesan or eparchial bishop, or a cleric overseeing a diocese/eparchy in the absence of a diocesan or eparchial bishop, who has intentionally interfered with a civil or church investigation into allegations of sexual abuse committed by another cleric or religious.

The Catholic Bishop Abuse Reporting Service (CBAR) does not replace existing reporting systems for complaints against priests, deacons, religious or laity. CBAR was designed to respond only to complaints against bishops for issues related to sexual misconduct.

The reporting of sexual misconduct by anyone in ministry who is not a bishop, such as priests, deacons, religious brothers and sisters, or lay persons working or volunteering for the Church should continue to be handled in accordance with the Diocese of Ogdensburg’s child protection policy, which can be found at www.rcdony.org/safeenv, and with proper civil authorities. For more information on the reporting service, please visit: ReportBishopAbuse.org.

While the mandate by Pope Francis in Vos estis echoes many of the practices that the Catholic Church in the United States has already implemented since 2002 with the Charter for the Protection of Children and Young People, this new order applies to the bishops and to the worldwide Catholic Church, making clear the pope’s concern of the issue of sexual abuse in the Church at a global level.

Faith: A constant companion

By Suzanne Pietropaoli
Staff Writer

OGDENSBURG – From Illinois to Africa to Wisconsin to Ogdensburg, faith has been Amy Schirmer’s constant companion on an unusual journey. Daughter and granddaughter of Protestant pastors and missionaries, she was received into the Catholic Church in 2006.

“My faith is important to me because it was important to my parents,” Schirmer explains. “My faith is my own and different from theirs, but their Godly example, their heroism, their life decisions, their generosity and hospitality all expressed the importance of faith. As I grew up and altered my course, I have been so grateful for this heritage. I have also found untold riches in the Catholic Church that have provided a glorious context for understanding WHY faith is so important! It leads me to God!”

Not, she is quick to explain, in any predictable way, but “in a wildly beautiful, completely rational, hilariously unexpected, terrifyingly awesome way that includes shady green pastures, storm-tossed seas, parched deserts, flooded plains, dangerous mountains and a still, small voice.”

Schirmer recalls having invited Jesus into her heart as a second grader because she did not want to go to hell.

“No one was trying to scares me... I scared myself,” she said. “And having made that decision, I never looked back. In high school, some students kept talking about ‘being baptized in the Holy Spirit.’ One of them prayed with me, and this was another milestone, drawing me closer to where I belonged. My dad started attending an Episcopalian church my last year of high school, and I experienced the glory of liturgical worship for the first time. I was married in that church, and my husband, Rob, attended Episcopal seminary and was ordained to the priesthood.”

This proved to be another milestone in Schirmer’s journey. “I remember telling someone how much I loved the liturgy, but that I could NEVER be a Roman Catholic. Ha!”

The first significant challenge to that mindset came when a friend sent her Kimberly and Scott Hahn’s book, Rome Sweet Home. Then there was the Catholic homeschool group she attended with her children, which introduced her to Catholic friends, Catholic radio and Catholic literature, especially the lives of the saints. Ten years would pass before Schirmer entered the Catholic Church.

During that time, Schirmer’s husband left the Episcopal priesthood to join the Continuing Anglicans—a move that brought her into regular contact with “a Gregorian Mass done in English, with Rob’s excellent homilies, followed by a shared meal with conversation centered on our lives as Christians. When I told this group I that I wanted to become Catholic, they all wondered why I had waited so long! In 2006, I was received into the Church in Wisconsin.”

Before long, the family was “surprised to find ourselves living here in the North Country. Within six months, we were living close enough to the cathedral that it became my parish. In the ensuing 12 years I have daily been nourished by the Eucharist and reminded of the goodness of God in giving us his Church. There, all three of my sons have entered the Church, as my father will soon do. Each addition is like a new birth, bringing so much joyful confirmation to my own conversion.”

The Cathedral, where Schirmer is a secretary, has brought other blessings as well. A long-time participant and facilitator in the Women of Grace group there, she found fellowship, formation, and...

Church," she said. "Before long, his oldest brother, Douglas, [now a 4th year seminarian for our dioce­se] came into the Church. Later, when I re­newed my consecration, my son Calvin announced that he was becoming a Catholic. In 2019, after my most recent renewal, my 88-year-old dad decided to come into the Church, which he will do at Easter." Nevertheless, Schirmer reveals, "Like everyone's story, my own includes some valleys. When we were in seminary, we lost a baby boy just hours after his premature birth. Samuel's death was a crushing experience. But I knew that I could trust the ground beneath me to bring me back to life, because it was the holy ground of a grieving parent...familiar ground to God, that I was being asked to share. Depression has also been a real part of my life for as long as I can remember, sometimes almost too much to bear. However, an experience in October 2018 was pivotal. Rob and I were traveling and went to Mass in Ishpeming, Michi­gan, where the priest prayed a prayer of deliv­erance over his parish.

While he was praying, I had a vision of Jesus looking at me and smiling. His look was one of absolute acceptance — and in that look I believe a healing took place. I have since struggled, but I have shared the story with those dear to me, and someone is sure to put their arms around and re­mind me: 'He smiled at you!'"

The foundation for Schirmer's faith journey was laid during her childhood in Africa, where her parents were missionaries in what is now the Democratic Republic of Congo. "My parents never looked down on anyone but helped everyone who came to our door," she said. "Back in the States it was the same: an open­door policy which allowed many to experience the love of God through their generosity and hospital­ity. So, I have found it easy to share my faith by offer­ing to pray for people, to hug them, to share a book with them. When I think of what my faith means to me, I am overwhelmed, grateful, and humbled. What better response can there be to such a gift than to share it with oth­ers?"

Similarly, Schirmer served for some years on the parish's evangelization committee, where she discovered Father Michael Gatley's...Thirty-three Days to Morning Glory, which concludes with a personal consecration to the Blessed Mother. Schirmer relates just how powerful this novena and consecration proved to be.

Watertown church hosts consecration to St. Joseph

Watertown – St. Anthony's Church will be hosting a consecration to St. Joseph using Consecration to St. Joseph, The Wonders of our Spiritual Father, a book by Father Donald Calloway, MIC.

The group will begin Tuesday, March 24. The Blessed Sacrament is adored at St. Anthony’s every Tuesday from 3 to 6 p.m. The consecration will begin immediately after reposition.

Participants will use Father Calloway’s book to continue the consecration daily for 33 days. We will meet as a group March 24 and 31, April 7, 14 and 21. The final consecration will be made on Friday, May 1, the Feast day of St. Joseph the Worker, at 6 p.m. with exposition of the Blessed Sacrament.

Saint Joseph is a hidden treasure, greatly needed today. The recent release, Consecration to St. Joseph, The Wonders of our Spiritual Father has shed light on the power and effectiveness of this mighty defender.

The author, Father Donald Calloway, MIC, is a convert to Catholicism. He is a member of the Congregation of Marian Fathers of the Immaculate Conception. Before his conversion to Catholicism, he was a high school dropout who had been kicked out of a foreign country, institutionalized twice, and thrown in jail multiple times.

After his radical conversion he earned a bachelor’s degree in Philosophy and Theology from the Franciscan University of Steubenville, M.Div. and S.T.B. degrees from the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, DC, and an S.T.L. in Mariology from the International Marian Research Institute in Dayton, Ohio.

Jim Caviezel (main character from The Passion of the Christ) has stated that “St. Joseph is our loving spiritual father and the missing piece needed in a world searching for truth, peace and hope.”

Among many of the titles of St. Joseph are: Terror of Demons; Defender of Christ; Most Courageous; Hope of the Sick; Protector of the Holy Church and Patron of the Dying. Surely, we could all benefit from the patronage of this blessed Saint. If this courageous father could defend Christ and terrorize demons, imagine what he could do for us!

In glowing support of the book Most Rev. Athanasius Schneider, ORC, DD has urged individuals, families, parishes and diocese to consecrate themselves to the spiritual fatherhood of St. Joseph.

All are invited to join us. The only requirement is Father Calloway’s book. They are available at fathercalloway.com, AlIHeartsAfire.org and Amazon. St. Anthony’s Church has a limited supply of free books. In order to reserve a copy, or for any questions, please contact Kathi Buskey at 315-783-2230, or kwbuskey@yahoo.com.

Survey shows divide among believers over Trump views

WASHINGTON (CNS) – President Donald Trump may be as divisive to religionists as he seems to be to other groups in American society, as indicated by the latest Pew Research Center survey.

"We're seeing a big divide between white Christian and minority Christians and non-Christian groups," said Pew research associate Claire Gecewicz, who was the lead researcher on the 55-page Pew survey, released March 12.

Gecewicz also cited a lengthening "bridge between white and Hispanic Catholics, especially with the questions about Donald Trump."

White Catholics increasingly believe their side has been winning politically. This Pew poll, taken Feb. 4-15, showed 55% believing that, more than double the 26% recorded in May 2016, and up from 41% from just last May.

"White Catholics are fairly high on Donald Trump," Gecewicz told Catholic News Service in a March 10 phone interview to discuss the survey findings.

In the survey, taken online, 68% of white Catholics thought "intelligent" describes Trump "very well" or "fairly well," along with 66% who said Trump "fights for what I believe in."

Among white Catholics, 29% say they agree with Trump on "nearly all" issues, while another 29% said they agree with him on "many, but not all" issues. Another 41% said they agreed with the president on "few," "almost none" or "none."

Hispanic Catholics look at Trump differently. Majorities said he was "prejudiced" and "self-centered," while minorities of 21-24% described him as "honest," "morally upstanding" and "even-tempered." Only 31% said Trump "fights for what I believe in," and just 30% agree with Trump on nearly all or many issues.

"These results largely reflect partisanship," Gecewicz said. "Most white Catholics said they identified with the Republican Party, and that's certainly in line with their partisan views and partisan identification."

Many of the questions, Gecewicz said, were new to the survey, and were asked in such a way that, if Pew researchers deem it necessary, can be asked again in a future election cycle or about a future president.

When asked how important certain characteristics are in a president, 93% of Catholics said they either "very" or "somewhat" want a president who "personally lives a moral, ethical life"; 73% want a president who "stands up for people with your religious beliefs"; 62% want one with "strong religious beliefs, even if they are different for your own"; and 42% want a chief executive who "shares your religious beliefs."

Yet 63% said Trump is either "not too" or "not at all" religious, while 35% said he was either "very" or "somewhat" religious. Conversely, 72% found Vice President Mike Pence very or somewhat religious, with just 18% saying the opposite.

The only subgroups with majorities believing Trump to be religious were Republicans and white evangelicals.

Pew found 25% of respondents who said he has helped Catholics, although larger percentages — yet not majorities — say he has helped evangelicals and Jews. Among Catholics, 40% say he has helped evangelicals, and 26% said he has helped Catholics.

At best, Trump elicits mixed feelings among people of faith in the way he conducts himself. No religious subset recorded a majority, or even a plurality, saying they like how he comports himself. Forty-nine percent of Catholics said they don't like how Trump conducts himself, led by 59% of Hispanic Catholics.

Majorities of evangelicals, Jews and atheists said there is conflict between their beliefs and mainstream American culture. But 62% of Catholics said they see little or no conflict between their beliefs and the culture.

By a nearly 3-to-1 margin, survey respondents said Christianity's influence in society was decreasing. Catholics mirrored that mindset, with 49% agreeing, but 17% saying Christianity's influence was increasing. But 27% of Catholics said it was a temporary change that could reverse itself, while 22% said they saw the decline as permanent.

Majorities of those who found Christianity's influence declining cited growth in the number of Americans who are not religious, more permissive attitudes about sexuality and sexual behavior in popular culture, and "misconduct by Christian leaders." Fully 66% of Catholics saw misconduct as a reason for Christianity's waning influence — the largest percentage recorded by any religious group, or for any of seven possible reasons suggested.

I Still Believe

NEW YORK (CNS) – In keeping with the song and book from which it takes its title, nondenominational affirmations of faith permeate the fact-based romantic drama "I Still Believe" (Lionsgate), making the film congenial fare for Christians of various stripes.

The absence of objectionable material, moreover, renders this love story suitable for all but the youngest viewers who might be upset by some of the events it portrays.

KJ Apa plays future Christian music star Jeremy Camp. As the picture opens, Indiana-bred Jeremy is off to college in California. There he promptly falls at first sight for fellow student Melissa Henning (Britt Robertson). But their relationship faces a series of challenges.

The initial problem is that Jeremy's friend and professional mentor, Jean-Luc Lajoie (Nathan Dean) - who, as front man for a group called the Kry is an already established singer - also loves Melissa, though she just wants to be his pal. So the duo feel compelled to conceal their deepening bond from Jean-Luc, at least temporarily.

No sooner has this triangle been resolved, however, than a much graver development arises when Melissa is diagnosed with cancer. Jeremy, who is clearly on board with the whole "in sickness and in health" deal, doesn't allow this to deter him from wheeling Melissa into the chapel of the hospital where she's being treated and popping the question.

Additionally, "I Still Believe," which is paced by musical interludes, sends a pro-life message via Jeremy's kindly interaction with handicapped kids, most prominently his developmentally challenged younger brother, Josh (Reuben Dodd). Taken together with the other positive values underlying the script, this outlook will make Jeremy's partial biography appealing to moviegoers committed to Bible-based morality.

The film contains mature themes, brief medical gore and a couple of marital bedroom scenes. The Catholic News Service classification is A-II — adults and adolescents. The Motion Picture Association rating is PG — parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

Pope Francis calls each of us to witness to charity and to show God's mercy to one another. He encourages us to "open our eyes and see the misery of the world, the wounds of our brothers and sisters who are denied their dignity, and let us recognize that we are compelled to heed their cry for help!" (Misericordiae Vultus [MV], no. 15). The Peter's Pence Collection unites us in solidarity to the Holy See and its works of charity to those in need. Your generosity allows the Pope to respond to our suffering brothers and sisters.

The purpose of the Peter's Pence Collection is to provide the Holy Father with the financial means to respond to those who are suffering as a result of war, oppression, natural disaster, and disease.

Collection Weekend: March 21 & 22
We’re at the half-way point in Lent. Two weeks ago, we were told to “Listen up!” This week, the readings tell us to get rid of the darkness. Currently, our fears for the spread of the coronavirus have already disrupted normal living. We have much more darkness throughout our world as well. Father Richard Rohr told us a while ago, “Because humans do not see their own truth very well, they do not read reality very well either.”

As a result of straining away through the darkness, we make many foolish and destructive choices in combating the darkness. We’re like a person who fails to turn the light on when entering a room. As a result, we knock over tables and chairs rather than seeing how to use them.

In the first reading, God sends Samuel to go to the house of Jesse in Jerusalem to anoint that son whom God has chosen to succeed Saul as King. God warns Samuel, “Do not judge from his appearance or from his lofty stature, because I have rejected him. Not as man sees does God see, because man sees the appearance, but the Lord looks into the heart.” Eventually, Samuel finds the least likely son, David, and anoints him king.

If we are to really see clearly, we need to let Jesus heal us of our blindness as He did the man born blind in today’s Gospel. Even though Jesus was right in front of him, the blind man couldn’t see him until Jesus removed the scales from his eyes and restored his sight. Only later, after much harassing from the narrow-minded Pharisees, was he able to really see spiritually and see Jesus as the Son of God. It was all possible when he saw through the lens of the Holy Spirit.

We are invited to celebrate this Sunday with joy, because through our baptism and confirmation, we have been invited to live in the light and to act with the power of that light. In the second reading from St. Paul’s letter to the Ephesians, we read, “You were once in darkness, but now you are light in the Lord. Live as children of light, for light produces every kind of goodness and righteousness and truth.”

Through our Lenten discipline, God will remove the darkness in our lives, and help us to respond in faith and love to the Truth about ourselves and our world. Then we will see as God sees!
Lenten sacrifices make a difference

The beautiful and familiar “Peace Prayer” attributed to Saint Francis of Assisi concludes, “...it is in giving that we receive, it is in pardoning that we are pardoned, it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.”

That timely Lenten prayer touches the core of the Catholic Faith and offers us a threefold Lenten meditation on charity, forgiveness and resurrection! The Pontifical Mission Societies are the Pope’s chief representatives in supporting the Church in the Missions. This is the greatest of all apostolates … the direct propagation of our faith to the poor and the needy. We feel a new energy, great zeal in our hope to maximize the gifts of the faithful in America. When we all follow the Lenten expectation to “give up” something, we can provide for the mission Church from Africa to Asia, from Oceania to Latin America.

One of the things that is so special in this work, quite frankly, is the almost limitless potential that we have as Americans to do good. We can greatly help the Church in the developing world right now, as a Lenten offering. We pray, we give... we receive a satisfaction that comes from God Himself.

It is now Lent. The seriousness of the season requires action by all Christians. Prayer and sacrifice are what come to mind. Would you please consider a gift for the missions so that you may receive peace! Would you pardon someone’s offenses, that Almighty God may pardon yours? Would you offer a prayer for the needy in the missions so that they and you, by the power of Christ’s Cross, may one day be born to eternal life!

“Give it up for Lent,” they say. Yes, and give it to God by way of His most needy. Such charity, such goodness literally goes to the ends of the earth. May the Lord bless you and your loved ones with a peaceful and beautiful spring season. God Bless.

Many churches cancel Masses

WASHINGTON (CNS) – In an effort to stem the pandemic of COVID-19, bishops’ conferences and dioceses around the world began suspending public Masses.

The measures were designed to “flatten the curve,” an effort to ease the burden on the health care system so treatment is available. In Italy, the health care system in some areas of the north was overwhelmed within three weeks.

By midday March 13, the World Health Organization reported more than 132,000 cases in 123 countries; nearly 5,000 people had died.

On March 12, the bishops of Quebec canceled all weekend Masses across the province until further notice. The step was taken in response to measures announced by the Quebec government to combat the spread of the coronavirus, including limiting public assemblies to fewer than 250 people.

The bishops said they wanted to “contribute to this joint public health effort and act in solidarity with the authorities.”

“Given the impossibility, in many places, of managing the limit of 250 people gathered, also considering that many of our parishioners are over the age of 65 and are therefore more at risk of contracting the virus,” all weekend Masses were canceled, said a statement from the Quebec Catholic bishops.

Churches were to remain open for small gatherings and for personal visits, but parishioners were encouraged to view Mass on TV, pray at home and read Scripture.

Several archdioceses and dioceses in the United States – including Seattle, Chicago and Washington – made similar closures. Along with the suspension of Masses came a dispensation of the Sunday obligation. Some dioceses continued to offer Masses, but encouraged anyone with a compromised immune system, especially the elderly, to remain home.
