Pope Francis returns to Vatican after surgery

By Hannah Brockhaus
Catholic News Agency

(CNA) - Pope Francis was discharged from Rome’s Gemelli Hospital to a round of applause on Friday after an eight-day stay following abdominal surgery.

He greeted hospital staff and other patients as he left the hospital in a wheelchair June 16. Outside the building, the pope was asked how he was doing by media, to whom he said, “I’m still alive!”

After Francis left in his white Fiat 500, surgeon Dr. Sergio Alfieri told reporters, “The pope is well. He's better than before,” according to the Associated Press.

According to the Vatican, Pope Francis will lead the Angelus on Sunday as usual and other audiences for the upcoming days will take place.

The pope’s Wednesday morning audience with the public in St. Peter’s Square on June 21 has been canceled, instead, “to safeguard the Holy Father’s postoperative recovery.”

Before returning to the Vatican on Friday, Francis stopped to pray in front of the Salus Populi Romani Marian icon. The historic icon is kept in a chapel in the Basilica of St. Mary Major. Pope Francis has also stopped there after previous hospitalizations and visits the icon before and after every international trip.
Don’t drop it!

It brought me back to a different time in my life. Nearly every workday, I grab a frozen coffee drink from a local fast-food establishment. When I approached the drive-thru window to pick up my drink on Tuesday, I saw a young woman using a spoon to get the coffee from the blender to the cup, place a cap on the cup and promptly drop the spoon, trying to catch it as it tumbled to the ground.

She handed me my beverage with a smile but only after an exasperated sigh. “You’re doing great,” I said. “A dropped spoon isn’t a big deal.” “I’ve been dropping things all day,” she replied. “That’s when I thought of that period of my life.” “I get it,” I said. “I was a waitress for years. I remember getting ‘the drops.’”

“The drops,” was something my coworkers and I talked about often when I worked as a server. It’s like a snowball effect. It starts when, as the name suggests, you drop something, usually a dish or a food item. Almost always, dropping something as a server creates more work. You have to replace the item that was dropped and/or clean up the mess. It can also be embarrassing, especially if it’s a noisy drop or a drop that breaks dishes.

So that first drop makes you a bit frustrated. The result? You keep dropping things. It becomes a pattern. It becomes “the drops.”

As I was thinking about “the drops” that afternoon, it occurred to me that I get “the drops” in my faith life, too. If I drop something in my faith life—like Mass, fall asleep before praying, skip my gratitude journal—it’s easy to keep dropping it. It becomes a pattern. It becomes “the drops.”

So, what’s the cure for “the drops?” When I was a waitress, I realized the cure was a bit independent on the person, but it tended to involve “a reset.” I’d go take a 5-minute break. I’d go work on side work (things like filling salt and pepper shakers) or find a distraction.

Now that I see this similar tendency in my faith life, I’ll be looking for the resets. It’ll likely include going to confession. It may include starting a new routine. It may include something God hasn’t yet revealed to me.

And I hope I don’t drop doing so.

Blessed are... the Beatitudes

This week, the Gospel readings at each daily Mass will follow Jesus’ Sermon on the Mount as it is recorded in the Gospel of Matthew, Chapter 5. Jesus begins this Sermon on the Mount with the Beatitudes (Matt 5:1-12).

I love the Beatitudes. I truly enjoy preaching and teaching about the Beatitudes. I did not learn The Beatitudes as a child. We spent more time on the Ten Commandments. Now, I far prefer the Beatitudes; they are so wonderfully positive in describing how we should live the Christian life. This is a powerful message of Our Lord Jesus.

I have written here about the Beatitudes often. I realize that. I feel that when I need something to stir up my enthusiasm, I am certain it is time for the Beatitudes. Please join me as we spend some time with the Beatitudes.

The word Beatitude means a state of happiness or joy. Jesus taught the Beatitudes as the very foundation for a life of authentic Christian discipleship. Jesus believed that the Beatitudes are the way to ultimate happiness. So, the Beatitudes.

“Blessed are the poor in spirit” is our realization of who we are. We are a people in need. We need our God. We must trust God to show us the way. The Holy Spirit has been sent to us to transform who we are.

“Blessed are they who mourn.” Life is filled with experiences that bring sadness, experiences that break our hearts. We mourn, and that is good for us. When we mourn, we trust that our God is always ready to support us, to stand with us. God gives us the strength to react properly to such experiences of life.

“Blessed are the meek.” Meekness is not about being weak. Rather, meekness is true humility. We must often realize that we need God, we depend on God rather than ourselves or the world. The Lord calls us to be gentle, even mild as we live our lives as disciples of the Lord. In this way, we demonstrate to others our faith, our Catholic faith.

“Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness.” We are challenged here as followers and disciples of Jesus that our efforts to live a good and Christian life must be as extreme as those who are so determined because they suffer from hunger and thirst.

“Blessed are the merciful.” To be merciful means to show forgiveness and compassion to those in need. Jesus speaks many parables in the Gospels calling us to be merciful. Each time we recite the Lord’s Prayer, we make the same commitment: “Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us.”

“Blessed are the clean of heart.” We are called to be so devoted to our God every day, wanting to please him so that we may see his presence around us and recognize him while praying. We are called to accept Jesus as our Lord and Savior, allowing him to make his presence real and alive in our hearts.

“Blessed are the peacemakers.” The peacemaker is quick to repent when he or she has wronged others. Peacemakers move to avoid conflict. We are called to be peacemakers as we make our world a better place, bringing gentleness and patience in our lives as we strive to imitate Jesus.

There is more in the Beatitudes. Jesus mentions a series of rewards to those who follow his Beatitudes. He mentions more to this dedication to the Beatitudes. I encourage you to discover the Beatitudes again by finding them in Matthew 5.
Knights host annual pilgrimage to Vermont shrine

On Friday, June 9, the Catholic Media Association awarded the North Country Catholic a second-place award at its annual Catholic Media Conference in Baltimore, Maryland.

The award was in the category “Best Regular Column - Spiritual Life” for three of Editor Darcy Fargo’s columns from 2022, “Lessons from ‘Leon the Lobster’, ” “Not a #BadCatholic” and “A flair for the dramatic.”

Columns from the editor are often most dry,” the judges wrote for an entry in The Catholic Journalist, the Catholic Media Association’s publication. “But in this case, they are fun, interesting and inciteful. I could read about ‘Leon the Lobster’ repeatedly. In fact, I did. The North Country Catholic has a gem in Darcy Fargo, especially when reading about her “Darcy Drama and #Growing Catholic.”

Entries in the Best Regular Column category include three different articles. Judges focus on the overall effectiveness of the columns submitted. Both digital and print publications of all sizes compete in the category.

“I’m very honored to receive this award,” said Fargo. “It’s a blessing to share my faith with the Diocese of Ogdensburg through the pages of the North Country Catholic. It’s helped me grow my faith in ways I never imagined. Being recognized for that work is like a bonus gift.”

The North Country Catholic has garnered many accolades and awards from the Catholic Press Association in recent years, including an honorable mention for vocations coverage in 2016; first place for a series, “God’s Mercy in God’s Country” and an honorable mention for best weekly paper under 25,000 circulation in 2017; a first place award in 2020 for a story, “Finding faith in a fortress,” and a third place for Fargo’s columns on the pandemic in 2021.
Twin priests serve for combined 85 years

By Mary Beth Bracy
Contributing Writer

On May 6, Father Douglas Decker celebrated his 45th anniversary as a priest. On May 7, his twin brother, Father Robert Decker, celebrated his 40th anniversary. Father Doug noted that between them that makes for 85 years of priestly service, and the Fathers’ Deckers continue to joyfully share God’s love with others.

“We grew up on a farm in Hammond, three miles from the St. Lawrence, near Ogdensburg,” Father Doug shared. “We attended public school. We were trained in the faith by our parents (Robert Decker and Mary Aline Constance Amyot Decker), family and good priests. Our mother was Catholic and our father was Presbyterian but came to Sunday Mass with us too. We went to First Friday and First Saturday devotions, and Holy Hours. Our grandparents came too.”

These experiences helped lay the foundation for their vocations to the priesthood. After high school, both Father Bob and Father Doug attended Oswego State University to obtain elementary school teaching degrees.

Prior to pursuing the priesthood, Father Bob taught elementary school. During this time, he also obtained a master’s degree in education at Potsdam State University.

“I went into the Peace Corps,” Father Doug explained. “I served in Micronesia, Chuuk District. I sensed a call to the priesthood. After my return home, I signed into Wadhams Hall.”

He studied philosophy for two years then moved on to Christ the King Seminary. In 1977 he was ordained a Deacon and the following year a Priest.

“About that time, I asked my twin if he'd like to join the seminary,” added Father Doug. “He said he was happy teaching school. On August 4, 1978 – on the feast day of St. John Vianney, the patron of parish priests – he left me a note about his interest in a vocation to the priesthood. Thus, he entered Wadhams Hall.”

Following, Father Bob went on to study theology and was ordained in 1983. He served as parochial vicar at several different parishes: Holy Family Church (Watertown), St. John the Evangelist (Lafargeville), Sacred Heart (Massena), St. Agnes (Lake Placid), and St. Mary’s (Clayton).

In 1995, Father Bob was named pastor at St. Therese Church (Newcomb) and St. Henry’s (Long Lake). He also served as pastor at St. Francis Solanus Church (Harrisville) with St. Henry’s Oratory (Natural Bridge); St. Hubert’s Church (Star Lake) with St. Michael’s Oratory (Fine) and St. Anthony of Padua Oratory (Newton Falls); St. Paul’s Church (Black River) and St. Rita’s Church (Deferiet).

At 47 years old, Father Bob learned Spanish. He went on missionary duty to Ogdensburg’s Peruvian Apostolate in Mollendo, Peru, South America from 1998 to 2003. After, he returned to parish duty in the diocese. Father Bob currently serves as pastor at St. Cecilia’s Church in Adams with its mission Queen of Heaven Church in Henderson.

Although their vocations have taken them to different places and they have assumed unique roles, the identical twin priests have had some amusing experiences together. Father Bob related one such story:

“I had three weddings scheduled the same day and Father Bob said that he would come over and do one of them. He came and performed the wedding and left. No one realized that it wasn’t me.”

Father Doug served as assistant pastor at St. Patrick’s (Watertown), St. Alexander’s (Morrisville), Notre Dame (Ogdensburg), St. Peter’s (Lowville), St. John’s (Plattsburgh), and Holy Family (Watertown). While at St. John’s, he taught high school typing instruction and high school religion. He also prepared me for my First Holy Communion!

In 1986, Father Doug was commissioned as an United States Air Force chaplain and served in this position until 1996. His first duty was at Luke Air Force Base (Arizona), followed by Kunsan Air Force Base (Korea), Malmstrom Air Force Base (Montana).
MEET THE 2023 CAMP GUGGENHEIM STAFF

Venes Laine
Counselor
Hometown: Morrisonville
Parish: St. Alexander's, Morrisonville
What are your hobbies/talents/interests?
I am a sportive guy who likes to play soccer and volleyball. Whenever I have any free time I do some readings and socializing with those who are around me. I like to learn new things because that opens doors to appreciate the efforts of other people. Finally my interests are being with people and teaching them the goodness of God.

Why did you want to work at Camp Guggenheim?
I can say that Guggenheim is a very good environment for people to learn and enjoy the companionship of each other. This is a good place that involves you to sharing your gifts to others. I want to work at Camp Guggenheim because I like to deal with younger people in order to teach them how to play soccer and volleyball and to be willing to teach them the word of God also and as well as to any other areas which I am needed to help out.

Hope Switzer
Counselor
Hometown: Ogdensburg
Parish: St. Mary's Cathedral Parish
What are your hobbies/talents/interests?
My hobbies including swimming, going on walks and hikes, crocheting, and bible study. I have always loved swimming and being in nature. I've gotten more into crocheting this past year and even started my own Esty where I sell crocheted animals. I enjoy reading and exploring different parts of the bible especially with my family and friends.

Why did you want to work at Camp Guggenheim?
Growing up I looked forward to going to camp every summer and even counted down the days. Ever since the first year I went it has had a special place in my heart and I love sharing that love for camp with new and returning campers. I'm so excited to be on staff for my second year and to get the opportunity to sharing the word of God with all the campers and staff.

What are your hobbies/talents/interests?
Some of my hobbies include hiking, reading, and playing chess. I also quite enjoy juggling, and spend a lot of time coding and even more time breaking code.

Why did you want to work at Camp Guggenheim?
I had been a camper since the first year I was old enough back in 2016. I've frequently reflected on the special uniqueness camp brings, and ever since that first year I knew I wanted to someday impart this feeling on the next generation of campers. I love both learning and teaching about the faith, and I am forever blessed to be provided this opportunity to do exactly this with the 2023 Camp Guggenheim Campers!

...and Air Force National Guard in Syracuse, New York.
“...This added another dimension to my priesthood, I encountered wonderful young families and children,” Father Doug related.
Then, he served as pastor at St. Cecilia’s (Adams) from 1997-2010. Next, he was named pastor of St. Alphonsus-Holy Name of Jesus Parish (Tupper Lake) and now currently serves as pastor at Lowville, Glenfield, and Houseville.
Father Doug recounted a few adventures in his priesthood too. When he was stationed as parochial vicar at St. Patrick's in Watertown their housekeeper Hilda liked to go out for dinner and dancing with the priests on holidays.
One New Year’s the priests were ready to return to the rectory, and Hilda stayed out later with her friends. At 2 a.m., the rectory doorbell rang. Father Doug went downstairs to see who could be at the door at that hour of the morning. Father Doug opened the door and it was Hilda, flanked by police. (The priest had called them thinking it was an intruder!) It turned out that someone had taken the key from its hiding place and Hilda couldn’t get in.
Another time, in Tupper Lake, a set of triplets - Amber, Brandon, and Colby Boudreau - became altar servers.
“Servers love to play with fire and candles,” Father Doug joked.
The candles got a little too close to the deacon whose alb caught on fire.
“People were slapping him on the back and trying to put the fire out while the congregation was singing ‘Holy, Holy, Holy,’”
The Fathers’ Decker are looking forward to serving as priests for many years to come. Their parents lived into their late 90s. Father Bob took his mother home and cared for her during the last two years of her life, saying it was “such a blessing.” The twins would take her to the old farm house where they grew up on their days off.
“She was as good of a Catholic as there ever was,” Father Doug recalled.
“Vocations are in God’s hands,” Father Doug reflected. “It’s a matter of listening for direction in life, direction that is far more reliable.”

Environmental Stewardship

Write a letter

Some musing following a meeting after viewing Pope Francis’ THE LETTER: Environmental Crisis Frontline Leaders are shared by a member of the Watertown Faith and Ecology Group:

- Gathering rather than meeting
- Reflecting rather than reporting
- A cadre not just a group
- Letters not notices
- Inspiring not informing
- Connecting not collecting
- Imagining more than thinking

Pope Francis began urging us in “Laudato Si” to put out the fire that is rapidly ravishing the planet given to us by God, our Creator. We must continue our pope’s method of “letter writing” and see it as the vehicle for action and change. I do not mean here literal letter writing. I mean instead the choosing of intimate, personal, tactile engagement and not merely a virtual way of communicating.

We need to act from the place of faith found in Matthew 22:37. Yes, loving God with our hearts, all our souls, and all are minds, and then loving our neighbors as we love ourselves — this is the ONLY WAY we can save our planet.

Perform an energy audit; recycle; use less water, less paper, less gas; stop buying only new; learn to unplug devices; walk more; compost more. The list of significant actions to take grows longer, but we must write our own letters to the world also.

I believe we are a cadre who share a unifying mission, but can we discern how to touch the world around us? What will be in our letters? To whom shall we send them? My musings are my first letter. In hope and longing, we must imagine what is not yet real. We must love God and dare to follow in the footsteps of St. Francis by adopting what Pope Francis calls “an integral ecology lived out joyfully and authentically.”

The Transcendental Truths keep repeating like a favorite song as I prayerfully walk through my day: Truth. Goodness. Beauty. Woven into the fabric of each soul. I can think of no more powerful connections to this essential letter writing.

With Love and Eternal Hope,

Maureen O’Connor
Faith & Ecology Group

NY AG sues pro-life group

By Tyler Arnold
Catholic News Agency

Pro-life activists are accusing New York Attorney General Letitia James of intimidation and suppressing free speech after the attorney general sued a pro-life group and asked the court to bar members from going within 30 feet of an abortion clinic.

The lawsuit, filed in the United States District Court of the Southern District of New York on June 8, targets the activist group Red Rose Rescue. The group’s members sometimes enter abortion clinics to discourage women from obtaining an abortion and provide them with resources that could help them through their pregnancy.

James is asking the court to ban any member, including five who are named as defendants, from coming within 30 feet of any abortion clinic or reproductive health care facility in New York.

“This lawsuit is a politically motivated attack on free speech, freedom of religion, and natural law,” Bernadette Patel, who is mentioned in the lawsuit but not named as a defendant, told CNA.

John Hinshaw, one of the activists named as a defendant, told CNA he believes the lawsuit is intended to intimidate pro-life activists and suppress their activities.

“New York has a pro-life movement that isn’t going to be intimidated and hasn’t been yet,” Hinshaw said.

Bishops discuss forming ‘Eucharistic missionaries,’ synodality at meeting

By Lauretta Brown
Catholic News Agency

During the first public session of their spring meeting in Orlando, Florida, the U.S. bishops discussed spreading the love of the Eucharist as part of their three-year Eucharistic Revival initiative, the Holy Father’s emphasis on synodality, and the ways in which the two are connected as they heard updates on both efforts.

Synodality and the Eucharist

The morning opened with an address from apostolic nuncio to the United States, Archbishop Christophe Pierre, who told the bishops that “the synodal path is less about a ‘program’ and more about a way of being Church.”

Pierre said synodality is not like GPS technology with turn-by-turn directions but more like a compass where “Jesus Christ and his kingdom are the ‘true north,’” and “to find the proper path, we have to immerse ourselves in the reality of our people and listen carefully to the questions and concerns of their hearts.”

He also referred to “living the Eucharist as mission” as a guideline for understanding “the synodal style that Jesus has modeled for us, and which the Holy Father is calling us to adopt.” He called the Eucharist “a dynamic sacrament, imbuing everything we do with the character of Christ’s outgoing love for his people” because it is Christ’s real presence.

Pierre said that the Eucharistic Revival “is a call to let the entirety of our lives be an expression of the Lord’s presence among us: a living-out of the union that exists between our humanity, which Christ has taken to himself, and the divinity into which he leads us.”

He also emphasized the need for the revival to have a missionary character. “To teach the doctrine of the real presence, to promote eucharistic adoration, and to take Our Lord in procession: These initiatives will undoubtedly bear fruit in the lives of the faithful,” he said, “but the fruit will multiply only if the faithful learn that the Eucharist which they receive is meant to make them missionaries — who take the presence of Christ, which is now in them, to people who do not yet know the Lord.”

Update on Eucharistic Revival

Bishop Andrew Cozzens of the Diocese of Crookston, Minnesota, who is heading up the Eucharistic Revival effort, provided the bishops with an update on the initiative Thursday morning. He named some of the successes of its first year, including that 81% of dioceses have designated a point person for the revival, eucharistic preachers have held over 100 revival events in dioceses across the country, and almost 11,000 prayer partners have committed to praying for the revival.

Cozzens also discussed the planning of a two-month National Eucharistic Pilgrimage starting in May 2024 with four major pilgrimage routes ending at the National Eucharistic Congress on July 16, 2024, in Indianapolis, which will be the culmination of the three-year effort.

The bishop called the revival “a generational moment for us,” saying the effort is “really a moment where we can call the Church from all corners of the United States together to be set on fire for mission.” His image of the event, he said, was people coming in from all over the country “and then being set on fire by their experience here and then those torches going back to parishes across the country.”

New USCCB president address

In his first address in his new leadership role, USCCB president Archbishop Timothy Broglio of the Archdiocese for the Military Services, USA, praised the Eucharistic Revival, calling it “an attempt on our part to announce the truth about the mystery of the Eucharist and the real presence of Our Lord and Savior, body, blood, soul, and divinity.”

Broglio touched on other important causes for the U.S. bishops in his speech, including the encouragement of “well-intentioned lawmakers who are seeking to enact effective and humane border management as part of a framework of comprehensive immigration reforms.”

U.S. bishops urge Congress to support affordable housing

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) is urging Congress to support affordable housing measures as high rates of inflation continue to cause increasing housing and rent costs for American families. Archbishop Borys Gudzak, who serves as the chairman of the USCCB’s Committee on Domestic Justice and Human Development, sent a letter to House and Senate Appropriations Committee leadership, which outlined the USCCB’s policies. The letter was also signed by Catholic Charities USA Vice President of Government Relations Anthony Granado. “Robust investments in federal housing programs equip families and communities with the resources they need to thrive,” the letter reads. “A just framework for future budgets cannot rely on disproportionate cuts in essential services to poor and other vulnerable persons. It requires shared sacrifice by all, including raising adequate revenues, eliminating unnecessary spending, and addressing the long-term costs of health insurance and retirement programs fairly.” The letter cautions that housing makes up a large portion of family budgets, with about 10.7 million low-income renters spending more than half of their income on housing costs.

Franciscans return to Walter Reed after contract controversy

Franciscan priests will again serve as chaplains and ministers at Walter Reed National Military Medical Center in Maryland after their contract went unrenewed in favor of a private defense contractor, provoking an outcry from prominent Catholics. “Of course, it is a source of great joy that the Franciscans have returned to the medical center and care for patients and staff there,” Archbishop Timothy Broglio of the Archdiocese for Military Services, USA, said in a Thursday statement. The Franciscan priests and friars of Holy Name College Friary of Silver Spring, Maryland, had served at Walter Reed for 20 years, typically providing a team of five friars six days a week to minister to patients. The U.S. Defense Health Agency now has awarded a five-year annually renewable contract to the friars to resume their service. Their longtime ministry was interrupted two months ago when the friars’ contract for pastoral services expired on March 31, just before Holy Week.

UN Security Council discusses pope, imam’s fraternity proposal

The U.N. Security Council convened a high-level briefing on Wednesday to discuss the role of “human fraternity” in promoting peace, inspired by the fraternity declaration co-authored by Pope Francis and a leading Sunni imam. U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told the council on June 14 to look to the human fraternity declaration signed by the pope and the Grand Imam of Al-Azhar Al-Sharif, Ahmed Al-Tayeb, in Abu Dhabi in 2019 as “a model for compassion and human solidarity.” Following the briefing on June 14, the security council unanimously adopted a resolution condemning hate speech, racism, gender discrimination, and acts of extremism that was co-authored by the United Arab Emirates and the U.K.

A new book from Ascension is inspiring Catholics to experience the power of novenas with a pocket guide to dive deeper into this traditional form of prayer. “Pocket Guide to Novenas” by Annie and John-Paul Deddens offers readers a look into where these 9-day prayers came from, how to pray them, and what to expect when praying them.

The new pocket guide includes 20 novenas, 14 of which are newly written, an introduction to each novena, sacred art, inspirational stories from Catholics who have had their prayers answered through a novena, and a schedule for when to pray these particular novenas throughout the year.

First-time authors and married couple Annie and John-Paul Deddens spoke with CNA about their personal experiences seeing the power of novenas after praying for St. Anne’s intercession for a spouse. This moved Annie to find a novena to the saint. She began to pray it every morning at a local chapel.

“While I left that chapel every morning, I remember noticing a guy praying in one of the last pews in the back, and I thought to myself, ‘I’d like to meet someone like him, who is also starting his day in prayer,’” she recalled.

“Very shortly after finishing the St. Anne Novena, I met John-Paul, and it turned out that he was the guy I had been seeing all along in the very back of the chapel while praying the novena,” she added. “So we attribute St. Anne’s intercession to us meeting one another.”

In addition to being authors, the Deddens are also the creators of the popular website PrayMoreNovenas, an online ministry that helps people rediscover the beauty of praying novenas and sends daily emails so that they can stay up-to-date on their chosen novena.

“I realized that I was constantly checking my email throughout the day and that if I had the prayers right there in front of me that I would probably finally finish a novena,” he said. “I created the website PrayMoreNovenas.com to help others who had the same difficulty and we’ve since received thousands of messages from people who finally finished their first novena using Pray More Novenas!”

Now, they hope to continue to encourage Catholics around the world to spend more time in prayer through their “Pocket Guide to Novenas.”

“Helping people pray novenas has been the heart of our ministry...for many years,” Annie said. “We wrote the [the book] to further help people pray novenas and hopefully grow closer to the Lord through each prayer. We love novenas and we hope they will become a beloved devotion for others in their prayer lives.”

She continued, “While novenas aren’t a required devotion in the Faith, they’re a simple and beautiful way to spend just a little more time in prayer each day. The daily novena prayer might take just a couple of minutes a day, and it can help us to reflect on the lives of the saints or the life of Christ or our Blessed Mother, and to ask for their intercession in our lives.”

Some of the new novenas included in the book are the Novena to St. John Paul II, the Novena to St. Louis and Zelie Martin, the Novena to Christ the King, as well as several traditional novenas including the Divine Mercy Novena and the Surrender Novena.

John-Paul added that he hopes their book “will bring people closer to Christ, leading them in conversation and relationship with the Lord.”
Today’s first reading gives us an amazing insight into the anger and discouragement of the prophet Jeremiah. No one seems to be listening to him. Furthermore, the king and all his friends have denounced him, flogged him publicly and threatened him with death! Jeremiah, in turn, after accusing God of dealing with him deceitfully, decides to quit. Struggling with his feelings, he finally admits that he can’t quit because God’s word is burning like fire in his bones. He knows God will not desert him, and that his enemies will eventually be brought to justice. From the time of Jeremiah and the other Old Testament prophets right through the days of the apostles and martyrs of the New Covenant, and, indeed right up to the present day, those who preach the Word of God have met with opposition and violence from evil people. Today, there are 200 million Christians suffering persecution in places like China, Iran, North Korea, Uganda, the Ukraine, and at least 40 other countries.

Why such violent reaction to the “Good News” from those redeemed by the Precious Blood of Jesus? Why do many blasphemously say that they are killing Christians as an act of worship to God? It’s because of original sin.

Today’s second reading from the Epistle of Paul to the Romans clearly states the doctrine of the Catholic Church concerning original sin. In other words, Satan maliciously released the power of evil into the world through the disobedience of Adam and Eve. That evil has infected every person born (except Mary because God chose to exempt her, and Jesus, because He was divine as well as human). This doesn’t mean that those who kill Christians aren’t responsible for their own actions, but only that evil exists in the form of original sin, and that the battle between good and evil isn’t over yet! Evil is something to be feared. But Jesus, in today’s Gospel, tells his followers, “Fear no one.” He teaches further, “And do not be afraid of those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul.” Is there anyone we should fear? Yes, “...the one who can kill both the soul and the body in Gehenna.”

God tells us not to be afraid of suffering for our faith, for those who are faithful in speaking right out loud in praise of God’s truth, will share with Him the final victory!

Why don’t deacons wear a Roman collar?

This is the last, I pray, column about deacon garb for a year or so. It is a subject that seems to pop up regularly, mostly among deacons.

From time-to-time some deacons and maybe a lay person or two, wonder about deacon’s wearing dalmatics (we covered that last week) and collars. Specifically in this diocese (Ogdensburg) it is a question of why we do not wear the Roman Collar when we go about our day-to-day activities.

Canon law, directives from the Conference of US Bishops and traditions in this diocese appear to dictate the rules for dressing. I looked in the Diocese of Ogdensburg Pastoral Handbook for some guidance, but the handbook is moot on this question.

That is not a criticism. The authors just did not think the subject of priest’s and deacon’s garb worth a paragraph. How the priest should dress is covered in Canon Law.

Canon 288 specifically unbinds “permanent deacons” from those statutes “unless particular law (that means local) establishes otherwise.”

The argument some of my brother deacons put forth is that deacons should be allowed to wear collars in certain places or on certain occasions as a way of identifying them as clergy.

Some of you have heard my story about the time I was visiting a fellow from my Watertown parish at a Syracuse hospital. I was wearing a blazer over a button-down shirt, but I had a deacon lapel pin on. As I came around a corner in the corridor, an older lady in a wheelchair called out to me, “Hey, are you a priest?”

“No,” I responded. “I am a deacon.” She indignantly waved me off and uttered a derisive “Ahhhhh.”

It was a moment that brought things into perspective. I was humbled.

Had I been wearing a collar, my answer would have been the same, “I am a deacon.” I suspect the response from the lady would have been the same too.

Deacons who work as prison chaplains wear the collar to distinguish them from incarcerated people and Corrections Officers.

Some hospital chaplains, if they are deacons, can wear the collar too.

Canon Law says deacons are not bound by statutes that require them to wear certain outfits at certain times. That means they could wear collars.

The bishops of the US have left that decision to the local bishop.

Since Bishop Stanislaus Brzana restored the diaconate in this diocese in the 1970s, deacons have not worn a Roman Collar in their everyday activity (save prison and some hospital chaplains.)

Bishop Terry R. LaValley was not speaking just to the issue of collars when he addressed three men at their ordination recently, but his comments are appropriate in this discussion about collars.

“Don’t become focused on externals, in the trappings of office rather than your interior life. We need holy leaders to lead and accompany the faithful in our time of moral crisis.”

I should have asked the lady in the wheelchair if I could help, rather than blush.

Deacon Kevin Mastellon ministers in Watertown. He is the Director of Permanent Deacons for the Diocese of Ogdensburg.
Cholera in Haiti

Please join us in praying for the people of Haiti as they struggle with natural disasters, disease, and the lingering effects of the pandemic.

“Every day brings new suffering. Unfortunately, for years, when one speaks of Haiti, one thinks of a country in disaster: economic, ecological, political, demographic,” said Father Nestor Fils-Aime, provincial superior of Canada of the Clerics of Saint Viator (CSV), told Fides. “Unfortunately, every time one talks about this country, even though it is rich in natural and human resources and with a beautiful history, crises, emergencies and violence are denounced.” The missionary referred in particular to the recent events of this week in June, when the country was hit by landslides, floods and repeated earthquakes and is currently experiencing a renewed increase in cholera cases.

“The first days of June were difficult,” the religious continued. “Heavy torrential rains caused the water to rise and caused flooding with consequent material damage and loss of life in the metropolitan region of Port-au-Prince, in the areas of Croix-des-Missions, Tabarre, etc., as well as in the south of country, in the districts of Léogâne and Grand’Anse near Jerémie. According to conservative estimates, there could be around 60 dead, 20 missing and between 35 and 40,000 flooded houses... In addition, a magnitude 5.7 (earthquake) which hit Grand’Anse on June 6 caused the death of at least four people and more than 40 are feared injured.”

“It is a great challenge for us,” emphasizes Father Fils-Aime. “We always dream of improvement, but it is slow to come. However, we remain optimistic and continue to act with the same faith and determination to create spaces of light, of joy and hope.”

The order’s institutions are not directly affected. The missionaries run a school and look after a parish in Croix-des-Missions where Father Jean-Yves Médidor (CSV) was kidnapped last March. Fortunately, there was no considerable damage in the parish of St-François d’Assise in Grand-Goâve, which the Viatorians administer, about 60 kilometers south of the capital.

Unfortunately, Haitian health officials confirmed on Friday, June 9, that an outbreak of cholera in the Caribbean nation has already killed several hundred people. According to published data, the epidemic that first hit Haiti in October 2010, killed 10,174 people and since October 2022 726 people have died. In the period from October 10 last year to June 5, 2023, there were 45,248 suspected cases, 3007 confirmed cases, 41,357 hospitalizations. The average age of the hospitalized infected is 17 years.

Pertl is IHC Outstanding Vocational Leader

Editor’s note: Josalyn S. Pertl, a class leader at Immaculate Heart Central, was misidentified in a photo caption in last week’s edition. We apologize for that error and offer her accolades and photo as it was intended.

Josalyn S. Pertl is this year’s Outstanding Vocational Leader for the Immaculate Heart Central Class of 2023. Josalyn is a member of the Immaculate Heart of Mary Chapter of the National Honor Society and has a cumulative average of 90.78.

Additionally, she has achieved an average of 90 in the Culinary Arts program at BOCES and was recently inducted into the National Technical Honor Society.

Pertl serves on student council as treasurer of her class and is very active in her parish, working with the RCIA and Vacation Bible School programs. She also participated in the March for Life in Washington DC.

Josalyn has earned a varsity letter in tennis and academically has earned the following awards: NY State Comptroller Award, Jreck Sub Winning Attitude Award, and the Sisters of St. Josephs Award in Religion.

Pertl spends a lot of her time interning and working at her family’s restaurants, Spokes on the Square, Spokes on the River, and Spokes on the Green. She has a very strong work ethic, has a high attention to details, can successfully manage both kitchen and serving duty, and she often fully runs catering events.

Pertl has found her passion in life. She plans to attend the Culinary Institute of America for Hospitality Management.
Oratory hosts Memorial Day Mass, grave blessing

The annual Memorial Day Mass and blessing of the graves occurred at St. Mary’s Oratory and cemetery in the Irishtown section of the Town of Minerva on Monday, May 29.

Father Philip Allen, pastor of St. Mary’s in Indian Lake, St. Paul’s in Blue Mountain Lake and St. Joseph’s in Olmstedville celebrated the Mass assisted by altar server Temperance Cronk-Baker.

Kathy Halloran, whose family dates back generations in Irishtown, did the readings.

St. Joseph parishioners Betty LeMay, Diane McNally and Judy Jennings cleaned and readied the oratory, and refreshments were served following the services.

During the offertory, David McNally took up a collection from the 48 attendees with the funds collected dedicated to the upkeep of the oratory and the cemetery surrounding it.

St. Mary’s of Indian Lake parishioner Mary Leach played the pump organ leading the congregation in hymns and patriotic songs.

The cornerstone (actually the front step) was laid in Irishtown at St. Mary’s in 1847 and the predominantly Irish residents of this section of Minerva completed and started using the Oratory as their Church in 1848. With a burgeoning population, a cornerstone was laid in 1871 for a larger Catholic Church, St. Joseph’s, which was completed in 1872 four miles down the road in Ominstedville. St. Mary’s Oratory has been cared for ever since, having undergone numerous renovations and preservation efforts over the years; the surrounding cemetery continues to be used by parishioners of St. Joseph’s.

Church with ‘God is trans’ exhibit to host ‘Pride Mass’

(CNA) - The Catholic church in New York City that hosted a controversial art display called “God is trans” is now hosting a “Pride Mass” at a monument commemorating a June 1969 LGBT uprising.

The Church of St. Paul the Apostle announced that on June 22 it is celebrating a Mass outdoors at the Stonewall National Monument in New York City, a national park associated with the June 28, 1969, uprising at The Stonewall Inn.

The “Pride Mass” is set to take place in the month the Catholic Church designates the month of the Sacred Heart of Jesus. June is also the month known as “Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer Pride Month,” which LGBT activists designated to commemorate the uprising at a gay bar that was the site of a violent revolt against law enforcement during a police raid.

The Mass will take place in a park where there are gay and transgender pride flags as well as sculptures of two homosexual couples titled “Gay Liberation.”

The park is located in the West Village neighborhood of Greenwich Village, which is approximately four miles from the Church of St. Paul the Apostle on the Upper West Side.

One moral theologian told CNA that celebrating the Mass with a political end is inappropriate and “possibly sacrilegious.” A canon lawyer has also questioned the liturgical necessity of celebrating the Mass outside of a sacred place, calling the choice of location “opportunistic for sensational reasons.”

The Mass is being sponsored by “Out at St. Paul,” the church’s ministry “to the Gay, Lesbian, Bi, Trans and Queer community,” which is made up of “mostly gay men,” according to Paul Snatchko, a spokesperson for the Paulist Fathers.

On the Out at St. Paul Facebook page, a notice advertising the Mass says: “ Afterwards, the group will head to a nearby bar for fellowship over drinks! All are welcome no matter how you identify or where you are in your faith journey.”

CNA inquired of the Archdiocese of New York whether the church’s scheduled outdoor “Pride Mass” at the monument was approved by the archdiocese.

The archdiocese has not yet responded.

The New York Post on May 7 revealed that the Church of St. Paul the Apostle was hosting an art exhibit that included a display called “God Is Trans: A Queer Spiritual Journey.” A firestorm of criticism erupted online, with many calling the artwork “blasphemous.”

Following concerns expressed by the Archdiocese of New York, the church shortened the name of the art display to “A Queer Spiritual Journey.”

Father Thomas Petri, OP, a moral theologian and president of the Dominican House of Studies in Washington, D.C., told CNA on Wednesday that the Mass should not be used to make a political statement.
