Pope reiterates Church teaching on marriage

Pope Francis on Friday reiterated the Church’s perennial teaching on marriage as a lifelong union between a man and a woman.

“Today I would like to share with you some reflections on marriage, because there is a strong need in the Church and in the world to rediscover the meaning and value of the conjugal union between a man and a woman on which the family is founded,” the pope said Jan. 27 in the Vatican’s apostolic palace.

“Indeed,” he added, “a certainly not minor aspect of the crisis affecting so many families is the practical ignorance, personal and collective, about marriage.”

Pope Francis spoke about marriage during a meeting with the lawyers, auditors, and collaborators of the Tribunal of the Roman Rota for the inauguration of the judicial year.

The Roman Rota is one of three courts within the Holy See and is akin to a court of appeals or court of “last instance.” It is also where marriage nullity cases are judged.

Quoting from his 2013 apostolic exhortation Evangelii gaudium, Pope Francis underlined that marriage “is a reality with its own precise essence, not ‘a mere form of affective gratification that can be constituted in any way and modified according to each person’s sensitivity.’”

One may ask, he said, how it is possible for men and women, with all the limitations and fragility of human beings, to commit to “a union that is faithful and forever and from which a new family is born?”

Confronted with this question, and with the crises facing many families today, the Church needs to renew awareness in the gift of grace received through a sacramental marriage, he said.

The gift received in the sacrament of matrimony, he said, is “an irrevocable gift, a source of grace which we can always count on.”

Pope Francis also emphasized, quoting the constitution Gaudium et spes, that “God himself is the author of marriage.”

“And this can be understood to refer to every single conjugal union,” he added.

The pope told the tribunal that the Church needs “to rediscover the permanent reality of marriage as a bond.”
Meeting them where they are

There were only a few of us, and we ranged in ages from 15 to 18. If my memory serves me, we met for a couple of hours each week for around six to eight weeks. For most of my youth, my home parish had a priest from a religious order, a Dominican. He was an experienced teacher. During those few weeks, we met with him and discussed portions of St. Thomas Aquinas’ Summa Theologica, a rather heavy document (both figuratively and literally – it’s generally separated into several books) referred to by one Catholic publishing company as Aquinas’ “brilliant synthesis of Christian thought.”

That Dominican priest talked to us – then a bunch of teenagers – like we were capable of understanding that heavy material. My friends and I struggled at first, but we eventually got it. We made it through only a section or two of the Summa in the six to eight weeks, but we understood those sections fairly well. For a period of my life, I used that short course as an example when I would talk about what I considered good religious education. As I’ve aged, though, and especially as I became the mother of a teenager who sometimes struggles with abstract concepts, I became acutely aware that it was only a good course because it was targeted at the right audience – teens who could thrive in a traditional academic setting.

My son, a 15-year-old boy who is on the autism spectrum, probably would’ve struggled and felt lost in our lecture-based class. He learns well in other ways – through engaging stories, through activities, through repetition. Our Catholic schools get to know their students, providing them individualized and targeted instruction. Our Catholic schools support students, meeting them where they are academically, emotionally and spiritually and helping them grow in all three areas. Our Catholic schools support families. The schools offer events to help families create fun and community, and they connect families in need with available resources.

Support also comes up in another way. It’s critical that we support Catholic education. Enroll your child/grandchild in a Catholic School. Donate time or talent to a school. Pray for a school. Happy Catholic Schools Week!

Guiding us to sainthood

Last week, I got back to remembering and again investigating the documents of the Second Vatican Council. I continue to realize why our Catholic Church is strong and alive. The Second Vatican Council renewed our foundation. I find such a joy as I read again these important documents. I thank God for the Council; it had such a profound effect on me and my ministry as a priest.

Today, I plan to share with you again the powerful message of the Council’s Dogmatic Constitution on the Church (Lumen Gentium). The Council here reminds us just what we mean by Church and challenges us as Church to bring everyone to the holiness that Jesus meant for us all.

This document begins by reminding us that as Church, we are a people, the people of God. The Council fathers write this: “God has willed to make men and women holy and save them, not as individuals, but rather to make them into a people who might acknowledge him and serve him in holiness.”

Then the Council offers support and challenges the hierarchy of our Church – pope, bishops, priests and deacons of our Church. The Council reminds us that the hierarchy of the Church must remain strong in bringing the Lord’s love and peace and holiness to all the people of God.

In this regard, the Council re instituted the office of the permanent deacon. In every place in the world, men are invited to join in the work of the Church as an ordained deacon to assist pastors in the life of the parishes of our Church – assisting at liturgies, preaching the Word of the Lord, celebrating baptisms, weddings, funerals, joining in the ministry of bringing Christ’s holiness to all.

This Council spends much time in reminding us that holiness is what we are called to as the people of God. Jesus loved the Church. Jesus gave himself for the Church to sanctify all people. We believe that God sent the gift of the Holy Spirit to the people of the Church throughout all time. All in the Church – the hierarchy and all those cared for by the Church – are called to holiness.

Jesus spoke of holiness to each disciple without exception: “You, therefore, must be perfect, as your Heavenly Father is perfect.” Followers of Christ are made sons and daughters of God through the baptism of faith, making us all partakers of the divine nature, truly sanctified by the Lord. We are all called to live in the perfection of love. We believe God is love. He who abides in love abides in God, and God abides in him. God has poured his love into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, who gives us the necessary gift of charity by which we love God above all things and love our neighbor as ourselves.

So, as Church, we are called to live as a holy people. Each of us must willingly hear the Word of God and carry out his will with the way we live our lives – by being Church, by partaking of the sacraments, especially the Eucharist, by applying ourselves to prayer, self-denial and service of others. Love is the bond of perfection and the fullness of the law of our Savior.

This document then summarizes the Church as the Pilgrim Church. The Church, to which we are called by our Savior, Jesus and in which by the grace of God we acquire holiness, will receive its perfection only in the glory of heaven when Jesus draws us to himself. The Church will guide us to our earthly goal of becoming a saint. With the Lord’s help, this goal will be a reality for us all. Why are we disciples of the Lord? To become saints.
Trinity celebrates Catholic Schools Week

Trinity Catholic School

MASSENA – One of the most exciting times of the school year is Catholic Schools Week (CSW)!

This year, Trinity Catholic School will celebrate CSW February 12-17. The week is packed with fun activities for the students and staff, including fun daily outfit suggestions.

Each year, Trinity kicks off CSW with a pancake breakfast with the community. This year, it will be held on February 12, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the school’s cafeteria. Not only is this a delicious way to kick off the week with our families and parish, it’s also an important fundraiser for our cafeteria.

During the week, Trinity have daily activities centered around themes:

  Loving our Faith and Families – Noon Mass with our families, and then the families are invited back to school to play games.
  Loving our Community – we’ll join together as a school community to make Valentine’s Day cards for people in the Massena community!
  Loving the Gifts that God Gave Us – Trinity will hold its annual Student Talent Show in the morning, with a community Spaghetti Dinner and student Share Fair in the evening.
  Loving our Teachers – In the morning the teachers will swap classrooms and see what it’s like to have a different class for a little bit, and then they get to enjoy the much-loved Faculty and Staff Appreciation luncheon hosted by the school’s amazing PTC (parent group).
  Loving our Students – We’ll watch a movie and enjoy popcorn, and perhaps enjoy some outdoor winter fun!

Pew! It’s a busy, but well-earned week of fun, and celebrating our Catholic school!

Please keep an eye on our social media for pictures of all the fun!

St. Bernard’s celebration began on Sunday

SARANAC LAKE – It’s a theme of celebration as St. Bernard’s School in Saranac Lake kicked off Catholic Schools Week on Sunday.

On Jan. 29, the school marked the theme “Celebrate your Parish,” opening the week with Mass at St. Bernard’s Church followed by a reception.

Throughout the week, in addition to themed days, St. Bernard’s students will participate in “Cereal Dominos.” As part of the event, students will bring in a box of cereal or two to donate. At the end of the week, the boxes of cereal will be used to create a domino path throughout the church. The cereal will then be donated to the Interfaith Food Pantry serving the local community.

While participating in the Cereal Dominos theme, classes at St. Bernard’s will compete in Penny Wars. Students can bring pennies to school for the week. The class with the highest value at the end of the week earns a dress-down day, and all funds will be donated to the local Human Society.

On Monday, Jan. 30, St. Bernard’s will “Celebrate your Community.” Students can participate in mismatch day, and community helpers will be visiting and/or classes will be taking field trips into the community.

On Tuesday, Jan. 31, “Celebrate your Students” is the theme. Students can celebrate pajama day, and teachers will serve students a breakfast of pancakes, sausage, and ham as well as fresh muffins. This year we will celebrate with a Disney theme.

This year we will celebrate the week of February 1. On Sunday, February 12, the Knights of Columbus and Ave Maria Circle will host a Pancake Breakfast which provides a delicious meal of pancakes, French toast, scrambled eggs, sausage and ham as well as fresh muffins.

The faculty and staff will show off their talents with a lip-sync contest featuring Disney songs! Thursday’s Rapunzel’s Bad Hair Day will feature crazy hair styles. We can’t wait to see what everyone comes up with. During the day, the students will take part in a scavenger hunt!

The Incredible Friday will feature a wide variety of Disney characters as the students and staff dress as their favorite Disney character. Our third and fourth graders will host a Fun Hour to help raise funds for a Catholic school in Ecuador. Their teacher, Mrs. Vickers heard about this school and discussed this project with her students. They decided to help this poor school by raising funds to fill a suitcase with school supplies that are greatly needed. What a great life lesson on serving others!

We also remember to thank those who do so much to support us...our parishioners, our alumni, our community businesses! We know that we are able to do all that we do because of the generosity of so many.

While we spend this week before our midwinter break having so much fun, we always remember that we are each a gift from God working together to love and share as Jesus did. We can learn life lessons and build positive relationships with others by sharing time together learning and playing! We pray all of our Catholic Schools will celebrate who they are and all they do! Happy Catholic Schools Week to everyone!

Augustinian Academy ties in Disney theme

By Mary Ann Margrey
Principal, Augustinian Academy

CARTHAGE – Catholic Schools Week is one of the favorite weeks for the students and staff. Not only do we celebrate all the things Augustinian Academy has to offer, but it provides so many opportunities for the whole school to gather for a little fun.

This year we will celebrate the week of February 12. On Sunday, February 12, the Knights of Columbus and Ave Maria Circle will host a Pancake Breakfast which provides a delicious meal of pancakes, French toast, scrambled eggs, sausage and ham as well as fresh muffins.

This year we will celebrate with a Disney theme.

On Mad Hatter Monday, students and staff will wear their favorite or craziest hat. That day will also include the annual faculty vs. seventh- and eighth-grade volleyball game. The teachers recall that they have the most wins so far, but the seventh and eighth graders are confident they can chalk up the win!

Everyone will wear their pajamas on Sleeping Beauty Tuesday. The seventh and eighth graders will also be reading to the younger students and helping with a craft for Valentine’s Day!

Wednesday brings Goofy’s Goofiest Day with wacky outfit day.

The faculty and staff will show off their talents with a lip-sync contest featuring Disney songs!

Thursday’s Rapunzel’s Bad Hair Day will feature crazy hair styles. We can’t wait to see what everyone comes up with. During the day, the students will take part in a scavenger hunt!

World Day of Prayer for Consecrated Life

By Sister Mary Eamon Lyng, SSJ
Diocesan Vocations Coordinator

“Consecrated life is a living encounter with the Lord in his people. It is a call to the faithful obedience of daily life and to the unexpected surprises from the Spirit. It is a vision of what we need to embrace in order to experience joy: Jesus.” – Pope Francis

On the Feast of the Presentation of Jesus in the Temple, February 2, the Gospel reading (Luke 2:22-38) tells us that Mary and Joseph were being faithful to the Mosaic Law (Exodus 13:2, 12) of consecrating Jesus, that is, offering Him to the Lord. In the spirit of their own poverty, Mary and Joseph offered a pair of turtledoves according to the dictates of the Law. Upon entering the Temple, they met Simeon and Anna who had long awaited the coming of the Messiah. The Holy Spirit had revealed to Simeon that "he would not see death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord” (Luke 2:26).

With open arms, Simeon reached out to hold the Child Jesus and praised and blessed God that his eyes had seen the salvation promised long ago. How did Simeon recognize this babe in arms as the One who is to come? Luke tells us that "the Holy Spirit was upon him” (Luke 2:25).

On this special day, the Church celebrates the World Day of Consecrated Life, specifically religious women and men who radically offer and consecrate their lives of poverty, chastity and obedience to God to carry forward the charism of their religious communities of proclaiming the Gospel to the world. The Church also celebrates consecrated virgins who dedicate their lives for the world.

What moved these women and men to answer the call to consecrated life? What moves a young woman and man to consider consecrated life today? It is the movement of the Holy Spirit within the heart of each person.

Simeon was “moved by the Holy Spirit” to know that when he saw Mary and Joseph bring the Child to the Temple this was the Christ, the Savior of the world. It is in the silence of deep prayer, leaning and listening to the heartbeat of God’s immense love that Simeon knew Who was before him. He was in the Temple every day, listening, praying and waiting. Luke tells us that it had been revealed to him that he would not see death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. The Holy Spirit cleared the way for Simeon to pray the “Nunc Dimittis,” a prayer recited at Night Prayer of the Divine Office.

Are our young people moved by the power of the Holy Spirit to radically offer their lives to God?

There are young women and men discerning the next step in their lives and looking for a deeper way of living their lives, to make a difference, to help the poor, the immigrants, migrants, homeless, uneducated, etc. As a consecrated religious, I need to examine my own interior movements and motivations so that the Holy Spirit will bring about a renewal of consecrated life.

What do our eyes see? Do our eyes see a longing for the sacred? A longing for God? A longing to bring hope to a world that is losing hope? A longing for a brighter future? The Lord continues to give signs that invite men and women to consider a vocation to the consecrated life.

As Simeon opened his arms and took the Child Jesus into his arms, he spoke words of blessing, praise and wonder of the joy of holding the Savior of the world. God yearns and thirsts for love. Are our arms open to the movement of the Holy Spirit? Are our hearts open to the movement of the Holy Spirit to hear the voice that calls, “Follow Me”? The question may be asked, “Where do you live, Lord?” (John 1:38) And Jesus says, “Come and See!” (John 1:39).

Can we take Jesus in our arms, hold Him, encounter Him with love and joy, and allow the Holy Spirit to move us, guide us, lead us into the greatest adventure of our lives?

The Diocese of Ogdensburg is blessed with the dedication and service of women and men religious who serve the people of the North Country. It is with deep gratitude that their spirit of their love for God and His people that their special charism continues to bear fruit. Let us pray for more vocations to the consecrated life.

What is World Day of Prayer for Consecrated Life?

In 1997, Pope Saint John Paul II instituted a day of prayer for women and men in consecrated life. This celebration is attached to the Feast of the Presentation of the Lord on February 2nd. This Feast is also known as Candlemas Day; the day on which candles are blessed symbolizing Christ who is the light of the world. So too, those in consecrated life are called to reflect the light of Jesus Christ to all peoples. The celebration of World Day for Consecrated Life is transferred to the following Sunday in order to highlight the gift of consecrated persons for the whole Church. – USCCB

Mass of Christian Burial celebrated for Sister Kathleen Mary DeBoalt

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated for Sister Kathleen Mary DeBoalt, a Sister of St. Joseph, on January 24, 2023, at the Sisters of St. Joseph Motherhouse. Bishop Terry R. LaValley was the celebrant, and Father John M. “Mickey” Demo was the homilist. Sister Kathleen Mary DeBoalt died January 18, 2023, at the St. Joseph’s Hospital in Syracuse at the age of 72.

She was born February 9, 1950, in Syracuse, the daughter of Francis DeBoalt and Mary (Pizio) DeBoalt.

Sister Kathleen Mary graduated from North Syracuse High School in 1968. She continued her studies at SUNY Oswego, earning a Bachelor of Science degree in 1972. She later continued graduate studies at Nazareth College in Rochester earning a Masters of Science Degree.

Upon completing her first degree and receiving her New York State certification, she taught kindergarten at Harrisville Central School until 1981.

She entered the Sisters of St. Joseph in Watertown on September 7, 1981. She made her First Profession of Vows on February 24, 1985, and her Final Profession on August 18, 1990. Father Thomas Robillard was the celebrant for both professions.

Sister Kathleen was a primary teacher throughout her long teaching ministry. She retired from the classroom in June, 2022, but she continued to work part time at IHC Elementary in the library and Faith Formation program.

Throughout those many years, she taught at Our Lady of the Sacred Heart School, Watertown, St. James School, Gouverneur, St. Augustine’s School, Peru, and in her last years at Immaculate Heart Elementary in Watertown.

In addition to her teaching ministry, she served as director of the Sisters of St. Joseph Associate Program and was a member of the Sisters of St. Joseph Leadership Team.

Sister Kathleen Mary DeBoalt is survived by her brothers John (Charlotte) of Lake Boneparte, New York, and Thomas (Debbie) of Granby, Colorado. She is also survived by her nieces Megan Rajkovick and Jessica Brevik, and her nephews Dan DeBoalt and Phillip DeBoalt, as well as six grandchildren and greatgrandnephews.

She is predeceased by her parents Francis and Mary DeBoalt.

Funeral arrangements were with Cummings Funeral Service, Inc. Memorial contributions may be made to the Sisters of St. Joseph, 1425 Washington St., Watertown, NY 13601.

Online condolences to her family may be posted at www.cumingsfuneral.com.

Pope Francis decries German Synodal Way

VATICAN CITY (CNA) — In an interview published Jan. 25, Pope Francis decried the German Synodal Way as elitist, unhelpful, and running the risk of bringing ideological harm to Church processes. “The German experience does not help,” the pontiff told Associated Press when asked about the controversial process, explaining that dialogue should involve “all the people of God.” The 86-year-old pontiff contrasted the German event, which is not a synod, with the universal Church’s recently extended Synod on Synodality. Francis said on Tuesday that the global synod’s aim was to “help this more elitist (German) path so that it does not end badly in some way, but so is also integrated into the Church.” While Pope Francis did not delve into details of the demands made in Germany, he plainly described the Synodal Way as perilous. “Here the danger that something very, very ideological trickles in. When ideology gets involved in church processes, the Holy Spirit goes home, because ideology undermines the Holy Spirit,” he said in the wide-ranging interview that also included remarks about the Church’s stance on homosexuality, the loss of Pope Emeritus Benedict XVI — and his health. Since its launch by Cardinal Reinhard Marx in 2019, the German Synodal Way has courted controversy. Participants have voted in favor of draft documents calling for the priestly ordination of women, same-sex blessings, and changes to Church teaching on homosexual acts, prompting accusations of heresy and fears of schism. Concerns have been publicly raised by Church leaders from Poland, the Nordic countries, and around the world.

Alabama governor adds protection to religious freedom

MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA (CNA) — Alabama Gov. Kay Ivey, a Republican, signed an executive order Friday to protect religious freedom in the state. The executive order ensures the enforcement of the Alabama Religious Freedom Amendment. Passed by the state Legislature in 1998, the amendment to the state constitution guarantees the freedom from government coercion in violation of one’s religion to all individuals and businesses holding state licenses as well as all state contractors, employees, and grant and benefits recipients. “As I have promised, under my watch, our state government will always reflect the values of our people,” Ivey, who has served as governor since 2017, said. “Religious freedom is the cornerstone of the American way of life, and as governor, I will always protect the rights of Alabamians and ensure they are free to exercise their beliefs as provided in the Constitution.”

Catholic in the Diocese of Birmingham, which covers central and northern Alabama, are blessed to live and work in this state with such strong affirmation of religious freedom, ” Carson told CNA. Religious Liberty in the States, a database on freedom of religion in the U.S. maintained by the Center for Religion, Culture, and Democracy, ranked Alabama as the 12th best for religious freedom in 2022.

Baker loses appeal over transgender birthday cake

By Kevin J. Jones
Catholic News Agency

A Colorado appellate court has ruled against a baker who appeared in court once again for declining to make a cake that contradicts his religious beliefs.

While Jack Phillips’ successful U.S. Supreme Court case concerned his refusal to make a same-sex wedding cake, he now faces a civil lawsuit for declining to make a cake celebrating a purported gender transition of a transgender-identifying attorney.

In a Thursday decision, a Colorado Court of Appeals three-judge panel sided with Autumn Scardina, a man who identifies as a transgender woman. Scardina said Phillips and his Lakewood, Colorado, Masterpiece Cakeshop discriminated when he declined to bake a pink cake with blue frosting to celebrate Scardina’s purported gender change.

Phillips has ruled out making various kinds of cakes he says would violate his Christian religious beliefs. He is represented by the Alliance Defending Freedom legal group, which will appeal the case to the Colorado Supreme Court.

“Free speech is for everyone. No one should be forced to express a message that violates their core beliefs,” Jake Warner, Alliance Defending Freedom senior counsel, said Jan. 26.

“Over a decade ago, Colorado officials began targeting Jack, misusing state law to force him to say things he does not believe," Warner said. “Then an activist attorney continued that crusade. This cruelty must stop. One need not agree with Jack’s views to agree that all Americans should be free to say what they believe, even if the government disagrees with those beliefs.”

Phillips’ attorneys had appealed a 2021 trial court’s judgment in favor of Scardina, ruling that Phillips and his bakery violated state anti-discrimination law.

The Jan. 26 appellate court decision, written by Judge Thomas J. Schutz, sided with Scardina’s claim to have been denied service because of a transgender identity, in violation of the right to be free from discrimination in a place of public accommodation.

Schutz said the defendants “contend their decision not to make a cake for Scardina was based on their firm and sincere religious beliefs and the right to be free from compelled speech that would violate those beliefs.”

However, Schutz rejected the argument that the Colorado law compelled speech in this case.

“It was only after Scardina disclosed that she was transgender and intended to use the cake to celebrate both her birthday and her transition that Masterpiece and Phillips refused to provide the cake.”

According to the ruling, Scardina’s cake request differed from previous cake requests, which required an explicit message.

“We conclude that creating a pink cake with blue frosting is not inherently expressive and any message or symbolism it provides to an observer would not be attributed to the baker,” said the ruling, which concluded the state law therefore does not compel speech.

The use of the plaintiff’s transgender pronouns was also an issue in the appeal. Schutz rejected arguments that the trial court showed hostility toward the religious beliefs of Phillips and his wife, Debra.

“The trial court initially indicated it would not force parties in the case to use pronouns they found offensive,” the court’s decision continued. “However, the court noted that Ms. Phillips’ decision to avoid using feminine pronouns when referring to Ms. Scardina was relevant to the credibility of her suggestion that Scardina’s transgender status was unrelated to the decision not to make the requested cake.”

“We do not discern any suggestion of hostility in the court’s statements,” the ruling said.

Phillips has been involved in legal trouble for more than a decade in cases that implicate free speech and the place of Christians in public life as changes to anti-discrimination laws provide more avenues for lawsuits against them.

NEIGHBORING DIOCESES
Look to those looking for light

One of the great concerns of Pope Francis since his election is that of hospitality, openness to other Christians, working for real church unity. The theme of the Year of Mercy, the Year of the World, the Year of the Faithful, is “to go out” to help others, to witness, to bring hope, to help us all to become “the light of the world.”

But it was just Christmas

The words had barely been uttered before I noticed my daughter’s eyes move immediately to my son-in-law and I could almost read the telepathic communication between them. “Christmas present.”

It turns out, that was exactly what they were thinking so I guess we will have to “make-do” with our old-fashioned (but working, I might add) thermometer for roughly eleven months until Christmas comes around on the calendar again.

We are in the process of de-Christmasizing our home. With luck, we will have all the Christmas decorations stored away by Ash Wednesday. The outside lights, which never really worked to my satisfaction, will be the last to come down. Certainly, by Easter. Maybe! I’ll commit to figuring out why one string did not light, or replace it, before next Christmas season. I did not say when I’ll figure that out, just that I am committed to do it.

Meanwhile, we have been working on the Lent and Holy Week schedule. That’s the way things work in a parish. We might be celebrating the Octave of Christmas, but pastors and others responsible for appointments in church are already thinking about un-decorating after we celebrate the Baptism of the Lord and putting up the Ordinary Time banners and things.

Deacon Kevin Mastellon

Do we have a sufficient supply of ashes? Will we cover all the statues Holy Week this year? In a multi-site parish (which most of us are now) where will stations of the cross be held and on what days?

Did we arrange for a Lenten retreat this year? When is it? Where will the Holy Week celebrations take place? How many candidates and catechumens will we be taking to the Rite of Election at the Cathedral, and how many will receive sacraments at the Easter Vigil?

And the list goes on. Five more things occurred to me as I wrote the preceding sentence.

We will wait patiently for next year’s surprise gift of a new digital meat thermometer from our family. Meanwhile, we will focus on the moment on more immediate concerns.

Did anyone order a new Easter Candle?
Christian hope in Lunar New Year

After three years of closures and impediments due to the pandemic, endless crowds of people travel through China to spend the days of the Chinese New Year with their loved ones.

For days, the streets of all Chinese cities have been invaded by decorations, lanterns and colored lights. Red festoons with good wishes are hung on the doors of the houses. New Year’s Eve dinners, fireworks, red envelopes with money inside to be donated to young of the houses. New Year’s Eve dinners, fireworks, red festoons with good wishes are hung on the doors.

Chinese New Year 2023 marks the beginning of the Year of the Rabbit, a lucky, meek and kind animal, according to the Chinese horoscope. People wish each other that the rabbit “brings good luck,” that the coming year is one of peace and serenity. And the Catholic Church in China also embraces the sentiments, the sorrows and the expectations of the people, in this festive time, and lives them in the light of faith, hope and charity, gifts that Christ can kindle in the heart of every Christian.

Masses are celebrated on the vigil and thanksgiving liturgies to the Lord on New Year’s Day in parishes. The people of God once again fill churches and chapels, as in normal times in the solemnities of Christmas and Easter. The pastoral initiatives of the Catholic communities are also reconfigured around the festive season, which is an opportunity to dedicate special attention to the lonely, the elderly and those with difficulties.

In the diocese of Zhengzhou, Henan province, the Charity Group has created small teams of people from different parishes who travel to the most isolated villages and towns in the countryside to visit families in need and bring them spiritual and material help. Priests and lay people from Xingtai, Hebei Province, also visit the elderly, sick and lonely in Zhangzhuang Village and neighboring villages on these days. They administer sacraments, bring blessings, and distribute charity “red envelopes” to help everyone experience a peaceful Chinese New Year.

Small examples of works of mercy at the time of the New Year celebration show in a luminous way how the simplest gestures of Christian charity embrace with a comforting selective affinity the traditional Chinese virtues, those that move the respect, love and support for the elderly.

Article from FIDES missionary news service of the Pontifical Mission Societies.
WATERTOWN – Immaculate Heart Central kicked off a week of fun, service and celebrations on Sunday as the school celebrates Catholic School Week Jan. 29 to Feb. 4.

Sunday, IHC held a schoolwide Pancake Breakfast at the school from 9 to 11 a.m. The breakfast was free for all IHC families and alumni.

On Monday, Jan. 30, elementary students will have a dress-down day, and an Art Extravaganza will be held in grades JK4, kindergarten, one and two. At the junior/senior high, students can wear sports shirts, the school’s annual Souper Bowl food drive will begin, and the “Name the teacher game” begins.

Tuesday, Jan. 31, will also be a dress-down day in the elementary, and students in grades JK5, third, fourth and fifth will host an Art Extravaganza. Also that day, junior/senior high students will have Wacky Uniform Day, an ice cream sundae bar and student raffles.

Students throughout the school will wear their uniforms on Wednesday, Feb. 1, as they attend Mass and focus on service to others. This year’s senior class will be helping elementary students assemble homeless kits.

It’s back to relaxed dress on Thursday, Feb. 2, as elementary students have pajama day, and junior/senior high students have a mismatch dress-down day. Older students will also create thank you cards for the school’s faculty and staff.

On Friday, students across the school will have blue and white dress down day in honor of the school’s colors, and elementary students will compete in Spirit Day Relay Races. At the junior/senior high, the annual seniors vs. faculty volleyball game will be held, and Name the Teacher prizes will be awarded.
