Eucharistic Revival in New York

The eight Catholic dioceses of New York State are sponsoring an historic statewide Eucharistic Congress, which will be held at Our Lady of Martyrs Shrine in Auriesville from October 20-22. The Eucharistic Congress is part of a national effort of the Catholic Church to reinvigorate devotion to the Eucharist. This National Eucharistic Revival aims to restore understanding and fidelity to the great mystery of Jesus really and truly present in the Eucharist and to encourage all Catholics to make the Eucharist the source and summit of their faith.

Pope: Christian witness requires consistency

By Courtney Mares
Catholic News Agency

To effectively witness to the Gospel, Christians need to be consistent in what they believe, how they live, and what they preach, Pope Francis said Wednesday.

“The witness of an authentically Christian life involves a journey to holiness," Pope Francis said on March 22.

Speaking at his weekly audience in St. Peter’s Square, the pope underlined that Christian witness must include “professed faith” of what the Church teaches that transforms both one’s relationships and “the values that determine our choices.”

“Witness, therefore, cannot be separated from consistency between what one believes, what one proclaims, and how one lives,” he said. “A person is credible if there is harmony between what he believes and how he lives. Many Christians only say they believe, but live something else ... and this is hypocrisy.”

The pope asked the crowd to reflect on three questions first posed by Paul VI in his apostolic exhortation on evangelization in the modern world, Evangelii Nuntiandi: “Do you believe what you are proclaiming? Do you live what you believe? Do you preach what you live?”

Pope Francis emphasized that holiness is “not reserved for a few” but is “a gift from God that demands to be received and made to bear fruit for ourselves and for others.”

“Paul VI teaches that the zeal for evangelization springs from holiness, springs from a heart that is full of God,” he said. “Nourished by prayer and above all by love for the Eucharist, evangelization, in turn, increases holiness in those who carry it out.”

Because of the importance of bearing witness to the Gospel, Pope Francis said it is necessary for the Church to constantly be “evangelizing herself.”

“Indeed, ‘she needs to listen unceasingly to what she must believe, to her reasons for hoping, to the new commandment of love. She is the people of God immersed in the world, and often tempted by idols ... and she always needs to hear the proclamation of the mighty works of God ... this means that she has a constant need of being evangelized if she wishes to retain freshness, vigor, and strength in order to proclaim the Gospel,’” he said.
It's making headlines

It wasn't what I was expecting. I had to look twice.

At the NCC office, we get copies of lots of other diocesan religious order and generally Catholic publications. It was a headline in one of those publications that caught my attention. "Jesus Likes You!"

I've heard before that Jesus loves me. I've heard before that Jesus loves each of us as individuals. I've heard before that Jesus loves humanity. I'd never heard that Jesus likes me.

The idea of Jesus liking me seemed overwhelming, but I loved the headline! It was kind of headline that makes someone say, "I need to know more about that," likely for the very same reasons it stood out to me.

I cut the headline out of the newspaper, and taped it to a wall in my office, the wall directly behind my computer monitor. I never read the story. I was afraid the story wouldn't live up to the headline.

That newspaper clipping has been on my wall for a few months. When I look up from my computer, one of the first things I see is "Jesus Likes You!"

I still don't know the intention of that original article, but that headline has made me think a lot about Jesus liking me.

There are people in my life I love but with whom I don't want to spend long periods of time. Sometimes I love them, but I don't like them.

Jesus will talk to us about anything.

We're blessed to have a God who loves us unconditionally and likes us unconditionally. He even likes the parts of our personalities we try to give to Him to change.

"Jesus Likes You.

And that catchy headline gave me more than I expected.

Considering the Chrism Mass

I am certain that my involvement in the various Masses and services of Holy Week when I was in high school had a profound influence on my decision to become a priest of the Catholic Church. This year, it will soon be time for the Chrism Mass, as we begin the Holy Week liturgy. The Chrism Mass is a very special time for me. As you remember, during the Chrism Mass, Bishop LaValley consecrates the holy oils that will be used in the celebration of the Church's sacraments in the parishes of our diocese. All the priests of the diocese gather with Bishop LaValley at St. Mary's Cathedral, for the Chrism Mass.

Here in our diocese, the Chrism Mass is celebrated the week before Holy Week. The Chrism Mass is meant to be celebrated on the morning of Holy Thursday. A few years ago, it was decided to schedule the Chrism Mass the week before Holy Week to make it more convenient for our priests and deacons to come to the Cathedral.

So, during the Chrism Mass, Bishop LaValley consecrates three sacred oils. First, there is the Oil of Chrism which is used in the celebration of the Sacraments of Baptism and Confirmation. In addition, the Oil of Chrism is used in the ordination of a priest. At a very powerful moment in the ordination of a priest, the bishop consecrates the hands of the new priest with this Chrism. The bishop covers the new priest's hands with the oil, for this priest's hands will hold the Eucharistic bread and the chalice of wine as they are consecrated to the Body and Blood of Jesus. Each year, I remember the peace I experienced when my hands were covered with the Chrism at my ordination.

Then the Oil of the Sick is consecrated. This is the oil that is used by each priest in his own parish when they celebrate the sacrament of the anointing of the sick with those who are close to death. In addition, this oil is also used to bless and anoint those suffering from any illness, facing surgery, suffering addictions, challenged by advanced age or suffering with mental difficulties.

And then the Oil of Catechumens is consecrated. This oil is used in the celebration of the sacrament of baptism. For all of us, Catholics, baptism is the most important sacrament we will ever receive. In baptism, those baptized as infants are welcomed into the family of our Catholic Church and called to live in the Holy Spirit as disciples of Our Lord Jesus. For those who receive baptism as adults, they will celebrate the making of a powerful decision to accept Jesus as their Lord and Savior. They are called to make the Lord a part of everything they will ever do. They will live each day as disciples of Jesus.

I want to call to your attention another purpose of the Chrism Mass. Each priest will take some of these oils, blessed and consecrated by our bishop from the Cathedral Church, back to their parish to be used for the celebration of the sacraments in their parish during the coming year. The symbol is the unity of the parish with the bishop of the diocese; each pastor acts in the spirit of the bishop.

At the Chrism Mass each year, all the priests of the diocese, gathered together, use this opportunity to make a public pledge of their resolve to be united in spirit with their bishop. They promise their obedience to their bishop. It is truly a sacred moment for us, priests. It's an opportunity to renew our resolve to be faithful as priests of the Catholic Church and faithful to our bishop.

"Are you, resolved to be faithful stewards of the mysteries of God in the Holy Eucharist and the other liturgical rites and to discharge faithfully the sacred office of teaching, following Christ, the Head and Shepherd, not seeking any personal gain, but moved only by zeal for souls?"

St. Mary’s School, Ticonderoga, to close

By Darcy Fargo
Editor

Facing a declining population in the area and a corresponding declining enrollment, St. Mary’s School in Ticonderoga will close at the end of the school year.

“It’s certainly sad and disappointing,” said Father Christopher J. Looby, pastor of St. Mary’s Church in Ticonderoga and Our Lady of Lourdes Church in Schroon Lake. “I don’t think it’s unexpected, though. I think a lot of people have seen it coming.”

The school, like schools around the North Country, is facing declining enrollment.

“We finished last year with 71 students,” Father Looby said. “This year, we have 61. Losing 10 each year has been the trend.”

“Overall, the population in the North Country is declining. Specifically, the number of school-aged children in public school districts in communities where we have schools are declining,” added diocesan Superintendent of Schools Sister Ellen Rose Coughlin, a Sister of St. Joseph. This decline in the school-age population has an effect on the enrollment in our schools.

Father Looby said the decision to close the school was made only after consultation with school and parish councils and an extensive amount of prayer by all involved, including the school’s Education Council, and the parish Finance Council and Pastoral Council.

“There were people who told me, ‘I wish I had a million dollars to give you to keep the school open for years,’” Father Looby said. “It really wasn’t about money. We could have been a school with millions of dollars in endowments and with no trouble recruiting and paying top salaries to teachers, but without students, it’s not a school.”

St. Mary’s school opened in 1959.

“As was typical of those times, it opened with grades one through four,” said Sister Ellen Rose. “Each year thereafter, they added a grade. It continued in that manner until the school included grade eight. The first eighth-grade graduation was in 1963.” The school hit its peak enrollment of 321 students the next year. Within eight years, the school had 220 students. Enrollment numbers continued to decline from there.

Despite shrinking enrollment, the school has been a significant part of the Ticonderoga community.

“In 2014, there was a significant fire at the school,” said Sister Ellen Rose. “The fire was on a Friday night. I remember being there Saturday morning. When I arrived, around 10 o’clock, there was no question as to whether or not they would rebuild. There was never any question. The school received tremendous local support. It wasn’t just the parish or the school community; it was the community at large. It wasn’t just the parochial school; it was recognized as part of the community and as important to them.”

The school is a place full of joy and the love of Christ, said both the pastor and the superintendent.

“There’s a lot of life and joy in there,” said Father Looby. “It’s been a blessing to have a ministry like this for so many years.”

“There’s something about walking into that school,” said Sister Ellen Rose. “It’s not just the crucifix on the wall or the statues of Mary. The school just speaks the Catholic faith. There’s a true commitment to providing a very fine academic education that is very much integrated by a Catholic worldview.”

Father Looby said he hopes the building continues to contain that life and faith moving forward.

“There’s a significant need for daycare here in Ticonderoga,” he said. “I’ve been approached by different entities that would like to start a daycare program here in the school. I feel like that would honor the legacy of what the school stands for – it was built to serve the needs of parents and families.”

The school will also be used by the parish as a parish center.

“We’ll have parish events and our Christian Formation programs there,” Father Looby said. “When a school closes and the parish loses that way of connecting with children, the parish has to pick that up in a very strong way. We’re hoping to build up our Christian Formation program for both youth and adults. We want that building to continue to be a source of community building. This is certainly like a death in the family for us. But out of death, we believe there is new life, and I truly believe new life will come out of this. It’s going to take time, work, patience and prayer, but I truly believe we can build something beautiful there.”

Extraordinary things can happen when we Gather at the Table.

The NCC shares stories of individuals, couples and families who love the Lord and do great things in His service here in the North Country. The newspaper shares information about events and happenings around the diocese and helps us learn about opportunities to further connect and grow in faith and love of the Lord. Through the North Country Catholic, Bishop LaValley communicates with Catholics around the diocese as we move forward together in this journey of faith, guided by the One we encounter at the Sacred Table, Jesus Christ.

Funeral Mass celebrated for Sister M. Carolyn Madden

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated on March 22 for Sister M. Carolyn Madden, RSM.

Sister Carolyn, a Sister of Mercy, died on March 15, 2023.

Born in Saranac Lake on Oct. 28, 1928, she was the daughter of Francis and Lillian (Colburn) Madden. She held a bachelor's degree in education from Fordham University and a master's in guidance and counseling from SUNY Plattsburgh.

Sister Carolyn taught in schools in Plattsburgh, Rouses Point, Saranac Lake, Lake Placid and New York City. In addition, she was principal of schools in Lake Placid, Plattsburgh and Tarrytown.

Many will remember Sister Carolyn as director of arts in education in Saranac Lake.

In retirement, Sister Carolyn served as a volunteer at Uihlein Mercy Center, High Peaks Hospice and Adirondack Medical Center. She also served on the Board of Directors at Mercy Care for the Adirondacks.

Sister Carolyn is survived by her sisters Helen, Betty and Eileen. Among the many honors she received in her lifetime was a designation as one of the “Remarkable Women of the Adirondacks.”

Burial will be in St. Bernard’s Cemetery in Saranac Lake in the spring.

Family and friends wishing to remember Sister Carolyn are asked to make memorial contributions to a local charity.

NY Eucharistic Congress planned for October

The eight Catholic dioceses of New York State are sponsoring an historic statewide Eucharistic Congress, which will be held at Our Lady of Martyrs Shrine in Auriesville, New York from October 20-22, 2023.

The Eucharistic Congress is taking place as part of a national effort of the Catholic Church to reinvigorate devotion to the Eucharist on a national level. This National Eucharistic Revival, sponsored by the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, aims to restore understanding and fidelity to the great mystery of Jesus really and truly present in the Eucharist and to encourage all Catholics to make the Eucharist the source and summit of their faith.

The bishops of New York State have launched an easy to use website, https://nyseucharistic-congress.org/, to provide comprehensive information about the Eucharistic Congress and allow people to register.

Bishop Edward Scharfenberger, Bishop of the Diocese of Albany and one of the chairs of the New York State Eucharistic Congress, said, “We look forward to welcoming upwards of 10,000 people to the Eucharistic Congress, who want to draw closer to Jesus and share in this historic three day event. Our Congress will feature Mass on Saturday celebrated by Cardinal Timothy Dolan of New York, great speakers, opportunities for prayer and adoration before the Blessed Sacrament, and time to socialize. It will be a wonderful time to renew our faith in Jesus, and share that faith with others.”

The location of the Eucharistic Congress, the Shrine of Our Lady of Martyrs, is the site of the 17th century martyrdoms of Jesuit missionaries Saints Isaac Jogues, Rene Goupil and Jean Lalande and of the birth of the first native American saint, St. Kateri Tekakwitha. Jogues is famous for his love for the Mass and Tekakwitha for her love for Eucharistic adoration.

The Shrine's Coliseum, built in 1931 in response to the canonization of martyred Jesuit missionaries, is the largest Church building in the United States, holding 10,000.

The Congress' website will be updated regularly to provide information on the complete schedule of events, the speakers who will captivate and inspire the crowd, religious services that will take place, and nearby places to stay. It will also allow individuals, families, groups and parishes to register as well as give them the opportunity to volunteer during this historic three-day event.

MINISTRY OF LECTOR

Diocese of Ogdensburg seminarian Tyler Fitzgerald is installed into the Ministry of Lector at Saint Vincent Seminary in Latrobe, Pennsylvania. The Ministry of Lector is one of the formal steps required by the Church prior to one’s being ordained to the transitional diaconate and priesthood. The Ministry of Lector follows and is a formal recognition, on his part, of the relationship he is called to have with Sacred Scripture and his willingness to apply himself to its study and proclamation for the good of the Church.

Environmental Stewardship

Addressing homelessness

Among the most challenging of all the social ills today is finding affordable housing. While there have always been people and families who have struggled to acquire and retain suitable places in which to live, this segment of the population has become larger and more difficult to identify over the past several decades. For many of us who attend church regularly, we may overlook or fail to see that there are people who live out of vehicles or reside in buildings that lack proper heat, leak and/or contain inadequate plumbing.

The divide between the haves and have-nots — those with a safe and secure place to retreat into to relax and sleep, and those without — is growing. There are many individuals, young couples and families that are holding down meaningful jobs and yet are unable to afford the most basic of shelters in this region.

We need to take every opportunity to encourage our local and state leaders to address the problem of the lack of affordable housing and homelessness in our region. We need to contribute to programs that maintain temporary shelters within the area and support individuals that are without housing. Also, we need to provide financial help to people who are occasionally approached by those who that lack shelter. Finally, we need to pray regularly for all those involved in this challenging crisis.

Humans are a critical component of God’s tapestry of life. As the divide among groups of people grows, the harmony that we are supposed to generate to our surroundings dwindles and eventually drags down the rest of creation. It is imperative that everyone has a safe and warm place to call home if we expect life on Earth to flourish. (307)

DOJ sued for allegedly hiding attacks on churches

By Tyler Arnold
Catholic News Agency

A coalition of conservative organizations is taking legal action to obtain documents from the Department of Justice related to the surge in pro-abortion attacks on churches and pro-life pregnancy centers and a lack of prosecution from the agency.

Based on data compiled by CNA, there have been more than 100 attacks on churches and pro-life pregnancy centers since the May 2022 leak of the U.S. Supreme Court’s decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women’s Health, which overturned the abortion protections guaranteed in Roe v. Wade and Planned Parenthood v. Casey. The DOJ has failed to prosecute the perpetrators in nearly all of these attacks.

A lawsuit led by the Heritage Foundation and Advancing American Freedom accuses the DOJ of failing to provide them with documents requested through the Freedom of Information Act. The documents requested include all records and internal DOJ communication related to crimes against pro-life pregnancy centers and churches. The requests also include all communications between the DOJ and the Domestic Policy Council or the Executive Office of the President related to investigations of these crimes.

The lawsuit accuses the DOJ of failing to “promptly review agency records for the purpose of locating and collecting those records” and failing “to conduct searches for responsive records” required by FOIA and DOJ regulations. The lawsuit further claims that the coalition has “exhausted their administrative remedies” in attempting to obtain the documents. It further accuses the DOJ of wrongly denying their request for a waiver of the FOIA request fees.

“[Attorney General] Merrick Garland and his top officials at DOJ clearly hold us in contempt,” Mike Howell, the director of the Oversight Project, said in a statement provided to CNA. Howell is one of the people suing the DOJ for these documents.

“They refuse to prosecute those who violently attack pro-life organizations simply for existing and who attempt to coerce and intimidate Supreme Court justices into ruling the way the mob desires,” Howell continued. “Meanwhile, they send SWAT teams to the homes of pro-life Americans to arrest and prosecute them on trumped-up, phony charges.”

The lawsuit states that the groups have faced “irreparable harm” because “they are being denied information to which they are statutorily entitled.” The lawsuit asks the court to order the DOJ to conduct searches and provide the documents within 20 days or whatever date the court deems appropriate. It also asks the court to order the DOJ to provide the documents free of charge. “It is clear that President Biden’s politicized Department of Justice is fearful of igniting the wrath of the far left and abortion extremists,” J. Marc Wheat, who serves as general counsel for Advancing American Freedom, said in a statement provided to CNA. The organization is part of the coalition suing the DOJ.

“The American people have a right to know why those who burned and vandalized pregnancy centers have not been held accountable for their violence against traditional conservatives and pro-life groups,” Wheat added.

Despite the allegations in the lawsuit, the DOJ has claimed it has lived up to its legal obligations in how it has handled the FOIA requests. As mentioned in the lawsuit, the Federal Bureau of Investigation responded to the request but closed it because it did not “contain enough descriptive information to permit a search of our records.”

The DOJ has also stated that its Office of Information Policy informed the coalition that the searches could take longer than 30 days and provided contact information for a FOIA public liaison to assist with the request. The DOJ has further noted that the DOJ provided them with contact information for the Office of Government Information Services, which it has argued is consistent with the legal requirements for an agency if it cannot produce the documents within 30 days.

In January of this year, the U.S. House of Representatives passed a resolution that condemned the attacks on churches and pro-life pregnancy centers. However, the condemnation was mostly partisan: All 219 House Republicans voted in favor of the resolution, but only three Democrats voted for it.

Some Republican lawmakers have accused Garland and the DOJ of selective enforcement of the law, claiming that they aggressively enforce laws that protect abortion facilities but neglect to enforce laws that protect pro-life pregnancy centers.

What is a Foster Grandparent?

Foster Grandparents are role models, mentors, and friends to children with exceptional needs. The program provides a way for volunteers age 55 and over to stay active by serving children and youth in their communities. They are placed in a classroom setting with a child or children who are in need of emotional support, development of basic learning skills, friendship, companionship, encouragement, individual attention, and unhurried help. The program currently has 40 volunteers and serves more than 100 kids per year.

The Foster Grandparent Program is hosted by the Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Ogdensburg and supported by AmeriCorps Seniors, a federally funded agency responsible for building volunteer based programs for over 50 years and counting.

Volunteers Needed

Am I Qualified to be a Foster Grandparent?

All you need to join is the ability to give the kind of comfort and love that sets a child on the path toward a successful future. If you’re 55 or older and want to share your experience and compassion, you have what it takes to be a Foster Grandparent.

You’ll also receive a small bi-weekly, non-taxable stipend that cannot be held against any current benefits you may already have as well as past mileage for your travel. Additionally, you receive paid holidays, vacations, sick and personal leave.

Discover Pier Giorgio Frassati in new film

By Hannah Brockhaus
Catholic News Agency

That Blessed Pier Giorgio Frassati liked to go mountain climbing is not a surprise to those who know even a little about the 20th-century Italian youth’s story.

“To the Top,” a new docudrama produced in cooperation with EWTN, uses this aspect of the blessed’s life as a focal point to better understand both Frassati’s humanity and his holiness.

“Pier Giorgio Frassati was one of these strong and powerful figures that we could really present to the audience of EWTN,” the film’s writer and director, Daniela Gurrieri, told EWTN News during production in August 2022.

“The audience will discover many aspects that are normal aspects of a youth of his time,” she said. “He loved to go with his friends in the mountains, to play jokes among them, to laugh, to have a good time together. But at the center of everything was faith, was prayer, was love for God.”

Gurrieri, together with members of the all-Italian cast and a niece and nephew of Frassati, were present at the Italian premiere of the film at Farrese Cinema in Rome on March 18.

The English-language drama is 52 minutes long, followed by approximately 30 minutes of interviews explaining more about Frassati’s life.

The name “To the Top” was taken from a phrase written on a photo of Frassati mountain climbing, dated a few weeks before his sudden death from polio at the age of 24.

On the photo, Frassati wrote “Sunday, June 7, 1925,” and in Italian, “Verso l’alto,” which is sometimes also translated in English as “to the heights.”

The docudrama centers on a day Frassati spent mountain climbing with some of his friends. Scenes of an early morning Mass followed by taking a train to the mountains and the hike itself are interspersed with flashbacks to Frassati’s life as a student and the son of a prominent journalist and Italian diplomat.

Scenes show Frassati’s dedication to prayer and the Mass, his generosity to the poor, his opposition to fascism, his lack of concern for his own comfort — and how he always maintained a strong enthusiasm for life and joy in his Catholic faith.

Frassati, who died on July 4, 1925, was beatified by Pope John Paul II on May 20, 1990.

“To discover Pier Giorgio Frassati’s life and spirituality helped me be more prayerful, for example,” director Gurrieri said, “to trust more in God, to be more attentive also to the needs of the people, and also to be more kind. Pier Giorgio was very kind.”

Francesco Buttironi, a 27-year-old Italian actor, played Frassati.

He told EWTN News during production of the film in 2022 that it was challenging to play a Blessed.

“I think the tendency is to go to just abstract stuff,” he said. “Actually, we’re always talking about a human being … so we have a life, we have a body, we have a family, and so I try to stay with that human part.”

“And from the human part … I have been traveling into his soul, into his spiritual behavior and spiritual life,” Buttironi added.

The actor said one particularly touching moment for him during the making of the docudrama was when they were filming a scene of Frassati and his friends praying the rosary in the mountains.

“A member of the crew told Buttironi a personal story of something he had experienced once while reciting the rosary.

“And in that moment, in that specific moment while being in the mountains, in these wonderful places [where] we’ve been shooting in Abruzzo,” he said, “thinking about his experience touched me in some way.”

“It was really, really strong, and what was just another scene to shoot at some point became something really powerful, really strong that touched me even personally, I have to say.”

“To the Top” will premiere on EWTN on June 28 at 10 p.m. ET and reair on July 1 at 8 p.m. ET.

Pope Francis talks to Gen Z in Disney documentary

(CNA) – Disney will release a new documentary April 5 titled “The Pope Answers,” airing an extended conversation between Pope Francis and 10 members of Generation Z, discussing the Church’s stance on LGBTQ+ issues, abortion, clergy abuse, feminism, and more.

Shot in Rome and directed by Spanish filmmakers Jordi Evole and Marius Sanchez, the documentary is entirely in Spanish and will be released exclusively on Hulu in the U.S.

Evole’s production company Produciones del Barrio (Neighborhood Productions) is known for such documentaries as “Mr. Trump, Pardon the Interruption,” investigating the impact of Trump’s border policies on Hispanic communities, and “What You Give Me,” which explores the meaning of life with the late Spanish musician Pau Dones.

Evole is also known for hosting, directing, and producing the Spanish news show “Salvados” (“Saved,” 2008-2019), which sparked controversy for its criticism and satiric humor directed at the Catholic Church. The trailer for “The Pope Answers” shows an informal conversation between Francis and a small group of young people discussing some of the Church’s most controversial positions and some of society’s most difficult problems.
The shock of Palm Sunday

With Palm Sunday, we enter into the most sacred week of the year, celebrating the "Paschal Mystery" of the passion, death, and resurrection of Jesus. Latecomers to Mass this Sunday are usually embarrassed as they open the church door quietly, only to find themselves right in the middle of the action as an usher hurriedly thrusts a palm branch into their hands for the reading of the first of two Gospels. The Holy Week drama has begun, with the singing of "Hosannas" and, usually, "All Glory Laud and Honor."

The first reading from the 50th chapter of Isaiah speaks of the Suffering Servant with the well-polished tongue who patiently but boldly speaks the saving truth "to a weary world." How skillfully the Church shows us that, long ago, God foretold the depths of suffering His Son would endure, setting his face "like flint," not flinching, not turning back.

St. Paul’s second reading is all about Jesus’ "kenosis," the emptying out of His divine glory, that He might become the humble servant, human like us in all things but sin. No wonder every knee must bow at the mention of His name! How the early Church fought to maintain the doctrine that Jesus is both God and man. What a stupendous sacrifice for our redemption!

The Church is a master of drama in the liturgies of this week. In the use of the celebrant and two readers for the Passion this week, and in the congregations’ voice, we all become part of the action. Most feel embarrassed to cry "Crucify Him!" with the palm branches still in our hands. We feel like hypocrites. Yet our sin is what placed us in that position. It helps drive home the crime of dette! St. Mark presses the question, "Who is Jesus?" all through his gospel. As we watch the heavens darken and hear the thunder, we cry with that centurion, "Indeed this was the Son of God!" We should beat our breasts at the realization of what our sins have done! The shock of Palm Sunday’s liturgy compresses 2,000 years into this Year of Our Lord. We have no place to hide. We need to suspend all other activities, quiet our busy-ness, and focus on the events of this week. It's all in the sacred Liturgy, the local penance services, the Stations of the Cross, the Thursday night adoration and the Good Friday veneration of the Cross. All will prepare us for the coming out of darkness into the new fire, the new light, the new saving water of the Easter Vigil – and Resurrection.

Friends have posed that question regularly in the past week and my answer has been something like: "Great, it was memorable and spiritually beyond explanation."

I just came back from my first visit to the Holy Land.

There really is no way to adequately describe the emotional impact of a visit to the Holy Land. Imagine being in Jesus’ birthplace in Bethlehem, or visiting the birthplace of Mary, his mother, or standing where Jesus was baptized in the Jordan River, or walking in the footsteps of Jesus Christ on the Via Dolorosa, singing the Stabat Mater at each station of His cross at 4:00 in the morning. That was some of what we did.

We sailed on the Sea of Galilee. Some folks dipped in the Dead Sea (I did not). Our adventure included the sites of the Annunciation and Visitation, the place where Jesus gave us the Beatitudes, selected Peter to lead His church, multiplied the loaves and fishes and was Transfigured before his friends.

I will never proclaim a gospel or preach the same way because of this experience. That’s how it was.

Another thing that struck me as we finished our eleven-hour flight from Istanbul to New York City last week is how kind and welcoming everyone had been. The flight attendants, the airport staffs, the shop keepers, the sacristans in the various churches, even the armed soldiers we encountered in Bethlehem (Palestinian) and Jerusalem (Israeli) were polite and considerate.

Love occurred to me. That emotion has popped up a lot recently.

This trip while exciting, certainly showed me how much I love my wife, family, friends and work since I was gone for a dozen days.

My fellow travelers demonstrated their love for each other by helping those who had some difficulty walking the paths, hills and trails we encountered at every turn.

Our parish Lenten mission is about love. A student presented a homily on love. The morning prayer on the day I write this column included the petition: Teach us to be loving not only in great and exceptional moments, but above all in the ordinary events of daily life.

Love your neighbor as yourself, Jesus taught us.

But the greatest love was demonstrated by God, who gave his only Son to be crucified and die a human death.

Jesus accepted death on the cross for us, for me. That was the love I felt in the Holy Land.

It is good to be home, with those I love.

An adventure worth living

“At the beginning of January 2022, I moved to Calavi, Benin, to the ‘Bréillac’ Center where the seminarians of the Society for African Missions (SMA) attend the International Year of Spirituality (Novitiate), between the two of three years of philosophy and three or four years of theology.” Thus, Father Giovanni Benetti recounts the experience that he is living among the young seminarians of the Calavi Center, on the outskirts of the large city of Cotonou, in the south of the country.

“I find myself in the midst of many young people who, together with the formation parents and the friends of the Center, nurture an atmosphere of fraternity and simplicity,” writes the missionary. [...] [There are] 37 seminarians currently present in the ‘Bréillac’ Center in Calavi. [...]”

“I am involved,” continues Father Benetti, “in their spiritual accompaniment, in the preparation of some retreats and formation courses, and in the participation in the various meetings planned for the formators. Depending on the time I have available, I also try to offer my pastoral service, especially on Sundays, in some neighboring parishes. The work is not lacking and requires a great sense of responsibility, since the vocation is at stake and, therefore, the lives of the seminarians, future missionaries of the SMA, who expect an authentic Christian witness from me and from the other fathers. This requires humility which allows the formators to share the problems and immerse themselves in the personal story of these young people on their way towards the priesthood and missionary commitment without borders.”

“Of course, here as everywhere, not everything is rosy. The water, for example, is not drinkable, so it must be filtered or boiled. Unlike Nairobi, where I have been since 2021, Calavi’s tropical climate is harsh and Anopheles mosquitoes are very present and active; you try to fight them with mosquito nets and repellents. However, I dare to say it bluntly: the mission is an adventure worth living because it helps to grasp what is essential in life and to relativize what risks becoming absolute. I ask the Lord to help me be a reflection of his love, here and wherever the breadth of his Spirit takes me. My desire is, above all, to share with simplicity the precious gift that I have received from Him: faith, which gives flavor, serenity and meaning to life.”
